

Contents

- Introduction ..... 1
Ulrich J. Frey, Charlotte Störmer, and Kai P. Willführ
- 1 Our Origins: How and Why We Do and Do Not Differ from Primates 5
Peter Kappeler
  - 1.1 Introduction ..... 6
  - 1.2 Why Humans Do Not Differ from Primates ..... 7
  - 1.3 How Humans Do Not Differ from Primates ..... 10
  - 1.4 How Humans Do Differ from Primates ..... 11
  - 1.5 Why Humans Do Differ from Primates ..... 12
- 2 Our Children: Parental Decisions — How Much to Invest in Your Offspring ..... 17
Mary K. Shenk
  - 2.1 Introduction to Parental Investment Theory ..... 17
  - 2.2 Life History Theory and Tradeoffs ..... 19
    - 2.2.1 Current vs. Future Reproduction ..... 19
    - 2.2.2 Quantity vs. Quality ..... 20
  - 2.3 Who Invests: Mothers, Fathers, Grandmothers, and Others ..... 23
    - 2.3.1 Mothers and Fathers ..... 23
    - 2.3.2 Grandmothers and Others ..... 25
    - 2.3.3 Are Humans Cooperative Breeders? ..... 26
  - 2.4 Parent–Offspring and Sibling Conflicts ..... 27
    - 2.4.1 Infanticide and Neglect ..... 27
    - 2.4.2 Differential Investment and Inheritance ..... 29
  - 2.5 Sons vs. Daughters: Sex Biases in Parental Investment ..... 30
    - 2.5.1 The Trivers–Willard Effect ..... 30
    - 2.5.2 Local Resource Competition and Enhancement ..... 31
    - 2.5.3 Marriage Payments as Sex-Biased Parental Investment .. 32
  - 2.6 Conclusions ..... 33

|          |                                                                                                            |           |
|----------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| 3 | Our Social Roots: How Local Ecology Shapes Our Social Structures .                                  | 39 |
|          | Ruth Mace                                                                                                  |           |
| 3.1      | Adaptation and Maladaptation . . . . .                                                                     | 39        |
| 3.2      | Testing Hypotheses About Adaptation in Human Cultural Behavior Through Cross-Cultural Comparison . . . . . | 42        |
| 3.2.1    | Ecological Correlates of Human Social Behavior . . . . .                                                   | 42        |
| 3.2.2    | How Social Behavior is Adapted to Subsistence Strategies . . . . .                                         | 44        |
| 3.2.3    | Cultural Phylogenetics . . . . .                                                                           | 45        |
| 3.2.4    | Transmission of Traits from Mother to Daughter Cultures . . . . .                                          | 50        |
| 3.3      | Conclusions . . . . .                                                                                      | 52        |
| 4 | Our Selections and Decisions: Inherent Features of the Nervous System? . . . . .                    | 55 |
|          | Frank Rösler                                                                                               |           |
| 4.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                                                                     | 55        |
| 4.2      | Some Thoughts About Selection–Decision Architectures . . . . .                                             | 58        |
| 4.3      | Switching/Decision/Negotiation Modules . . . . .                                                           | 62        |
| 4.3.1    | Features of Conflict Negotiation Modules . . . . .                                                         | 62        |
| 4.3.2    | Evidence for Conflict-Negotiating Modules . . . . .                                                        | 63        |
| 4.4      | Representation of Decision-Related Intervening Variables . . . . .                                         | 65        |
| 4.4.1    | BOLD Responses in Humans . . . . .                                                                         | 66        |
| 4.4.2    | Single Cell Responses in Animals . . . . .                                                                 | 68        |
| 4.5      | Summary and Some Implications . . . . .                                                                    | 70        |
| 4.5.1    | Distributed Networks and Complex Interactions . . . . .                                                    | 70        |
| 4.5.2    | Nomothetic vs. Idiographic Descriptions . . . . .                                                          | 71        |
| 5 | Our Gods: Variation in Supernatural Minds . . . . .                                                 | 77 |
|          | Benjamin G. Purzycki and Richard Sosis                                                                     |           |
| 5.1      | Introduction . . . . .                                                                                     | 77        |
| 5.2      | Representing Supernatural Minds . . . . .                                                                  | 78        |
| 5.2.1    | The Mindreading System and Attributed Domains . . . . .                                                    | 78        |
| 5.2.2    | Supernatural Minds, Variation, and Counterintuitiveness . . . . .                                          | 80        |
| 5.3      | Variation in Domains of Supernatural Agents' Knowledge and Concern . . . . .                               | 84        |
| 5.3.1    | Omniscience with Heightened Concern: Prosocial Behavior . . . . .                                          | 84        |
| 5.3.2    | Imperfect Access with Acute Concern: Ritual Behavior . . . . .                                             | 85        |
| 5.3.3    | Emphases on Faith, Practice, and Social Complexity . . . . .                                               | 87        |
| 5.4      | Conclusion . . . . .                                                                                       | 89        |
| 6 | Our Preferences: Why We Like What We Like . . . . .                                                 | 95 |
|          | Karl Grammer and Elisabeth Oberzaucher                                                                     |           |
| 6.1      | Darwin's Problem . . . . .                                                                                 | 96        |
| 6.2      | Evolutionary Constraints on Aesthetic Perception: The Body as an Evolved Form . . . . .                    | 98        |
| 6.3      | The Eight Pillars of Beauty . . . . .                                                                      | 100       |

|          |                                                                                                                       |            |
|----------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 6.4      | Alternative Views: Neuroaesthetics .....                                                                              | 103        |
| 6.5      | Alternative Views: The Evolutionary Psychology of Ugliness ....                                                       | 104        |
| 6.6      | The Future of the Adapted Mind .....                                                                                  | 105        |
| 7 | Our Appetite for Information: Invented Environment,Non-Transparent Mind, and Evolved Preferences .....    | 109 |
|          | Matthias Uhl                                                                                                          |            |
| 7.1      | Introduction .....                                                                                                    | 109        |
| 7.2      | Old Cognition, New Playgrounds, and the Technological Fallacy .                                                       | 110        |
| 7.3      | We Don't Know that We Don't Know How We Perceive Media ...                                                            | 112        |
| 7.4      | Still the Same Old Cues .....                                                                                         | 115        |
| 7.5      | Reality and Media: The Boundary that Never Was .....                                                                  | 117        |
| 7.6      | The Old Stories Are the Best .....                                                                                    | 118        |
| 7.7      | Conclusion .....                                                                                                      | 120        |
| 8 | Our Best Shot at Truth: Why Humans Evolved MathematicalAbilities .....                                    | 123 |
|          | Niklas Krebs                                                                                                          |            |
| 8.1      | Introduction .....                                                                                                    | 123        |
| 8.2      | The Mathematical Abilities of Modern Humans .....                                                                     | 124        |
|          | 8.2.1 Number Sense .....                                                                                              | 124        |
|          | 8.2.2 Number Processing .....                                                                                         | 126        |
|          | 8.2.3 Mathematical Thinking in Terms of Relations .....                                                               | 127        |
| 8.3      | Evolutionary Origins of the Mathematical Abilitiesof Modern Humans .....                                          | 129        |
|          | 8.3.1 Evolutionary Origins of Number Sense .....                                                                      | 129        |
|          | 8.3.2 Evolutionary Origins of Number Processing .....                                                                 | 130        |
|          | 8.3.3 Evolutionary Origins of Mathematical Thinkingin Terms of Relations .....                                    | 133        |
| 8.4      | Discussion: The Mathematical Nature of Modern Humans .....                                                            | 136        |
| 9 | Our Way to Understand the World: Darwin's ControversialInheritance .....                                  | 143 |
|          | Michael Schmidt-Salomon                                                                                               |            |
| 9.1      | Knowing Instead of Believing: Why the Theory of Evolutionand Traditional Forms of Belief Are Irreconcilable ..... | 143        |
| 9.2      | Errors and Misunderstandings: The Theory of Evolutionand the Ghost of Biologism .....                             | 149        |
| 9.3      | Huxley's Synthesis: How Evolutionary HumanismComes into Darwin's Inheritance .....                                | 152        |
|          | Index .....                                                                                                    | 157 |

Essential Building Blocks of Human Nature

Frey, U.; Störmer, C.; Willführ, K.P. (Eds.)

2011, XIV, 159 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-642-13967-3