

Contents

Introduction	xi
1 From the Anticipations of Perception to the Dynamic
Conception of Matter.....	1
1.1 Anticipation as A Priori Knowledge	1
1.2 Perception and Sensation	5
1.3 The Strangeness of the ‘Anticipations’	7
1.4 The Quantity of Quality: Degree or Intensive Magnitude	9
1.5 The Two Formulations of the Principle	16
1.6 The Category of Reality.....	19
1.7 The Distinction Between Realitas Phaenomenon and Realitas Noumenon.....	23
1.8 The Critique of the Concept of Gradus Perfectionis	26
1.9 From the Ontological Meaning to the Physical Meaning of the Concept of Degree	28
1.10 Force and Sensation	30
1.11 The Dynamic Conception of Matter.....	34
2 From Real Opposition to the Problem of Change	41
2.1 Logical Opposition and Real Opposition	41
2.2 Quantitative and Qualitative Opposition.....	50
2.3 The Problem of Change.....	52
2.4 Change and Real Opposition	54
2.5 Change as Quantitative Variation.....	57
2.6 Maimon’s Theory of Differentials	59
2.7 Change and Synthetic Unity	66
3 The Anticipations of Perception in Post-Kantian Idealism.....	71
3.1 Fichte and the Opposition Between the I and the Not–I	71
3.2 Schelling and the Philosophy of Nature	82
3.3 The Problem of Quality and the Opposition between Positive and Negative.....	100

3.4	Speculative Philosophy of Nature and Mathematical Philosophy of Nature.....	109
3.5	The Absolute as Quantitative Indifference.....	119
3.6	Hegel and the “Mathematics of the Infinite”.....	124
3.7	Being, Nothingness, and Becoming.....	144
3.8	Herbart and Being as Pure Affirmation.....	150
4	The Anticipations of Perception in Neo-Kantian Idealism	157
4.1	From Classical Idealism to the Return to Kant.....	157
4.2	From Psychophysics to Infinitesimal Calculus.....	162
4.3	Cohen and the History of the Infinitesimal Method.....	178
4.4	Intensive Magnitude and Infinitesimal Magnitude.....	198
4.5	From Synthesis A Priori to the Logic of the Origin.....	202
4.6	From the Logic of the Origin to the Logic of the Concept of Relation	207
4.7	Concept of Thing and Concept of Function.....	216
4.8	Ontological Interpretations of Kant and the Crisis of the Neo-Kantian Hermeneutic Paradigm.....	221
	Conclusion	231
	Works Cited	235
	Index.....	249

Reality and Negation - Kant's Principle of Anticipations of Perception

An Investigation of its Impact on the Post-Kantian
Debate

Giovanelli, M.

2011, XII, 252 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-94-007-0064-2