

Contents

1	Human Chromosomes: Structural and Functional Aspects	1
	HEIDEMARIE NEITZEL AND MARC TRIMBORN
1.1	History of Chromosome Research	2
1.2	Composition and Compartmentalization of Human Chromosomes	4
1.3	The Human Karyotype and Clinical Cytogenetics	5
1.4	Cell Cycle and Chromosome Cycle	9
1.5	Shaping the Metaphase Chromosome	10
1.6	Cohesion and Condensins	11
1.7	DNA Repair	13
1.8	Mendelian Disorders Affecting Chromosome Integrity	14
1.8.1	Chromosome Instability Disorders	14
1.8.2	PCC Syndrome	15
1.8.3	Further Syndromes Affecting Structural Maintenance of the Chromosome	16
	References	17
2	DNA Lesions Induced by Ionizing Radiation	21
	CLEMENS VON SONNTAG
2.1	Introduction	21
2.2	Energy Deposition by Ionizing Radiation	23
2.3	Direct and Indirect Effect	24
2.4	Cerenkov Radiation	25
2.5	Hole and Electron Transfer Through DNA	25
2.6	Formation of Base Radicals	25
2.7	Base Damage	27
2.8	Single-Strand Breaks	30
2.9	Double Lesions	31
2.10	DNA–DNA Cross-Links	34
2.11	DNA–Protein Cross-Links	34
2.12	Clustered Lesions Beyond Double Lesions	34
2.13	Oxygen Effect and Chemical Repair	34
2.14	DNA Damage by UV-C and Ionizing Radiation – a Comparison	35
	References	36

3	Effects of Ultraviolet Radiation on DNA	39
	JÜRGEN KIEFER
3.1	Introduction	39
3.2	Primary Photoproducts in DNA	42
3.3	Action Spectra	44
3.4	Reversal and Repair of Primary Photoproducts	46
3.5	Cytological Effects	47
3.5.1	Chromosomal Aberrations	47
3.5.2	Micronuclei	49
3.5.3	Sister-Chromatid Exchanges	50
3.6	Conclusions	51
	References	51
4	Double Strand Break Repair Mechanisms in Mammalian Cells	55
	WOLFGANG GOEDECKE
4.1	Introduction	55
4.2	NHEJ Reaction	56
4.2.1	NHEJ Mechanism and Junction Formation	56
4.2.2	Proteins Involved in NHEJ	58
4.3	DSB Repair by HRR	59
4.3.1	HRR Mechanisms	61
4.3.2	Proteins Involved in HRR	61
4.4	Impaired DSB Repair and Chromosomal Aberrations	61
4.5	Fragile Sites Are Associated with DNA DSBs	62
4.6	Conclusions	63
	References	63
5	Backup Pathways of Nonhomologous End Joining May Have a Dominant Role in the Formation of Chromosome Aberrations	67
	GEORGE ILIAKIS, WENQI WU, MINLI WANG, GEORGIA I. TERZOUDI, AND GABRIEL E. PANTELAS
5.1	Introduction	67
5.2	Pathways of DSB Repair	69
5.2.1	Homology-Dependent Pathways of DSB Repair	70
5.2.2	Homology-Independent Pathways of DSB Repair	71
5.2.2.1	DNA-Dependent NHEJ	72
5.2.2.2	Backup NHEJ	75
5.3	Homology-Independent End Joining and Chromosome Aberration Formation	77
5.4	DSBs, NHEJ and Theories of Chromosome Aberration Formation	78
	References	83
6	Targeted and Non-Targeted Induction of Chromosomal Rearrangements After Exposure to Ionizing Radiation	87
	WILLIAM F. MORGAN AND MARIANNE B. SOWA
6.1	Introduction	87
6.2	Radiation-Induced Chromosomal Instability	88

6.3	The Death-Inducing Effect	90
6.4	Chromosomal Instability Induced by DIE Medium from Unstable Clones	93
6.5	A Role for Non-Targeted Bystander Effects in Radiation-Induced Chromosomal Instability	93
6.6	Implications of Non-Targeted Effects for Cytogenetic Biodosimetry	94
6.7	Conclusions	95
	References	95
7	DNA Methylation Damage: Formation, Repair and Biological Consequences	99
	MARKUS CHRISTMANN, WYNAND P. ROOS, AND BERND KAINA
7.1	Methylating Agents as Environmental Carcinogens	99
7.2	Anticancer Drugs	100
7.3	DNA Lesions, Sites of Attack	101
7.4	Repair of DNA Methylation Damage	104
7.4.1	Reversal Repair	104
7.4.1.1	Single-Step Repair by MGMT	104
7.4.1.2	DNA Damage Reversal by AlkB Homologues	104
7.4.2	Mismatch Repair	105
7.4.3	Base Excision Repair	106
7.5	Mechanism of Mutagenicity and Carcinogenicity	108
7.6	Mechanism of Cytotoxicity of Methylating Agents by Apoptosis	109
7.7	Mechanism of Formation of SCEs and Aberrations	111
7.7.1	Critical lesions	111
7.7.2	Involvement of MMR	112
7.7.3	Conversion Rates	113
7.7.4	Critical Role of Inhibition of Replication Fork Movement	114
	References	115
8	Adducts, Sister-Chromatid Exchanges and Mutations Following Benzo[a]pyrene Exposure: a Review of Quantitative Data Followed by Some Considerations Regarding Risk	123
	RINNE DE BONT AND NIK VAN LAREBEKE
8.1	Introduction	123
8.2	Methodological Approach	124
8.3	Results	125
8.3.1	Adducts	125
8.3.1.1	BaP Exposure in Vitro: Dose-Effect Relationship for Adduct Formation	125
8.3.1.2	Adducts in Vivo	127
8.3.1.3	BPDE Adducts Following BPDE Exposure	128
8.3.1.4	Human BaP Adducts in Vivo: Comparison with Endogenous Adducts	128
8.3.2	Sister-Chromatid Exchanges	130
8.3.3	Mutations	131

8.3.3.1	Mutations in Vivo in Animals Following BaP Exposure	131
8.3.3.2	Mutations in Vitro Following BaP Exposure	132
8.4	Discussion	132
8.4.1	Cancer Risk Associated with a Certain Level of BaP Adducts	134
8.4.2	Supralinear Dose–Effect Relationship	137
	References	138
9	Analysis of DNA Double-Strand Breaks by Means of γ-H2AX Foci	145
	IRENA SZUMIEL
9.1	Introduction	145
9.2	Histone H2AX	146
9.2.1	Histone H2AX Is Phosphorylated in Response to Induction of DNA Double-Strand Breaks	146
9.2.2	γ -H2AX Is Present in the Nuclear Foci	147
9.2.3	The Phosphatidylinositol 3-Kinase-Like Protein Kinases Are the Main Enzymes that Phosphorylate Histone H2AX	147
9.2.4	Megabase Chromatin Domains Alter Conformation After H2AX Phosphorylation	149
9.3	Repair and Checkpoint Factors Are Recruited into γ -H2AX Foci	149
9.4	Early DSB Rejoining Can Proceed Without Foci Formation	150
9.5	Foci May Be Present Long After DSB Are Rejoined	150
9.6	Practical Aspects of γ -H2AX Estimation	151
9.6.1	Foci Size and Phosphorylation Heterogeneity	152
9.6.2	γ -H2AX Foci Frequency As a Measure of Radiosensitivity	154
9.6.3	γ -H2AX Foci Size and Frequency Depending on Radiation Quality	157
9.7	Concluding Remarks	157
	References	158
10	Comet Assay	161
	WOLFGANG-ULRICH MÜLLER
10.1	Introduction	161
10.2	Method	162
10.2.1	Basic Aspects	162
10.2.2	Scoring of Comets	163
10.2.3	Methods Aimed at the Detection of Specific Types of DNA Damage	163
10.2.4	Problem of Standardization of Methods	165
10.2.5	Detection Limits	165
10.3	Factors That Might Affect the Outcome of Comet Analyses	166
10.3.1	Age	166
10.3.2	Gender	166

10.3.3	Smoking	167
10.3.4	Alcohol	167
10.3.5	Season	167
10.3.6	Physical Exercise	167
10.3.7	Environmental Exposures	167
10.4	Advantages/Disadvantages	168
10.5	Applications	169
10.5.1	Individual Radiosensitivity	170
10.5.2	Hypoxic Cells	170
10.5.3	Genotoxicity of Chemicals and Identification of Carcinogenic Substances	170
10.5.4	Predictor of Cancer Risk	170
10.5.5	Biomonitoring	171
10.5.6	Assessment of Exposure to Ionizing Radiation in Vivo	171
10.5.7	UV Damage	172
10.6	Final Remark	172
	References	172
11	Origin of Chromosome Aberrations: Mechanisms	177
	PETER E BRYANT
11.1	Introduction	177
11.2	Primary DNA Damage	179
11.3	Models of Chromosome Aberration Formation	181
11.3.1	The Breakage-First Model	181
11.3.2	The Molecular Misrecombination Model	185
11.3.3	The Transcription-Based Model	186
11.4	Models of Chromatid Aberration Formation	187
11.4.1	Formation and Disappearance of Chromatid Breaks	187
11.4.2	Models of Chromatid Breakage	189
11.4.3	The Revell 'Exchange' Model	190
11.4.4	The Misrecombination Model	192
11.4.5	The Signal Model	193
11.5	Conclusions	194
	References	194
12	Chromatin Structure and the Formation of Chromosomal Alterations	201
	GREGOR KRETH AND CHRISTOPH CREMER
12.1	Introduction	201
12.2	Modelling of Virtual Radiation Events	202
12.3	Modelling Results	203
12.4	Conclusions	207
	References	208

13	Role of Chromatin Structure and Activity in the Induction of Chromosomal Aberrations	211
	WILNER MARTÍNEZ-LÓPEZ, MARÍA VITTORIA DI TOMASO, LETICIA MÉNDEZ-ACUÑA, AND MARÍA MÜHLMANN
13.1	Introduction	211
13.2	Methodological Aspects	213
13.2.1	Localization of Radiation-Induced Breakpoints on CHO G-banded Chromosomes	213
13.2.2	Immunolabelling of CHO Acetylated H4 Histones and Densitometric Analysis	213
13.2.3	Etoposide and MMS Treatments on CHO Cells: Breakpoint Mapping on the CHO X Chromosome	214
13.2.4	Radiation Exposure of Human Cell Lines with Different Numbers of X Chromosomes	214
13.2.4.1	Fluorescence in Situ Hybridization	214
13.2.4.2	BrdUrd Incorporation and Immunolabelling	215
13.2.4.3	In Situ Nick Translation	215
13.3	Distribution of Chromosome Breakpoints in CHO Cells	215
13.3.1	Mapping of Radiation-Induced Breakpoints	215
13.3.2	Histone Acetylation Pattern and Clustering of Breakpoints	216
13.3.3	Distribution of Breakpoints Induced by Etoposide and MMS in the X Chromosome of CHO Cells	217
13.4	Chromosome Damage in Human Cell Lines with Multiple X Chromosomes	219
13.4.1	Replication Timing of Active and Inactive Human X Chromosomes	219
13.4.2	Nuclease Sensitivity of Human Metaphase Chromosomes	219
13.4.3	Chromosomal Aberrations Induced by γ -rays in Human X Chromosomes	221
13.5	Conclusion	221
	References	221
14	A Biomedical Perspective of Telomere Structure and Function	225
	MÁXIMO E. DRETS AND FEDERICO F. SANTINÁQUE
14.1	Introduction	225
14.2	The Complex Molecular Structure of the Terminal Chromosome Region	226
14.2.1	Telomeric DNA and Telomerase: Cell Senescence and Cancer	226
14.2.2	Telomeric Chromatin	227
14.3	Cryptic Subtelomeric Aberrations: Their Importance in Human Health	228
14.4	Light Microscope Methods for the Study of Telomere Structure	229

14.4.1	T-banding	229
14.4.2	Telomere Microdensitometric Scanning	230
14.4.3	Computer Graphics Image Processing	230
14.5	Microdensitometric Analysis of T-banded Human and CHO Chromosomes	231
14.5.1	Differential Distribution of the Highest Chromatin Densities Between Sister Telomeres	231
14.5.2	Minute Telomeric Sister-Chromatid Exchanges	233
14.6	Final Remarks	234
	References	235
15	Cytokinesis-Block Micronucleus Assay: a Comprehensive “Cytome” Approach for Measuring Chromosomal Instability, Mitotic Dysfunction and Cell Death Simultaneously in One Assay	241
	MICHAEL FENECH
15.1	Introduction	241
15.2	Nucleoplasmic Bridges	244
15.3	Nuclear Buds	246
15.4	Micronuclei, NPBs and Nuclear Buds Induced by Folic Acid Deficiency	248
15.5	Breakage–Fusion–Bridge Cycles Explain Micronuclei, NPBs and Nuclear Buds Induced by Folic Acid Deficiency	249
15.6	Micronucleus Formation Caused by Hypomethylation of Heterochromatin and Silencing of Cell Cycle Checkpoint Genes	251
15.7	Conclusion	252
	References	253
16	In Vivo Rodent Micronucleus Assay	257
	MAKOTO HAYASHI
16.1	Introduction	257
16.2	Historical Overview	259
16.3	The Rodent Micronucleus Assay for Evaluation of Chromosomal Aberration Induction of Agents	260
16.3.1	Rodent Bone Marrow Micronucleus Assay	261
16.3.2	Rodent Peripheral Blood Micronucleus Assay	261
16.4	The Micronucleus Assay Using Tissues Other Than Bone Marrow	263
16.4.1	Liver	263
16.4.2	Colon	264
16.4.3	Skin	264
16.4.4	Testes	265
16.5	Automation of the Micronucleus Assay	265
16.6	Multiple End Point Assays	266
	References	267

17 Sister-Chromatid Exchanges	271
ANDRZEJ WOJCIK AND GÜNTER OBE
17.1 Introduction	271
17.2 The Influence of BrdU on the Spontaneous SCE Level	273
17.3 BrdU As a Source of DNA Damage Leading to SCE Formation	275
17.4 The Influence of BrdU on the SCE Level Induced by Mutagenic Compounds	276
17.5 The Problem of “False” and “True” SCE	277
17.6 The Problem of Scoring SCEs in the Second Posttreatment Mitoses	279
17.7 Conclusions	280
References	280
18 Fluorescence in Situ Hybridisation	285
ILSE CHUDOBA
18.1 Introduction	285
18.2 The Different Classes of DNA Probes	286
18.3 Chromosome Painting Probes	287
18.4 FISH Probes Composed of Repetitive DNA Sequences	290
18.4.1 Centromere-Specific Probes	290
18.4.2 Telomere-Specific Probes	291
18.5 Locus-Specific Probes	291
18.6 Comparative Genomic Hybridisation and Array Comparative Genomic Hybridisation	292
18.7 Probe Labelling	293
18.7.1 Indirect Labelling	293
18.7.2 Direct Labelling	294
18.8 The Hybridisation Procedure	294
18.9 Applications	295
18.10 Conclusion	297
References	297
19 The CAB and S&S Systems, and an Approach Towards the Classification of Complex Chromosome Exchanges	301
JOHN R.K. SAVAGE
19.1 Introduction	301
19.2 Configuration Versus Pattern	302
19.3 The CAB System	304
19.4 The S&S System	305
19.5 mFISH Painting	306
19.6 The S&S Descriptor	309
19.7 Conclusions	313
References	313

20	Aberration Patterns and Cell Cycle Progression Following Exposure of Lymphocytes to the Alkylating Agent Trenimon	315
	URSULA VON RECKLINGHAUSEN, CHRISTIAN JOHANNES, LOTHAR RIEDEL, AND GÜNTER OBE
20.1	Introduction	315
20.2	Methods	316
20.2.1	Giemsa Staining	316
20.2.2	Multicolor Fluorescence in Situ Hybridization	317
20.2.3	Description of Aberration Types Analyzed	317
20.3	Results	319
20.3.1	Giemsa Staining	319
20.3.2	Multicolor Fluorescence in Situ Hybridization	320
20.3.3	Conclusions	322
	References	323
21	Cytogenetic Analysis and Occupational Health	325
	RADIM J. SRAM AND PAVEL RÖSSNER
21.1	Introduction	325
21.2	History	326
21.3	Standard Method	327
21.4	Chromosomal Aberrations and Maximum Allowable Concentrations	327
21.5	Cytogenetic Analysis and Public Health Practice	328
21.6	Examples of Occupational Exposures to Carcinogens	331
21.6.1	Chemical Industry	331
21.6.1.1	Bis(chloromethyl) Ether, Chloromethyl Methyl Ether	331
21.6.1.2	Epichlorohydrin	332
21.6.1.3	Vinyl Chloride Monomer	333
21.6.1.4	Petrochemical Industry	333
21.6.2	Mining	334
21.6.2.1	Ore Mining	334
21.6.2.2	Soft Coal Open-Cast Mining	334
21.6.2.3	Soft Coal Underground Mining	335
21.6.2.4	Uranium Mining	335
21.6.3	Health Care	335
21.6.3.1	Cytostatics	335
21.6.3.2	Halothane	336
21.6.3.3	Microbiology	336
21.7	Conclusions	336
	References	337
22	Biological Dosimetry	341
	GÜNTER STEPHAN, URSULA OESTREICHER, AND HORST ROMM
22.1	Introduction	341
22.2	Blood Sampling and Culture Conditions	342
22.3	Background Frequency of Asymmetrical and Symmetrical Chromosome Exchanges	343

22.4	Dose–Response Relationships	345
22.5	In Vitro and in Vivo Radiation-Induced Aberration Frequencies	347
22.6	Dicentric Chromosomes or Symmetrical Translocations for Dose Estimation	347
22.7	Summary	348
	References	349
23	Statistical Methods for Biological Dosimetry	351
	MARTA SZŁUŃSKA, ALAN A. EDWARDS AND DAVID C. LLOYD
23.1	Introduction	351
23.2	Statistical Approach	352
23.2.1	Dose Response Calibration Curves	353
23.2.2	Dose Assessment in Whole-Body Exposure	357
23.3	Examples of Dose Estimation	362
23.3.1	Criticality	362
23.3.2	Low Dose Overexposure	363
23.3.3	Partial Body Exposure	365
23.3.4	Protracted and Fractionated Exposure	367
23.4	Summary	368
	References	369
24	Retrospective Biological Dosimetry by FISH	371
	ALAN A. EDWARDS, DAVID C. LLOYD, AND MARTA SZŁUŃSKA,
24.1	Introduction	371
24.2	Method	372
24.3	Which Chromosomes To Paint?	372
24.4	What To Score	373
24.5	Control Levels	374
24.6	Persistence of Translocations	375
24.7	Calibration	376
24.8	Sensitivity	377
24.9	Conclusion	378
	References	378
25	Chromosomal Aberrations in Astronauts	381
	KERRY GEORGE AND MARCO DURANTE
25.1	Introduction	381
25.2	Measured Yields of Exchanges in the Peripheral Blood Lymphocytes of Astronauts	383
25.3	Biologically Based Risk Estimates	385
25.4	Cytogenetic Signatures of Space Radiation Exposure	387
25.5	Persistence of Space Radiation Induced Cytogenetic Damage	388
25.6	Methodology Considerations and Suggestions for Standardized Protocols	391
25.6.1	Collection of Chromosome Samples	391
25.6.2	Assessment of Chromosome Damage	392
25.6.3	Dose Limitations	393

25.6.4	Individual Sensitivity	393
25.6.6	Dose Estimations	394
25.6.7	Influence of Repeat Flights	394
25.7	Conclusions	395
	References	395
26	Internet Information System and Literature Database on Biomedical Activities of Electromagnetic Fields: Cancer and Cytogenetic Effects	397
	JIRI SILNY, ROMAN WIENERT, FRANK KLUBERTZ, AND SARAH DRIESSEN
26.1	Introduction	397
26.2	Classification of Publications	398
26.2.1	Physical Properties	398
26.2.2	Medical/Biological Discrimination	400
26.3	The EMF-Portal : Internet Information System on the Effects of Electromagnetic Fields	401
26.3.1	Literature Database – the Principal Item	402
26.3.2	How to Find a Publication?	402
26.3.3	An Example on the Subject of “Genotoxicity/ Cancer”	405
26.4	Discussion	408
	References	409
27	Interpreting Studies on Magnetic Fields and the Risk of Childhood Leukaemia: an Ongoing Challenge	411
	JOACHIM SCHÜZ AND TRACY LIGHTFOOT
27.1	Introduction	411
27.2	Leukaemia in Children	412
27.2.1	Description of Epidemiology and Biological Heterogeneity	412
27.2.2	Origins of Childhood Leukaemia	414
27.2.3	Aetiology of Childhood Leukaemia	416
27.3	Exposure to Magnetic Fields and the Risk of Childhood Leukaemia	418
27.3.1	Summary of the Epidemiological Findings	418
27.3.2	Interpreting the Empirical Association	419
27.3.2.1	Methodological Artefacts	419
27.3.2.2	Alternative Explanations	421
27.3.2.3	A Causal Link	421
27.4	Conclusions	422
	References	424
28	Cytogenetic and Carcinogenic Effects of Exposure to Radiofrequency Radiation	427
	JAMES P. MCNAMEE AND PASCALE V. BELLIER
28.1	Introduction	427
28.2	Challenges When Conducting RFR Research	429
28.3	Cytogenetic Effects of RFR	431

28.3.1	In Vitro Studies	431
28.3.2	In Vivo Studies	437
28.3.3	Human Studies	441
28.4	DNA Strand Breaks	445
28.4.1	In Vitro Studies	445
28.4.2	In Vivo Studies	448
28.5	Epigenetic Effects of RFR	452
28.6	Cancer Studies in Animals	454
28.7	Summary	464
	References	465
29	Radiofrequency Radiation and Replication Studies	471
	MARIA ROSARIA SCARFÌ AND FERDINANDO BERSANI
29.1	Introduction	471
29.2	DNA Strand Breaks	472
29.3	Micronucleus Test	473
29.4	Combination Studies – RFR and Other Mutagens	474
29.5	Discussion	476
	References	477
30	Chromosome Analysis in Cancer Patients: Applications and Limitations	479
	SIDDHARTH G. ADHVARYU
30.1	Introduction	479
30.2	Methods	480
30.3	Hematologic Cancers	481
30.3.1	Myeloid Neoplasms	482
30.3.2	Lymphoid Neoplasms	484
30.4	Solid Tumors	487
30.5	Molecular Cytogenetics	488
30.6	Future for Cytogenetics in Cancer Investigations	492
	References	492
31	Chromosomal Aberration in Peripheral Blood Lymphocytes of Healthy Subjects and Risk of Cancer	495
	STEFANO BONASSI
31.1	Biological Rationale	495
31.2	The Epidemiologic Approach	496
31.3	Literature Review of Cohort Studies Linking CA Frequency to the Risk of Cancer	497
31.4	Pooled Analysis of Published Data	499
31.5	Preliminary Results and Open Issues	502
31.6	Conclusion	503
	References	503
	Index	505

Chromosomal Alterations

Methods, Results and Importance in Human Health

Obe, G.; Vijayalaxmi (Eds.)

2007, XXIV, 515 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-540-71413-2