

Contents

Introduction and Overview	1
Coastal Management Principles and Practice	1
References	9
Part I Methodological Principles	11
1 Principles and Benefits of Integrated Coastal Zone Management (ICZM) ...	13
1.1 Introduction	13
1.2 Pressure-State-Impact-Response (P-S-I-R) Framework	15
1.3 The Elements of Integrated Coastal Zone Management (ICZM)	18
1.4 Establishing Priorities for Management Actions	21
1.5 Characterising the Benefits of ICZM	22
1.6 Demonstrating the Benefits of ICZM	25
1.6.1 Without ICZM	26
1.6.2 With ICZM	28
1.7 Steps in Estimating ICZM Net Benefits	31
1.8 Conclusions	33
References	34
2 The Challenge of Demonstrating the Socio-economic Benefits of Integrated Coastal Management	35
2.1 Introduction	35
2.2 The Coastal Development Context	37
2.3 The Challenge of Optimising the Economic and Social Benefits Derived from Maintaining the Flow of Goods and Services Supplied by Coastal Ecosystems	40
2.3.1 The Need to Move Away From Current Sectoral Management Approaches ..	40
2.3.2 The Need for Improved Information to Demonstrate the Benefits of Integrated Coastal Management	41
2.3.3 The Basis for Integration	42
2.4 Means of Meeting the Challenge	44
2.4.1 Valuing Coastal Ecosystems and their Role in Sustaining Human Activities ..	44
2.4.2 A Simple Conceptual Model for Illustrating Role of Coastal Ecosystems in Sustaining Human Activities	48
2.5 Multiple-use Management of Coastal Areas and Associated Ecosystems Utilising the Concept of Integrated Coastal Management	51
2.6 Conclusions	51
References	52

3	Strategic Planning for Sustainable Development in Coastal Zone Regions: Using Natural Resource Accounts	55
3.1	The Need for a Comprehensive Framework to Represent Socio-economic Systems	55
3.2	Natural Resource Accounting	56
3.3	Using Natural Resource Accounts in Strategic Planning for Sustainable Development in Indonesia	57
3.4	Results of Scenario Analysis	63
3.5	Institutional Factors Critical to Successful Implementation of Natural Resource Accounts	66
3.6	Relevance of Natural Resource Accounting to ICZM	67
	References	67
4	Methods and Tools to Support CZM	69
4.1	Introduction	69
4.2	The Approach	69
4.2.1	General	69
4.2.2	The Issues	70
4.2.3	The Process	70
4.2.4	The Actions	72
4.3	Active Involvement of Stakeholders	72
4.4	The Integration of Social, Economic and Environmental Aspects	73
4.4.1	General	73
4.4.2	Step 1: Driving Forces and Pressures	75
4.4.3	Step 2: The State of the Environment	77
4.4.4	Step 3: Impact and Response	79
4.5	Policy Instruments to Coordinate Administrative and Governance Initiatives at Various Levels and in Different Sectors	80
4.5.1	General	80
4.5.2	Institutional Arrangements	81
4.5.3	Financing	81
4.5.4	Monitoring	81
4.6	Technical Instruments to Support Administrative and Governance Initiatives at Various Levels and in Different Sectors	83
4.6.1	General	83
4.6.2	User Requirements	83
4.6.3	The LWI Concept	83
4.7	Human Resources Development and Technology Transfer	85
4.7.1	General	85
4.7.2	Scope of Technology Transfer	85
4.7.3	Phasing of Technology Transfer	87
	References	87
5	Chances for Nature – A Matter of Substitution	89
5.1	Introduction	89
5.2	Nature as a Common	89
5.3	Substitution of Natural Capital	91

5.3.1	Capital Stock Theory	91
5.4	Views on Nature	92
5.4.1	Conservation View	92
5.4.2	Functionality	93
5.4.3	Coevolution	94
5.5	Valuation Implications	95
5.6	Conclusions and Discussion	96
	References	98
6	The Role of Ecology in Coastal Zone Mangement: Perspectives from South-East Australia	99
6.1	Introduction	99
6.2	Decision-Making Against an Uncertain Background	101
6.2.1	Natural Ecological Systems	101
6.2.2	Temporal and Spatial Variation	103
6.2.3	Life-Histories and Scales of Management	104
6.3.	Managerial Decisions as Experiments	105
6.3.1	Sewerage Outfalls on the Rocky Coast of New South Wales	105
6.3.2	Recreational Boating	107
6.3.3	Restoration of Wetlands	110
6.3.4	Marine Reserves and Intertidal Foraging for Bait and Food	115
6.4	Marginalization of Scientific Contributions in Australia	118
6.4.1	Biological Diversity and its Conservation	118
6.4.2	Reduction of Scientific Uncertainty for Managerial Decisions	120
6.5	Conclusions: Towards a New Scientific Social Contract	121
	Acknowledgements	123
	References	124
7	The Implications of Oceanographic Chaos for Coastal Management ...	129
7.1	Introduction	129
7.2	Water Currents	130
7.3	Suspended Sediment and Plankton	132
7.4	Turbidity and Seagrass	133
7.5	Coral, Fish and Prawn Larvae	134
7.6	Water Quality	136
7.7	River Plumes	137
7.8	Discussions	137
7.9	Conclusions	139
	Acknowledgements	139
	References	140
	Part II Regional Practice and Experiences	143
8	Quality Status, Appropriate Monitoring and Legislation of the North Sea in Relation to its Assimilative Capacity	145
8.1	Introduction	145
8.2	The North Sea	146

8.2.1	Inputs and Outputs of Contaminants	146
8.2.2	Perceptions of the Health of the North Sea	150
8.3	Assimilative Capacity	151
8.3.1	Definitions	152
8.3.2	Quantification	153
8.3.3	For Individual Contaminants	156
8.3.4	A Resource of Economic Value	158
8.4	Chemical Versus Biological Monitoring of Assimilative Capacity	160
8.4.1	Chemical Monitoring	160
8.4.2	Biological Monitoring	162
8.4.3	An Integrated Approach to Monitoring	165
8.5	Environmentally Significant Pollutants	168
8.5.1	Polyaromatic Hydrocarbons (PAHs)	168
8.5.2	Organotins	169
8.6	Biological Evidence for Pollution Gradients in the North Sea	170
8.6.1	Gradients Related to Oil Rigs	170
8.6.2	Estuarine Inputs	171
8.6.3	Fish Embryo Abnormalities	173
8.6.4	UK East Coast Gradient	175
8.7	Biological and Ecological Quality Standards	177
8.8	Conclusions	178
	Acknowledgements	178
	References	179
9	Conservation and Management of Latin American Mangroves	183
9.1	Man and Mangroves in Pre-Columbian and Colonial America	183
9.2	Extent, Distribution and Composition of New World Mangroves	185
9.3	Mangrove Uses	188
9.4	Management of Mangrove Areas	190
	Acknowledgements	192
	References	193
10	Developing and Strategy for an ICZM in Cuba: Bases and Principles	195
10.1	Introduction	195
10.2	Coastal Ecosystems and their Main Problems	196
10.2.1	General Characteristics of the Cuban Platform	196
10.2.2	Main Coastal Ecosystems in Cuba	196
10.3	Coastal Protection: Precedents and Current Situation	200
10.3.1	Protection of Fisheries Resources	200
10.3.2	Scientific Research in Coastal Areas	201
10.3.3	Territorial Planning	202
10.3.4	Coastal Rehabilitation	202
10.3.5	Strengthening of the Institutional Basis	203
10.3.6	Improvement of the Legal Framework	203
10.3.7	International Activity	205
10.3.8	Facing the Climatic Changes	205
10.4	Final Objectives and Actions	206

10.5	Conclusions	208
	References	208
11	Coastal Zone Management in India – Problems, Practice and Requirements	211
11.1	Introduction	211
11.2	Indian Coastal Environment	211
11.3	Coastal Zone Problems in India	212
11.3.1	Population Pressure	212
11.3.2	Coastal Pollution	213
11.3.3	Coastal Environmental Degradation	215
11.3.4	Coastal Fisheries	216
11.3.5	Coastal Erosion	216
11.3.6	Conflicting Uses	216
11.3.7	Natural Hazards	217
11.4	Coastal Zone Management Initiatives in India	217
11.4.1	International Legal Instruments	217
11.4.2	National Legal Instruments	217
11.4.3	Coastal Regulation Zone Rule	218
11.5	Conservation Measures	220
11.5.1	Gulf of Mannar (Tamilnadu)	220
11.5.2	Gulf of Kutch (Gujarat)	221
11.5.3	Andaman and Nicobar Islands	221
11.6	Fisheries Management	222
11.7	Research and Development Programmes	222
11.8	Requirements in India	223
11.8.1	Integrated Coastal Zone Management Plan	223
11.8.2	An Agency for ICZM	224
11.9	Conclusions	224
	References	225
12	Integrated Coastal Zone Management (ICZM) in Indonesia	227
12.1	Introduction	227
12.2	Status of Coastal Environment	227
12.3	Coastal Zone Problems in Indonesia	228
12.4	Integrated Coastal Zone Management in Indonesia	229
12.5	Conclusions	232
	References	232
13	Coastal Zone Management: Issues and Initiatives in Small South Asian Nations	235
13.1	Introduction	235
13.2	Human Activities in the Coastal Zone	236
13.3	Coastal Zone Management in Bangladesh	237
13.3.1	Mangroves	238
13.3.2	Coral Reefs and Seagrass Ecosystems	238
13.3.3	Threats to the Coastal Environments	239

13.3.4	State Initiatives and Legislation	242
13.4	Coastal Zone Management in Maldives	243
13.4.1	Marine Resources and Exploitation	243
13.4.2	Environmental Threats to the Coastal Environments	243
13.4.3	Coastal Area Management Initiatives	245
13.5	Coastal Zone Management in Sri Lanka	246
13.5.1	Coastal Marine Habitats	246
13.5.2	Environmental Threats to the Coastal Environments	248
13.5.3	Coastal Area Management Initiatives	250
13.6	Summary and Conclusions	251
	References	253
Part III	Case Studies	255
14	Tourist Development in the Costa Brava (Girona, Spain): A Quantification of Pressures on the Coastal Environment	257
14.1	Introduction	257
14.2	The Development of the Tourist Industry in the Costa Brava	258
14.3	Environmental Impacts of the Tourist Industry in the Costa Brava	261
14.3.1	Environmental Pollution	261
14.3.2	Preservation of the Natural Heritage (Exploitation of Natural Resources)	264
14.3.3	Preservation of the Natural Heritage (Physical occupation of the Territory)	270
14.4	The Management Framework	272
14.5	Concluding Remarks: The Need of a More Integrated Approach	274
	Acknowledgements	276
	References	276
15	Australian Integrated Coastal Management: A Case Study of the Great Barrier Reef	279
15.1	Introduction	279
15.2	Australia's National Coastal Zone Inquiry, 1993	281
15.3	Commonwealth (of Australia) Coastal Policy, 1995	282
15.4	The Great Barrier Reef	283
15.5	Management of the Great Barrier Reef	289
15.6	How Integrated is the Management of the Great Barrier Reef?	293
	References	296
16	Integrated Coastal Zone Management in Venezuela: The Maracaibo System	297
16.1	Introduction	297
16.2	General Description	300
16.3	Population Growth	301
16.4	Water Diversion and Impoundment	302
16.5	Pesticides and Industrial Wastes	303
16.6	Fisheries	303

16.7	Navigation	305
16.8	Oil Exploitation and Petrochemical Industries	305
16.9	Engineering Works	306
16.10	International Frame	307
16.11	The Nissos Amorgos Oil Spill	308
16.12	Outlook	309
	Acknowledgements	310
	References	310
17	Sustainable Developmental Planning in Ecologically Sensitive Dahanu Region on the West Coast of India	313
17.1	Introduction	313
17.2	Dahanu Region - Pressure, Response and Consequences	314
17.2.1	Land Use Changes	314
17.2.2	Changes in Aquatic Ecosystem	316
17.3	Conclusions and Recommendations	316
17.3.1	Dahanu Regional Plan	318
17.3.2	Protection and Preservation of Ecology	318
18	Management of Tokyo Bay	323
18.1	Introduction	323
18.1.1	Brief History	323
18.2	Analysis of Uses of Tokyo Bay and their Conflicts	325
18.2.1	Land Reclamation	327
18.2.2	Disposal of Solid Wastes	329
18.2.3	Living Marine Resources	331
18.2.4	Marine Transport	332
18.2.5	Liquid Waste Disposal and Water Quality	333
18.2.6	Water-based Recreation	335
18.3	Analysis of Costs and Benefits of Alternative Policies	336
18.3.1	Formulation of the Analysis	337
18.3.2	The Model for Analyzing Benefits	340
18.3.3	Recreational Demand Functions	342
18.3.4	Water Quality Model	343
18.3.5	Estimating Costs	344
18.3.6	Estimating Net Benefits	346
18.4	Discussion of the Institutional Structure for Management	347
18.4.1	New Institutional Arrangements for Management of Tokyo Bay	350
18.5	Epilogue	353
19	Integrated Coastal Zone Management in Sweden: Assessing Conflicts to Attain Sustainability	355
19.1	Context and Problems	355
19.2	Multiple Use and Conflicts	357
19.2.1	Fishing	357
19.2.2	Mariculture	358
19.2.3	Tourism and Recreation	359

19.2.4 Nature Conservation	359
19.2.5 Industry	359
19.2.6 Shipping and Navigation	360
19.2.7 Energy Use	360
19.3 Policy and Planning	361
19.3.1 Conceptual Framework	361
19.3.2 Guidelines for Implementation	362
19.3.3 The Commons	363
19.3.4 Governance	364
19.3.5 Integrated Management Process	365
19.4 Institutions and Environmental Legislation in Sweden	366
19.4.1 The Institutional Mechanism	366
19.4.2 Coastal Regulations in Sweden	367
19.5 Coastal Fisheries and Eutrophication: Sustainable Management Issues	369
19.5.1 Coastal Fisheries	369
19.5.2 Eutrophication	370
19.5.3 Coastal Management	371
19.6 Conclusions	372
References	373
Index	377

Perspectives on Integrated Coastal Zone Management

Salomons, W.; Turner, R.K.; Lacerda, L.D. de;

Ramachandran, S. (Eds.)

1999, XVIII, 386 p. With online files/update., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-540-65565-7