

Contents

1	Child and Student	1
1.1	School Years	4
1.2	Student in Amsterdam	11
1.3	The Religious Credo	16
1.4	Friendship: Adama van Scheltema	20
2	Mathematics and Mysticism	39
2.1	Teachers and Study	39
2.2	First Research, Four-Dimensional Geometry	44
2.3	Marriage	49
2.4	Bolland's Philosophy Course	54
2.5	Among the Artists and Vegetarians	57
2.6	The Delft Lectures	62
2.7	Family Life in Blaricum	74
3	The Dissertation	77
3.1	Preparations and Hesitations	77
3.2	Under Korteweg's Supervision	83
3.3	On the Role of Logic	95
3.4	Mathematics and the World	99
3.5	Observations on Set Theory and Formalism	101
3.6	The Public Defence	115
4	Cantor-Schoenflies Topology	119
4.1	The Geometry of Continuous Change	119
4.2	Lie Groups	122
4.3	Publishing in the Mathematische Annalen	127
4.4	Fixed Points on Spheres and the Translation Theorem	130
4.5	Vector Fields on Surfaces	133
4.6	Analysis Situs and Schoenflies	137
5	The New Topology	149
5.1	Invariance of dimension	149

5.2	The Fixed Point Theorem and Other Surprises . . . . .	169
5.3	The Karlsruhe Meeting and the Continuity Method . . . . .	175
6	Making a Career . . . . .	193
6.1	Financial Worries . . . . .	193
6.2	First International Contacts . . . . .	199
6.3	Climbing the Ladder . . . . .	200
6.4	The Shortcomings of Schoenflies' Bericht . . . . .	204
6.5	Privaat Docent . . . . .	209
6.6	Korteweg's Campaign for Brouwer . . . . .	214
6.7	Schoenflies Again . . . . .	225
7	The War Years . . . . .	231
7.1	Sets and Sequences—Law or Choice? . . . . .	232
7.2	The International Academy for Philosophy . . . . .	241
7.3	Family Life . . . . .	248
7.4	An Offer from Leiden . . . . .	250
7.5	Van Eeden and the International Academy . . . . .	253
7.6	Faculty Politics . . . . .	265
7.7	The Flemish Cause . . . . .	269
7.8	Air Photography and National Defence . . . . .	271
8	Mathematics After the War . . . . .	279
8.1	How to Appoint Professors . . . . .	283
8.2	The Return to Topology . . . . .	285
8.3	The Offers from Göttingen and Berlin . . . . .	290
8.4	The Academy—How Denjoy Was Elected . . . . .	294
8.5	Negotiations with Hermann Weyl . . . . .	297
8.6	Intuitionism and the Begründungs -Papers . . . . .	302
8.7	And Brouwer—That Is the Revolution . . . . .	308
8.8	Intuitionism, the Nauheim Conference . . . . .	316
8.9	The Failure of the Institute for Philosophy . . . . .	320
9	Politics and Mathematics . . . . .	327
9.1	The Conseil and the Boycott of Germany . . . . .	327
9.2	The Nauheim Conference and Intuitionism . . . . .	333
9.3	The Denjoy Conflict . . . . .	336
9.4	Weitzenböck's Appointment in Amsterdam . . . . .	349
9.5	Kohnstamm and the Philosophy of Science Curriculum . . . . .	351
9.6	The New Chronicle . . . . .	354
10	The Breakthrough . . . . .	357
10.1	The Signific Circle . . . . .	357
10.2	Intuitionism—Principles for Choice Sequences . . . . .	365
10.3	Intuitionism in the Mathematische Annalen . . . . .	376
10.4	Beyond Brouwerian Counterexamples . . . . .	382
10.5	Fraenkel's Role in Intuitionism . . . . .	385
10.6	Heyting's First Contributions . . . . .	391

11	The Fathers of Dimension	395
11.1	The Two Russians	395
11.2	The Definition of Dimension	398
11.3	The Viennese Connection	421
11.4	The Scientific Legacy of Urysohn	424
12	Progress, Recognition, and Frictions	435
12.1	The First Skirmishes in the Foundational Conflict	435
12.2	Consolidation and Entrenchment	447
12.3	The Riemann Volume	458
12.4	International Relations	463
12.5	The Dutch Topological School	468
13	From Berlin to Vienna	491
13.1	More Intuitionism	491
13.2	Feelings of Crisis and German Science	493
13.3	The Berlin Lectures	497
13.4	The Vienna Lectures	514
13.5	Other Activities	522
14	The Three Battles	527
14.1	The Grundlagenstreit	527
14.2	The Bologna Conference	541
14.3	The War of the Frogs and the Mice	552
14.4	The Endings of the Grundlagenstreit	588
14.5	The Menger Conflict	595
15	The Thirties	603
15.1	Freudenthal Arrives	604
15.2	Intuitionistic Logic	607
15.3	The Sodalitas Affair	608
15.4	Göttingen Under the Nazi's	619
15.5	Bieberbach's Conversion	622
15.6	Compositio Mathematica	630
15.7	Göttingen Reconsidered?	636
15.8	Dutch Affairs	641
16	War and Occupation	663
16.1	Occupied Holland	663
16.2	Weitzenböck's Choice	666
16.3	Freudenthal Dismissed	667
16.4	University—Resistance or Survival	671
16.5	Freudenthal's Fortunes	675
16.6	The Declaration of Loyalty	683
16.7	The Brouwer Family in Wartime	694
16.8	Weitzenböck in Uniform	698

17	Postwar Events	701
17.1	Purging the University	701
17.2	Faculty Politics	723
17.3	Back to Research	737
17.4	The Loss of Compositio Mathematica	756
17.5	Rearguard Actions	767
18	The Restless Emeritus	783
18.1	The Traveller	783
18.2	The Pharmacy	809
18.3	The Last Years	817
18.4	Epilogue	827
	References	833
	Index	851

<http://www.springer.com/978-1-4471-4615-5>

L.E.J. Brouwer – Topologist, Intuitionist, Philosopher
How Mathematics Is Rooted in Life

van Dalen, D.

2013, XII, 875 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-4471-4615-5