

Preface

This volume comprises the results of the author's extensive research conducted over the last three years at the Department of Policy Analysis and Public Management of Bocconi University and at the European University Institute of Florence (Florence School of Regulation).

The research activity has been funded by the Italian Ministry of Education, University and Research (Miur) in the context of the "Environmental Policy under Imperfect Competition in Energy Markets" research project, carried out with the collaboration of the Bocconi University Center for Research on Regional Economics, Transport and Tourism (CERTeT).

The results of this project have been presented and discussed in several international conferences and seminars. The author would like to express his gratitude to the participants of these seminars for their remarks and suggestions, which helped greatly in improving both the content and the results of this research work. However, the content of this book reflects only the views of the author.

Finally, special thanks to Annamaria Pastore for her patience and for her expert editing and proofreading of the volume.
