

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Writing an academic book is a long process and it involves a lot of people. In this case the process started in the fall of 1992 when I began my graduate studies at the Department of Health and Society, at Linköping University, Sweden. These studies terminated in September 1998 when I successfully defended my PhD thesis. This thesis has since then been reworked and transformed into a slightly different and hopefully better book, the result of which you now hold in your hand.

In working on, and reworking, the manuscript I have had help from a great number of people. First and foremost I am grateful to Lennart Nordenfelt (my former tutor), Ingmar Pörn, Per-Erik Liss, Tommy Svensson, Nils Uddenberg and Bengt Brülde, all of whom at one point or another read and commented upon the entire manuscript.

A number of other people have read and commented upon parts of the manuscript. For this I would like to thank Bengt Erik Eriksson, Ingemar Nordin, Einar Jakobsson, Lennart Bryngelsson, Björn Smith and Claudine Tiercelin. I am also grateful to Bill Fulford, who on several occasions has welcomed me as a guest in London and at Warwick university.

Furthermore, I wish to acknowledge my great indebtedness to everyone in the philosophy group at Linköping university. I have benefited enormously from the inspiring and fruitful discussions in this group. My friends and colleagues Jan Hartman, Jan Perselli and Lukas Böök all deserve my gratitude for their friendship and their help in various ways through the years. Malcolm Forbes, Staffan Ahlin and Katarina Graah-Hagelbäck all helped me improve my written English. For this I am grateful, and I am also grateful to Staffan for proofreading the entire manuscript.

Finally, let me thank the two anonymous reviewers for valuable suggestions, and Anne Ultee (Publishing Editor) and Helen van der Stelt, both at Kluwer Academic Publishers, for their friendly help and patience when I was preparing the final manuscript.

Despite help with both form and content, I take sole responsibility for the remaining faults and errors.

I dedicate this book to my parents, Birgit and Per-Olof.
