

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword	vii
-----------------	-----

Acknowledgement	viii
------------------------	------

Introduction and Overview	ix
Susan M. Stocklmayer, Michael M. Gore & Chris Bryant

SECTION 1: TOWARDS A THEORETICAL BASIS FOR SCIENCE COMMUNICATION

1. The Background to Effective Science Communication by the Public	3
Susan M. Stocklmayer
2. Science Communication with the Public: A Cross Cultural Event	23
Glenn Aikenhead
3. More than Story Telling—Reflecting on Popular Science	47
Jon Turney
4. Topical Perspective and the Rhetorical Grounds of Practical Reason in Arguments About Science	63
Lawrence J Prelli
5. Postmodern Science: The Decline or Liberation of Science	83
Richard Eckersley

SECTION 2: THE EXPERIMENTAL APPROACH TO SCIENCE COMMUNICATION

6. Conversations in a Landscape of Science and Magic: Thinking about Science Communication	97
David Sless & Ruth Shrensky
7. Communicating Science Through Interactive Science Research Centres: A Research Perspective	107
Léonie J. Rennie
8. Towards a Unified Model of Education and Entertainment in Technology Centres	123
John K. Gilbert

9. Reaching the Public - Communicating the Vision 143
Susan M. Stocklmayer

SECTION 3: SCIENCE COMMUNICATION AND THE MEDIA

10. Science Journalism: the Inside Story 151
Peter Spinks
11. Presenting a Radio Science Program: Engaging the Public Interest 169
Deborah Cohen
12. Science Communication via Television and the World Wide Web 177
Ian Allen

SECTION 4: SCIENCE COMMUNICATION IN PRACTICE: CASE HISTORIES

13. New Visions for Associations for the Advancement of Science: A Case Study 191
Peter Briggs
14. The Edinburgh International Science Festival 203
Simon Gage
15. The Questacon Story 219
Michael M. Gore
16. The Anatomy of a Science Circus and the Development of a Graduate Program in Science Communication 237
Chris Bryant
17. Learning by Building (Destroying and Tinkering, Too): A Powerful Science Communication Tool 257
Vivian Altmann, Modesto Tamez and Dennis Bartels

EPILOGUE: REFLECTIONS OF AN EMINENT SCIENTIST

18. Learning Science Communication on the Job 271
Peter Doherty
- Notes on Contributors 279

Science Communication in Theory and Practice

Stocklmayer, S.M.; Goré, R.; Bryant, C.R. (Eds.)

2001, XV, 285 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-4020-0130-7