

Contents

Part I	Introductory Essays	1
1	Concepts and Considerations	3
	Contextual Analysis	3
	Spurious Correlations	6
	Chains of Relationships	8
	Contextual Analysis and Multilevel Models	10
	Notions of Causality	10
	Stable Association and Potential Outcomes	12
	Stable Association	12
	Potential Outcomes	13
	Causal Effects of Attributes	13
	Dependency Networks	14
	Graphical Models	14
	Association Graphs	15
	Generative Processes	15
	Econometric Models in Policy Research	16
	Uses for Multilevel Models	16
	Contextual Studies	16
	Evaluative Research	18
	Research Summaries	19
	Conclusion	19
	Endnotes	20
2	Contextual Analysis and Multilevel Models	23
	The Academic Mind	24
	Apprehension and Its Correlates	24
	Assessing Permissiveness	26
	Institutional Incidents	27
	Conclusion and Implications	30

Notions of Causality.....	31
Multilevel Models.....	32
Endnotes.....	33
3 Stable Association and Potential Outcomes	35
Stable Association	36
Classic Causality	36
Causality as Robust Dependence	37
Potential Outcomes	40
Causality as an Effect of an Intervention	41
Causal Models for Attributes.....	43
Endnotes.....	55
4 Dependency Networks.....	59
Graphical Models	59
Strategy.....	60
Results	62
Interpretive Graphs.....	62
Interpretive Edge Matrices.....	67
Association Graphs for Loglinear Models.....	69
The Cross-Tabulated Variables	69
A Loglinear Model.....	71
Association Graphs.....	71
Generative Mechanisms.....	74
Consideration of Use	76
A Generative Process Model.....	78
Correlations or Multivariate Dependencies?.....	83
A Test of the Basic Model	85
Decomposition of Effects	87
Causality in Policy Research	89
Theoretical Models Are Necessary	91
The Experimental Paradigm	92
Limitations of the Experimental Paradigm	93
Heckman's Paradigm.....	94
Structural Economic Models.....	94
Conclusions	96
Endnotes.....	96
5 Uses for Multilevel Models.....	103
Contextual Studies	104
Clustered Macrolevel Units	104
Significance of a Level-2 Variance	106

Accounting for a Level-2 Variance by Classifying the Levels of the Random Variable	109
Counts of Events	111
Clustered Microlevel Units	113
Macro and Micro Explanatory Variables	114
Evaluative Research	116
Estimating Treatment Effects in Difference-in-Differences Designs	116
Borrowing Strength	117
Using Propensity Scores to Reduce Bias	117
Research Summaries	119
Meta-analysis	119
Evidence for Causal Inferences	120
Endnotes	122
 Part II Contextual Studies	 125
 6 Contexts and Covariates	 127
Global Human Development	128
The Social Problem	128
Theory	129
Study Design	129
Measures	130
Results	130
Policy Implications	131
A Globalized Conflict	131
The Social Problem	131
Theory	132
Study Design	132
Measures	133
Results	133
Policy Implications	134
Will Claims Workers Dislike a Fraud Detector?	135
The Social Problem	135
Theory	135
Study Design	135
Measures	136
Results	136
Policy Implications	137
 7 Global Human Development	 139
Literature Review and Hypotheses	140
Civilizations	140
Instrumental Factors and Substantive Freedoms	141

Research Methods.....	143
The Multilevel Study Design	143
Measures.....	144
Statistical Methods.....	151
Weights, Bonferroni Adjustments, BIC, and R^2	151
The Variance Components Model	152
Descriptive and Explanatory Models	153
Results.....	156
Descriptive Models of HDI Rank.....	156
Explanatory Models of HDI Rank	160
Tests and Replications Using Index Scores.....	167
Discussion.....	172
Summary	172
Interpretation of Explanatory Effects	173
The Role of Civilization Zones	174
Policy Implications.....	176
Endnotes.....	177
8 A Globalized Conflict.....	181
Prior Theory and Research.....	183
Population Characteristics.....	184
Mobilization.....	185
Bystander Unresponsiveness to Crimes.....	187
Ambivalence.....	188
Exploring the Data	189
Jewish and Muslim Populations.....	190
Antisemitic Attitudes.....	192
Israel and the Palestinians.....	194
Assumptions about the Counts of Violence.....	196
Who Are the Perpetrators?.....	199
Developing and Testing Models.....	201
Study Design	201
The Poisson Model.....	202
Fit Statistics	204
Creating the Mobilization Model	208
What Factors Foster the Violence?	211
Parameter Study of Belgium's Violence Counts	216
Replication of the Main Analysis.....	217
Discussion.....	219
Summary	219
Implications	220
Policy Recommendations	220
Endnotes.....	221

9 Will Claims Workers Dislike a Fraud Detector?	225
New Contributions	226
Hypotheses	226
Method	227
Study Design	227
The Data	228
Measures	229
Statistical Models	235
Results	236
Model 1—The Baseline Unconditional Means Model	236
Model 2—Adding Two Fixed Level-1 Covariates	239
Model 3a Through 3d—Adding One Office-Level
Fixed Classificatory Variable	240
Model 4—All Variables Fixed, Three Office Contexts	244
Model 5—All Variables Fixed, Four Office Contexts	245
The Effect of Sample Size on Hypothesis 4	246
Discussion	248
Summary	248
Interpretations	248
Generalizations	249
Recommendations	250
Endnotes	251
 Part III Evaluative Research	 257
10 Cause and Consequences	259
A Pressing Social Problem: Student Achievement and Schools	260
Four Types of Policy Orientations	261
Co-nect's Theoretical Model of Comprehensive
School Reform	264
The Basic DID Design	265
Binary (0,1) Indicators	266
An Econometric Formalization	268
Other Assumptions	269
Evaluations of Comprehensive School Reform	270
Target, Matched, and Not-Matched Schools	270
Using Propensity Scores	274
Policy Implications	278
Endnotes	278
 11 Target, Matched, and Not-Matched Schools	 283
New Contributions	283
The Setting of the Study	284

What Did the Consultants Do?	286
Methods	287
Previous Studies	287
The DID Design	288
Repeated Measures	290
The Covariates	291
Statistical Models	292
Selecting Covariance Structures	298
Corrections for Multiplicity	309
Effect Sizes	310
Results	311
Overall School Performance	312
Third Grade Achievement	315
Fifth Grade Achievement	317
Discussion	319
Summary	319
Implications	320
Appendix	324
Endnotes	328
12 Using Propensity Scores	331
New Contributions	332
The Setting of the Study	332
Aspects of the Schools	333
Aspects of the Reforms	335
Possible Impacts of the Reforms	336
Conjectures	337
Methods	338
The Difference-In-Differences (DID) Design	339
Propensity Scores	341
The Repeated Measures	346
The Multilevel Models	347
Covariance Structures	349
Treatment Effects	357
The Results	364
Reading Tests	365
Mathematics Tests	366
Average of Reading and Mathematics Tests	367
Fourth Grade Writing	369
Multiplicity and Composite Effects	370
Discussion	375
Summary	375
Policy Implications	375
Endnotes	376

Part IV Research Summaries	381
13 Consolidations and Critiques	383
Problems of Health Care	384
The Uninsured	384
Medical Costs	386
Quality of Care	386
Policy Orientations and Reform Plans	387
President Obama's Plan	389
Cost Savings	390
The Subsequent Chapters	391
Gatekeepers and Sentinels	392
Childhood Vaccinations and Autism	394
Gauging Causality in Multilevel Models	396
Endnotes	396
14 Gatekeepers and Sentinels	399
Program Characteristics	400
New Contributions	400
Preauthorization Review	400
Concurrent Review	401
Research Methods	401
Study Characteristics	402
Statistics	407
Results	411
Effects of Precertification	412
Effects of Onsite Concurrent Review	415
Discussion	421
Summary of Findings	421
Interpretation of Findings: Gatekeepers and Sentinels	426
Generalization of Findings	427
Endnotes	428
15 Childhood Vaccinations and Autism	431
The MMR-Autism Controversy in Britain	432
The Vaccination–Autism Controversy in the USA	434
Methods for Reviewing Evidence	437
The Cochrane Collaboration's Meta-Analytic Approach	438
The Institute of Medicine's Bayesian Approach	440
Endnotes	448
16 Gauging Causality in Multilevel Models	451
Zones of Causal Notions	452
Two Meanings of Non-Causality	452

Stable Association	454
Potential Outcomes	454
Dependency Networks	455
Causality Zones of the Contextual Studies	456
Chapter 2, Contextual Analysis and Multilevel Models	456
Chapter 7, Global Human Development	457
Chapter 8, A Globalized Conflict	460
Chapter 9, Will Claims Workers Dislike a Fraud Detector?	464
Causality Zones of the Evaluative Research	467
Chapter 11, Target, Matched, and Not-Matched Schools	467
Chapter 12, Using Propensity Scores	472
Causality Zone of the Research Summaries	477
Chapter 14, Gatekeepers and Sentinels	477
Implications	481
Endnotes	483
Glossary	485
References	501
Index	521

<http://www.springer.com/978-90-481-9854-2>

Multilevel Modeling of Social Problems

A Causal Perspective

Smith, R.B.

2011, XXXIX, 535 p. With online files/update., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-90-481-9854-2