

CONTENTS

PREFACE	xi
I THE IDEA OF A PARADIGM THEORY OF EXISTENCE	1
1. Between Existential Neutrality and Circularity	2
2. Existence Cannot Be a Concept	8
3. Are There Modes of Existence?	15
4. Contingency and Necessity as Modes of Existence	22
5. Need for a Unified Answer to the Nature and Ground Questions	24
6. Possibility of a Unified Positive Answer to the Two Questions	29
7. A Spectrum of Theories	30
II IS EXISTENCE A FIRST-LEVEL PROPERTY?	37
1. There Are No Nonexistent Objects	38
2. Argument One: Vicious Circularity of the Property View	42
3. Argument Two: External/Internal	48
4. Argument Three: Property-instances and Tropes	49
5. Argument Four: Essential/Accidental	49
6. Argument Five: Existence Too Basic to Be a Property	51
7. Argument Six: the Holism of Existence	53
8. Existence, Actuality, and Contingency	55
9. Existence and the 'Existential' Quantifier	57
10. The Etiology of Existence-blindness. Analytic Existentials?	62
III THE 'NO DIFFERENCE' THEORY	67
1. Eliminativism Versus Identitarianism	68
2. Refutation of the Identitarian Reading of the Theory	71
3. Brentano as an Eliminativist	72
4. Brentano's Argument	76
5. Brentano's Eliminativism Eliminated	80
6. The Eliminativism of Donald C. Williams Eliminated	81
7. Nonconstituent Ontology and Eliminativism	88
8. The Minor Existential Difference Vindicated	89
IV IS EXISTENCE A PROPERTY OF PROPERTIES?	93
1. Preliminaries	95
2. Three Grades of Strength of the Instantiation Theory	96
3. Existence, Satisfaction, and Instantiation	96
4. Existence and Exemplification: Identitarianism	97
5. Existence and Exemplification: Eliminativism	104
6. Frege's Theory of Existence	108

7. Untangling Plato's Beard	112
8. Nonexistence and Negative Existentials	114
9. Identitarian/Eliminativist Ambiguity in Quine	116
10. Conclusion	122
 V MONDIAL ATTRIBUTE THEORIES	 127
1. Sommers on Existence: Exposition	127
2. Sommers on Existence: Critique	132
3. Diagnosis of How Sommers Goes Wrong	149
4. Hartmann on Essence and Existence	151
 VI THE ONTOLOGY OF THE CONTINGENT EXISTENT	 159
1. A Solution via a Constituent Theory of Individuals	160
2. Facts versus Bundles	163
3. The Need for Truth-Makers	163
4. Truth-Makers as Concrete Facts	165
5. The Ostrich Realist's Rejection of Truth-Making Rejected	168
6. Rejection of Nonconstituent Realism	170
7. The Thin and the Thick Particular	176
8. Are There Uninstantiated Constituent Universals?	178
9. Are There Fact-Independent Thin Particulars?	181
10. Summary and Transition	186
11. Thin Particulars versus Aristotelian Substances	187
12. Two Objections to Constituent Ontology	189
13. Conclusion: Advantages of this Approach	191
 VII THE GROUND OF THE CONTINGENT EXISTENT	 195
1. Three Conceptions of Facts	196
2. Bradley's Problem	199
3. Is a Relation a Tertium Quid ?	201
4. Is Exemplification a Nonrelational Tie?	203
5. Is Exemplification a Nonrelational Nontie?	205
6. Does the Exemplification Relation Spawn a Regress?	206
7. Is the Exemplification Regress Benign? Armstrong	207
8. Is the Exemplification Regress Benign? McTaggart	209
9. Are Unifying Constituents Universals?	211
10. Does Relatedness Require Unifiers?	213
11. Are Properties Universals?	216
12. Are the Existence and Actuality of a Fact the Same?	223
13. Is the Unity of a Complex Contingent?	225
14. Summary and Transition	226
15. Are Facts Irreducible Entities? Hochberg	227

16. Are Facts Irreducible Entities? Olson	234
17. Are Facts Irreducible Entities? Armstrong	234
18. Dependence Vindicated	238
19. The Argument Summarized	239
 VIII THE PARADIGM EXISTENT	 249
1. One or Many?	249
2. Does the External Unifier Avoid Bradley's Regress?	250
3. The Unifier not a Castaneda Ontological Operator	254
4. The External Unifier as Mind	255
5. The External Unifier as Transcendental Mind?	256
6. The External Unifier as Necessarily Existent Mind	267
7. The Unifier as Self-Existent Existence	269
8. What is the Alternative?	269
 REFERENCES	 273
 INDEX	 279

<http://www.springer.com/978-1-4020-0887-0>

A Paradigm Theory of Existence

Onto-Theology Vindicated

Vallicella, W.F.

2002, XII, 286 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-4020-0887-0