

Contents

1	Hispanic Workers and the Employment-Based Welfare State . . .	1
	The Modern Welfare State . . . . .	2
	US Exceptionalism: A Limited Welfare State . . . . .	3
	Hispanics and the Retirement Wage . . . . .	5
	Falling Through the Cracks . . . . .	7
	Health Insurance Coverage . . . . .	10
	Public Program Participation . . . . .	11
	The Long-Term Consequences of Hispanic Exclusion . . . . .	13
2	The Latin Americanization of the US Labor Force . . . . .	17
	Multiculturalism and Diversity . . . . .	18
	Incorporation or Permanent Marginality? . . . . .	20
	Characteristics of the Hispanic Population . . . . .	21
	Pathways to Higher Education . . . . .	27
	Educational Barriers to the Professions . . . . .	30
	The Core Barrier to Group Mobility . . . . .	31
3	Parental Employment and Children’s Security . . . . .	35
	Economic Vulnerability and Children’s Well-Being . . . . .	36
	The Earned Income Tax Credit . . . . .	37
	Public Assistance Programs . . . . .	38
	Health Insurance: Medicaid and SCHIP . . . . .	40
	Private Employment-Based Health Coverage . . . . .	41
	The Future of Our Nation . . . . .	45
4	Employment and Benefits for Working-Age Hispanic Males . . . .	47
	Employment Characteristics . . . . .	48
	Retirement Coverage . . . . .	51
	Health Insurance . . . . .	52
	The Weakness of the Male Breadwinner . . . . .	57
	Trapped at the Bottom . . . . .	59
5	Family, Work, and Benefits for Hispanic Women . . . . .	61
	The Decline of the Family . . . . .	64
	Gender, Hispanic Ethnicity, and Access to Benefits . . . . .	66

Marriage as a Source of Benefit Coverage . . . . .	68
Employment as a Source of Benefit Coverage . . . . .	70
Work and Retirement Security . . . . .	70
Social Security . . . . .	72
Health Insurance . . . . .	73
Mother, Worker, and Still No Benefits . . . . .	73
The Rise of the Female Breadwinner . . . . .	76
6 Income and Health-Care Insecurity Among the Mexican-Origin Elderly . . . . .	79
Preretirement-Age Hispanics: Asset Poor . . . . .	82
Wealth . . . . .	83
Income . . . . .	86
Social Security . . . . .	88
Health Insurance . . . . .	89
The Lack of Medigap Coverage . . . . .	91
Long-Term Care . . . . .	94
Medicaid and Long-Term Care . . . . .	95
Information and Outreach for Older Adults . . . . .	98
Future Possibilities and Limitations . . . . .	99
7 Segmented Labor Markets, Segmented Lives: Hispanic Workers and the Employment-Based Welfare State . . . . .	101
The Need for a Comprehensive Welfare State . . . . .	102
Framing the Problem: A More Effective Public Discourse . . . . .	104
Framing a New Discourse of Inclusion . . . . .	106
Group Identity and Incorporation . . . . .	108
Civil Society, Multiculturalism, and Active Citizenship . . . . .	110
The Central Role of Higher Education . . . . .	111
Individual and Group Mobility, the Welfare State, and the American Future . . . . .	114
References . . . . .	117
Subject Index . . . . .	133

Hispanic Families at Risk

The New Economy, Work, and the Welfare State

Angel, R.J.; Angel, J.L.

2009, XIV, 138 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-4419-0473-7