

Contents

Part I Big picture and Examples

1 Charting the Conceptual Space	3
The ‘Mobile Complex’	3
Focus on Socio-cultural Conditions, Avoidance of Technological Fetishisation	4
‘Mobile’ Learning	4
Definitional Bases and Key Characteristics	4
Some Important Characteristics of Mobile Devices	7
Opportunities and Challenges for Mobile Learning	9
The Need for a Coherent Theoretical/Conceptual
Frame for the Field	10
Building a Larger Frame for Understanding	10
Education in the Context of Societal and Cultural Transformations	11
A World Marked by Provisionality	11
‘Participatory Culture’: the Significance of Mobile Devices in the Life-Worlds of Users	13
Outside in and Inside Out	13
From Distinct Media to Ensembles of Cultural Resources	14
The Social Construction of Culture, Child Development
and Learning as Appropriation in ‘Responsive’ Contexts	18
Life-Worlds, Social Fragmentation and the Habitus
of At-Risk Learners	20
Key Implications of Societal and Cultural Transformations
for Learning with Mobile Devices	22
An Overview of the Socio-cultural Ecology:
Agency – Cultural Practices – Structures	25
Overview of the Structure of the Book	26
2 Mobile Learning: A Topography	29
Introduction	29
A Brief ‘History’ of Mobile Learning	30
The First Phase of Mobile Learning: A Focus on Devices	30

The Second Phase of Mobile Learning: A Focus on Learning Outside the Classroom	34
Third Phase: A Focus on the Mobility of the Learner	41
Interim Summary	50
Specialist Conferences and Events	50
mLearn	50
IADIS Mobile Learning	52
Handheld Learning	52
Budapest Mobile Learning Conference Series	53
WMTE	53
Professional Association	53
International Association for Mobile Learning (IAMLearn)	53
Organisations with a Particular Interest in Mobile Learning	54
WLE Centre: Mobile Learning Symposia and the London Mobile Learning Group (LMLG)	54
Futurelab	55
Becta	55
Kaleidoscope	56
G1:1	56
Specialist Journals	57
IJMBL	57
IJMLO	57
IJIM	57
Special Issues on Mobile Learning	57
Key Issues in Mobile Learning	58
Development for Educational Professionals and Mobile Learning	58
Public, Personal and Intimate Spaces and Ethical Considerations	60
Learner-Generated Contexts	62
Augmented Reality	65
Affective and Motivational Factors	66
Interface Between Learning in Informal and Formal Settings	67
Mobile Learning and Design Issues	68
Researching Mobile Learning	71
3 Mobile Devices as Resources for Learning: Adoption
Trends, Characteristics, Constraints and Challenges	73
Introduction	73
Adoption Trends of Mobile Devices and Services	74
The Global and National Figures and Potential for Learning	74
Mobile Access Trends and Patterns of Usage	75
Trends in Any Where, Any Time, Any Device Learning	77
Characteristics and Functions of Mobile Devices	77
Constraints and Challenges	79
Children and Mobile/Cell Phones	79
Opportunities to use Public Services	81

Democratic Opportunities	82
Ambient Wireless Devices and Health and Learning Needs, Opportunities and Issues	83
Social Opportunities	84
Digital Divide Among Citizens	87
Security and Privacy Concerns are Growing	88
Txt Spk and New Literacies	89
Conclusions	93
4 Cases of Mobile Learning	95
Methodology of the Project Analysis	95
Selection and Description of Case Studies and Framework for Comparative Analysis	95
How, and on the Basis of What Data the Cases were Compiled . .	97
How, and on the Basis of What Data the Structure was Compiled .	99
Analysis Framework	100
Discussion of the Process of Project Selection and the Criteria for Project Analysis	102
Cases	105
Project 'Handy'	105
Project 'Learning Lab Initiative'	117
Cyrril	134
Synoptic Analysis	149
Two Didactic Approaches and Ways of Integrating Mobile Media in Schools	149
Protecting Learners vs. Challenging Learners	149
Mobile Learning Between Narrow and Teacher-Led Use and Constructivist and Open Settings	150
The Didactic Design is Determining the Way Mobile Learning is Realised	151
Capturing Situations or Generating Contexts? From Ad-hoc Usage to 'Delayed' Use	151
Re-contextualisation and Situated Negotiation: Determined Use or Free Space?	152
Mobile Devices and Convergent Media Allow for Learners to Examine and Establish Structures to Construct Their Own and Individualised Learning Spaces	152
5 Whither a Socio-Cultural Ecology of Learning with Mobile Devices	155
Introduction	155
Activity Theory	157
Conversation and Discursive Appropriation as Contextual and Reflexive Activity	160
Continuity of Learning Activities Between and Across Contexts . . .	163
Activity Theory: A Critical Perspective	164

Learning and Meaning-Making as Subject-Centred and Context-Related Cultural Practice	166
Ecological Approaches to (Mobile) Learning	167
Participative, Interactive, Situated and Contextual Learning	169
Summary and Outlook	171

Part II Mobile Devices as Resources for Learning: A Socio-Cultural Ecological Analysis of the Mobile Complex

6 Analysing the Mobile Complex for Education: Key Concepts . . .	175
Appropriation	179
Learning Resources	180
Redefinition and Recognition of Learning	181
Conversational Integration and Contextual Zones of Development . .	182
Participation	183
The Culture Ecological Framework	184
7 A Social Semiotic Analysis of Mobile Devices:
Interrelations of Technology and Social Habitus	185
A Social Semiotic 'Take' on Technology	185
The Affordances of Smartphones: A Social Semiotic Analysis	187
Affordances of the Hardware	188
The Software Affordances	191
The Functionalities	193
Implications	200
Foregrounded and Backgrounded Capacities	200
Affordances for a Changed Social Habitus	201
Open Questions: Gains and Losses	202
8 The Mobile Complex, Socialization and Learning Resources	205
Introduction	205
Everyday Life with Mobile Devices, Socialization and Critical Mobile Literacy	205
Normalisation in Everyday Life	206
Socialisation Effects of Multimedia and Multimodal Communication	207
Socialisation Effects of Ubiquity and Mobile Identity	210
Educational Responses and Answers	212
The Mobile Complex Within Socio-Cultural Developments	214
The Triangle Model of Socio-Cultural Development	215
Educationally Relevant Features Within the Mobile Complex . . .	216

9	Appropriation and Learning	223
	Introduction	223
	Appropriation: Personal Development and the Internalization of Cultural Products	225
	Internalization, Environment and Development	225
	‘Zones’ Revisited: Responsive Contexts for Development	226
	Cultural Products and Child Development	227
	Mobile Devices, Media and Mass Communication	232
	Models of Mass Communication	232
	Complex Patterns of Media Activities and Increasing Individualisation	235
	Learning in Contexts and Supported by Conversations	242
	Culturally Situated Learning Towards User-Generated Contexts	242
	Learning Resources and Conversational Integration	245
10	At-Risk Learners: Their Contextual and Conversational Options	249
	Introduction	249
	Case Analysis of a Provocative Mobile Video	250
	The Mobile Video, Responsive Contexts of Development and Conversational Threads	252
	Uploaded Content and Its Conversational Options	259
	Habitus, Socio-Cultural Milieu and Learning	264
	The Hedonistic Milieu	264
	The Socio-Cultural Background of At-Risk Learners	266
	Outlook	271
11	User-Generated Content and Contexts: An Educational Perspective	273
	Introduction	273
	The Situated Character of Mobile Media and Learning Contexts	274
	Flexibility of Contexts, Specificity for Mobile Learning	278
	User-Generated Content and Individualized Knowledge Building	280
	Individualised Knowledge of Native Experts	283
	Assimilation of Mobile/Cell Phones and User-Generated Contexts	287
	An Analysis of Reflexive Context Awareness	290
	Mobile/Cell Phones: From Everyday Life to School Learning	293
12	Four Didactic Parameters for Analysis and Planning	297
	Four Didactic Parameters: An Introduction	297
	Using the Four Parameters as a Tool for Analysis	299
	Wireless Internet Learning Devices – WILD	299
	Raising Attainment in Literacy with Parental Involvement	302
	From Analysis to Planning	303
	Parameter A: Learning Set	305

Parameter B: Relationship to the Object of Learning	306
Parameter C: Institutional Emphasis on Expertise	306
Parameter D: Media and Modes of Representation	307
Implications for Teacher Support and Development	309
Summary	311
Part III Perspectives for Mobile Learning
13 Setting the Scene	315
14 Emerging Technologies and Attendant Practices	319
Introduction	319
Adoption Horizons for Key Emerging Technologies	319
Computing Off the Desktop: Going Small, Large, Everywhere and Getting Interactive	321
Emerging Infrastructures and Devices: Engaging with Interdisciplinary Discourse	325
Context-Sensitive Learning	333
Social Operating Systems	334
How Ubiquitous Do You Want It?	335
Ethical Considerations and Suspensions	336
Bridging the Digital Divide at the Policy Level	336
Conclusions	337
15 Visions and Suspensions	339
Introduction	339
Getting Beyond ‘Being Critical’	339
The Issue of ‘Recognition’: The Education System and Prevailing Social/Cultural Transformations	341
Learning and Life-Worlds: Environments of Learning	342
Participation, Social Divides and Cultural Resources	344
‘Situating Learning’ and New Practices of Learning	345
Context Awareness	345
Key Readings	347
References	359
Index	379

Mobile Learning

Structures, Agency, Practices

Pachler, N.; Bachmair, B.; Cook, J. - Kress, G. (Ed.)

2010, XXII, 382 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-4419-0584-0