

Contents

- 1 Introduction 1
- Part I MT Past
- 2 Five Generations of MT 11
- 3 An Artificial Intelligence Approach to Machine Translation 27
- 4 It Works but How Far Can It Go: Evaluating the SYSTRAN
MT System 65
- Part II MT Present
- 5 Where Am I Coming From: The Reversibility of Analysis and Generation in Natural Language Processing 89
- 6 What are Interlinguas for MT: Natural Languages, Logics or Arbitrary Notations? 97
- 7 Stone Soup and the French Room: The Statistical Approach to MT
at IBM 101
- 8 The Revival of US Government MT Research in 1990..... 115

9	The Role of Linguistic Knowledge Resources in MT	125
10	The Automatic Acquisition of Lexicons for an MT System	139
Part III MT Future
11	Senses and Texts	157
12	Sense Projection	169
13	Lexical Tuning	177
14	What Would Pragmatics-Based Machine Translation be Like?	195
15	Where was MT at the End of the Century: What Works and What Doesn't?	215
16	The Future of MT in the New Millennium	225
	References	237
	Index	247

<http://www.springer.com/978-0-387-72773-8>

Machine Translation

Its Scope and Limits

Wilks, Y.

2009, X, 252 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-0-387-72773-8