

Contents

|                                                                                                                                                                           |            |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 1 Epidemiological Update of Methylmercury and Minamata Disease.....                                                                                                | 1   |
| Noriyuki Hachiya                                                                                                                                                          |            |
| 2 Epidemiological Evidence on Methylmercury Neurotoxicity .....                                                                                                    | 13  |
| Jordi Julvez, Takashi Yorifuji, Anna L. Choi,and Philippe Grandjean                                                                                                   |            |
| 3 The Impact of Prenatal Exposure to Methylmercury and Maternal Nutritional Status on Child Development: Findings from the Seychelles Child Development Study..... | 37  |
| Edwin van Wijngaarden, Gary J. Myers, Conrad F. Shamlaye,J.J. Strain, and Philip W. Davidson                                                                          |            |
| 4 Methylmercury and Fish Nutrients in Experimental Models.....                                                                                                     | 55  |
| M. Christopher Newland                                                                                                                                                    |            |
| 5 Mercury-Dependent Inhibition of Selenoenzymes and Mercury Toxicity.....                                                                                          | 91  |
| Nicholas V.C. Ralston, Alexander Azenkeng,and Laura J. Raymond                                                                                                        |            |
| 6 Redox State in Mediating Methylmercury Neurotoxicity .....                                                                                                       | 101 |
| Marcelo Farina, Michael Aschner, and João B.T. Rocha                                                                                                                      |            |
| 7 The Role of Thyroid Modulation by Methylmercury in Developmental Neurotoxicity .....                                                                             | 127 |
| Kouki Mori and Katsumi Yoshida                                                                                                                                            |            |
| 8 Effects of Developmental Methylmercury Exposure on Nervous System Function in Monkeys.....                                                                       | 143 |
| Deborah C. Rice                                                                                                                                                           |            |

|           |                                                                                                                   |            |
|-----------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 9  | Behavioural Effects of Exposure to Methylmercury During Early Development .....                            | 163 |
|           | Natalia Onishchenko, Stefan Spulber, and Sandra Ceccatelli                                                        |            |
| 10 | Epigenetics of Environmental Contaminants.....                                                             | 199 |
|           | Natalia Onishchenko, Nina N. Karpova, and Eero Castrén                                                            |            |
| 11 | Methylmercury Neurotoxicity: A Synopsis of In Vitro Effects .....                                          | 219 |
|           | Lucio G. Costa and Gennaro Giordano                                                                               |            |
| 12 | Effects of Methylmercury on Cellular Signal Transduction Systems.....                                      | 229 |
|           | Fusako Usuki and Masatake Fujimura                                                                                |            |
| 13 | Methylmercury Neurotoxicity: Why Are some Cells more Vulnerable than Others?.....                          | 241 |
|           | Parvinder Kaur, Michael Aschner, and Tore Syversen                                                                |            |
| 14 | In Vitro Models for Methylmercury Neurotoxicity: Effects on Glutamatergic Cerebellar Granule Neurons ..... | 259 |
|           | Cristina Suñol and Eduard Rodríguez-Farré                                                                         |            |
| 15 | Methylmercury and Glia Cells.....                                                                          | 271 |
|           | Yin Zhaobao, Marcelo Farina, João B.T. Rocha, Parvinder Kaur, Tore Syversen, and Michael Aschner                  |            |
| 16 | Methylmercury and Neural Stem Cells .....                                                                  | 287 |
|           | Karin Edoff and Sandra Ceccatelli                                                                                 |            |
| 17 | Contributions of the Drosophila Model to Understanding Methylmercury Effects on Development .....   | 303 |
|           | Matthew D. Rand                                                                                                   |            |
| 18 | Caenorhabditis elegans as a Predictive Model for Methylmercury-Induced Neurotoxicity .....          | 319 |
|           | Kirsten J. Helmcke and Michael Aschner                                                                            |            |
| 19 | Zebrafish as a Model for Methylmercury Neurotoxicity.....                                                  | 335 |
|           | Daniel N. Weber, Rebekah H. Klingler, and Michael J. Carvan III                                                   |            |
| 20 | Piscivorous Mammalian Wildlife as Sentinels of Methylmercury Exposure and Neurotoxicity in Humans.....     | 357 |
|           | Niladri Basu                                                                                                      |            |
|           | Index.....                                                                                                 | 371 |

Methylmercury and Neurotoxicity

Ceccatelli, S.; Aschner, M. (Eds.)

2012, XII, 376 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-4614-2382-9