

TABLE OF CONTENTS

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |    |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| INTRODUCTION                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | ix |
| PART 1: THEORETICAL AND METHODOLOGICAL APPROACHES TO SCIENCE EDUCATION RESEARCH                                                                                                                                                                                              | 1  |
| Millar Robin, Presidential Address: What can we reasonably expect of research in science education?                                                                                                                                                                          | 3  |
| Gil-Pérez Daniel, Constructivism in science education: The need for a clear line of demarcation                                                                                                                                                                              | 9  |
| White Richard, Fischer Hans, Stavridou Heleni, Overviews of the Research Presented at ESERA 2001                                                                                                                                                                             | 19 |
| Buck Peter, Goedhart Martin, Gräber Wolfgang, Kaper Wolter, Koballa Tom, Linder Cedric, Marton Ference, Schwedes Hannelore, Spiliotopoulou Vassiliki, Tsagliotis Nektarios, Vogelesang Michiel, On the methodology of 'phenomenography' as a science education research tool | 31 |
| Gutierrez Rufina, Conversation Theory and self-learning                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 43 |
| Jeannin Laurent, Analysis of video data of secondary school science students                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 51 |
| Helldén Gustav, Longitudinal studies - providing insight into individual themes in science learning and students' views of their own learning                                                                                                                                | 61 |
| Mortimer Eduardo, Flávia Maria Teixeira Santos, Changing referential perspective in science classroom discourse                                                                                                                                                              | 69 |
| PART 2: LEARNING AND UNDERSTANDING SCIENCE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 79 |
| Benke Gertraud, Stadler Helga, Students' positions in physics education. A gendered perspective                                                                                                                                                                              | 81 |
| Clément Pierre, Situated conceptions and obstacles. The example of digestion/excretion                                                                                                                                                                                       | 89 |
| Duprez Chantal, Méheut Martine, About some of the difficulties in learning Thermodynamics at the University Level                                                                                                                                                            | 99 |

|                                                                                                                                                                                            |     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Gonida Eleftheria, Kiosseoglou Grigoris, Psillos Dimitris, Metacognitive Experiences in the Domain of Physics: Developmental and Educational Aspects                                | 107 |
| Millar Robin, Kanari Zoe, How children reason from data to conclusions in practical science investigations                                                                          | 117 |
| Maurines Laurence, Mechanistic reasoning on the concept of wave surface, and on the Huygens principle                                                                               | 127 |
| Petri Jürgen, Niedderer Hans, Atomic Physics in Upper Secondary School: Layers of Conceptions in Individual Cognitive Structure                                                     | 137 |
| Pilatou Vassiliki, Stavridou Heleni, The electric current on its way to our house and the parallel connection of the electric appliances: primary students' (11-12) representations | 145 |
| Roth Jutta, Von Aufschnaiter Stefan, Detailed Investigation of Professional Physicists Solving Physics Tasks                                                                        | 155 |
| Prain Vaughan, Hand Brian, Yore Larry, Learning from writing in secondary science: A case study of students' composing strategies                                                   | 163 |
| Sormunen Kari, Hirvonen Pekka, Viiri Jouni, Seventh-grade pupils' epistemic views in the context of model-based instruction                                                         | 173 |
| Stamovlasis Dimitris, Tsaparlis Georgios, Nonlinear Analysis of the Effect of Working-Memory Capacity on Student Performance in Problem Solving                                     | 183 |
| Tytler Russell, Peterson Suzanne, The Nature Of Growth In Children's Science Understandings: Insights From A Longitudinal Study                                                     | 191 |
| Zoller Uri, HOCS Problem solving Vs. LOCS exercise solving: What do college science students prefer?                                                                                | 201 |
| PART 3 :TEACHING AND COMMUNICATING SCIENCE                                                                                                                                          | 209 |
| Sjøberg Svein, Science and Technology Education: A high priority political concern in Europe                                                                                        | 211 |
| Besson Ugo, Viennot Laurence, Lega Jacques, A mesoscopic model of liquids for teaching fluids statics                                                                               | 221 |
| Galili Igal, Lehavi Yaron, The importance of weightlessness and tides in teaching gravitation                                                                                       | 231 |

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Grace Marcus, Ratcliffe Mary, Making decisions about biological conservation issues in peer group discussion                                                                                                                                          | 241 |
| Jiménez Aleixandre M.P., Reigosa Castro C., Díaz de Bustamante J., Discourse in the laboratory: quality in argumentative and epistemic operations                                                                                                     | 249 |
| Kariotoglou Petros, Psillos Dimitris, Tselfes Vasilis., Modelling the evolution of teaching-learning sequences: From discovery to constructivism                                                                                                      | 259 |
| Komorek Michael, Stavrou Dimitrios, Duit Reinders, Nonlinear Physics in Upper Physics Classes: Educational Reconstruction as a Frame for Development and Research in a Study of Teaching and Learning Basic Ideas of Nonlinearity                     | 269 |
| Russel Terry, McGuigan Linda, Promoting Understanding through Representational Redescription: an exploration referring to young pupils' ideas about gravity                                                                                           | 277 |
| Simonneaux Laurence, Different types of classroom debates on biotechnology. Are these simply an exercise in rhetoric or do they encourage a well-founded critical attitude?                                                                           | 285 |
| PART 4: SCIENCE EDUCATION AND INFORMATION AND COMMUNICATION TECHNOLOGIES                                                                                                                                                                              | 295 |
| Linn Marcia WISE Research – Promoting International Collaboration                                                                                                                                                                                     | 297 |
| Niedderer Hans, Fischer Hans, Goldberg Fred, Jorde Doris, Hücke Lorenz, Valerie Otero, Sander Florian, Slotta Jim, Strømme Alex, Tiberghien Andrée, Vince Jacques, (symposium), Research about the use of information technology in science education | 309 |
| Bernhard Jonte, Physics Learning and Microcomputer Based Laboratory (MBL) — Learning effects of using MBL as a technological and as a cognitive tool                                                                                                  | 323 |
| Juuti Kalle, Lavonen Jari, Meisalo Veijo, Phenomenographical Approach to Design for a Hypertext Teacher's Guide to MBL                                                                                                                                | 333 |
| Kounatidou Chrisoula, Fassouloupoulos Georgios, Kariotoglou Petros, Application of a framework appropriate for a multilevel assessment of educational multimedia software in science (FEVES)                                                          | 343 |
| Mikropoulos Tassos, Brain Research in Science Education Research                                                                                                                                                                                      | 353 |

|                                                                                                                                                                                                            |     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Stylianidou Fani, Boohan Richard, Ogborn Jon, Computer modelling and simulation in science lessons: using research into teachers' transformations to inform training                                | 361 |
| PART 5: SCIENCE TEACHERS: KNOWLEDGE AND PRACTICES                                                                                                                                                   | 371 |
| De Jong Onno, Exploring science teachers' pedagogical content knowledge                                                                                                                             | 373 |
| Viennot Laurence, Relating research in didactics and actual teaching practice: impact and virtues of critical details                                                                               | 383 |
| Møller Andersen Annemarie, Dragsted Søren, Evans H. Robert & Sørensen Helene, Transforming the Standard Instrument for Assessing Science Teacher's Self-Efficacy Beliefs (STEBI) For Use in Denmark | 395 |
| Fisher Darrell, Waldrup Bruce, Teachers' confidence in primary science and teacher-student interactions                                                                                             | 405 |
| Halkia Krystallia, Teachers' views and attitudes towards the communication code and the rhetoric used in press science articles                                                                     | 415 |
| Vilches Amparo, Gil-Pérez Daniel, Edwards, M., Praia João, Science teachers' perceptions of the current situation of planetary emergency                                                            | 425 |
| PART 6: INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS                                                                                                                                             | 433 |
| Pintó Roser, A European Research Project for New Challenges in Science Teacher Training                                                                                                             | 435 |
| Beeth Michael, Duit Reinders, Prenzel Manfred, Ostermeier Christian, Tytler Russell, Wickman Per-Olof, Quality Development Projects in Science Education                                            | 447 |
| Duit Reinders, Fischler Helmut, Fischer Hans, Sumfleth Elke, Video-Based Studies on Investigating Deficiencies of School Science Teaching                                                           | 459 |
| AUTHORS INDEX                                                                                                                                                                                       | 471 |
| SUBJECT INDEX                                                                                                                                                                                       | 473 |

Science Education Research in the Knowledge-Based Society

Psillos, D.; Kariotoglou, P.; Tselfes, V.; Hatzikraniotis, E.;
Fassouloupoulos, G.; Kallery, M. (Eds.)

2003, XI, 481 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-4020-1412-3