

Contents

A Cross-Border-Only Regulation for Consumer Transactions in the EU	1
1 Introduction	1
1.1 Two Assumptions	3
2 Background	3
2.1 Legal Issues of Cross-Border Contracting	3
2.2 Evolution of EU Consumer Law	7
2.3 The Reform of the Consumer Acquis	15
3 From Directives to a Regulation	19
3.1 Legal Possibility	22
3.2 Political Acceptability	24
4 The Case for Focusing on Cross-Border Transactions	26
4.1 Defining “Cross-Border Transaction”	26
4.2 Arguments in Favour of a Cross-Border Approach	29
4.3 A European Consumer Transactions Regulation	32
4.4 A Practical Problem: Determining Locations	34
4.5 Private International Law Issues	35
4.6 Would Domestic Consumers Lose Out?	36
5 The Constitutional Dimension	37
5.1 Legal Basis for the EUCTR	41
6 The EU Contract Law Project	45
6.1 The EUCTR and the Optional Instrument	51
6.2 An “Optional” Instrument? The Case for Automatic Application	58
6.3 A Few Final Thoughts	60

7	Substantive Content of a Cross-Border Regulation and Its Enforcement.....	60
7.1	A Few General Observations	60
7.2	Specific Observations on the Substance of the EUCTR	62
8	The Global Dimension: Creating a Template for Transnational Consumer Transactions.....	69
9	Conclusions.....	71
	Postscript: Proposal for a Common European Sales Law	73
	General Comments.....	73
	Specific Observations on scope.....	74
	Conclusions.....	76

A Cross-Border-Only Regulation for Consumer
Transactions in the EU

A Fresh Approach to EU Consumer Law

Twigg-Flesner, C.

2012, XIV, 76 p., Softcover

ISBN: 978-1-4614-2046-0