

Contents

1	Introduction to the Praxis of Cooperative Behavior	1
	Cooperation is a Paradoxical, Complex Phenomenon	1
	A Macro Cultural Analysis of Cooperation	3
	Levels, or Forms, of Cooperation	3
	The Plan of this Book	7
	End Notes	9
	References	10
2	General Aspects of Cooperation that Potentiate but do not Determine Concrete Cooperation	11
	Cooperation, the Individual, and Development	12
	Cooperation is Not Altruism	13
	Cooperation, Sociality, Biology, Adaptation, Speciation	14
	Cooperation, Culture, Civilization, Collectivism, Communalism	17
	Human Nature and Cooperation	17
	Cooperation Stimulates and Supports Distinctively Human Psychological Processes	18
	Cooperation is Unique to Humans	23
	The Social Ontogeny of Cooperation	27
	The Relevance of Abstract Cooperative Capacity to Concrete Cooperation	29
	Ahistorical, Acultural Accounts of Cooperation and Selfishness	31
	Ahistorical, Acultural Accounts of Selfishness	31
	Ahistorical, Acultural Accounts of Cooperation	33
	End Notes	35
	References	36

3	The Dialectical Relation Between Cooperation and Capitalism: Cooperation Before, During, and After the Advent of Capitalism	39
	The Capitalist Destruction of Cooperation	42
	Capitalist Macro Cultural Factors Generate Individualistic, Anticooperative Behavior	46
	Capitalist Exploitation, Noncooperation, and Failure/Crisis.	49
	Psychological Aspects of Capitalism	50
	Capitalist Measures To Overcome Anti-Social, Alienated Psychology/Behavior Compound It	52
	Capitalism, Reform, Cooperation.	53
	Cooperation is a Critical Social Praxis	55
	End Notes	56
	References	56
4	Historical Roots of Contemporary Cooperatives	59
	Nineteenth Century British Cooperatives	60
	The Rochdale Society of Equitable Pioneers.	67
	American Background	67
	Rochdale	68
	The Social–Political Philosophy of the Nineteenth Century British Co-op Movement.	71
	Contradictory, Conservative Impulses Within Rochdale	74
	Flaws in Founding Cooperative Principles	77
	The Mondragon Cooperative.	87
	Limitations of Mondragon’s Cooperative Philosophy	91
	Political Neutrality.	93
	Marxist/Socialist Cooperation	95
	The Marxist Approach to Institutionalizing Cooperation Compared with Cooperators’ Approach	95
	Marx and Engels’ Critique of Owens and Utopian Socialists	97
	Marx’s Socialist Cooperativism	101
	End Notes	104
	References	106
5	Cooperatives’ March to Modernity: Market-Oriented, Apolitical Cooperation	109
	Historical Evaluation of the Market Model of Co-ops	111
	Marx and Engels’ Critique of Simple Commodity Production and Markets	114
	Restakis’ Caricature of Marxism	117
	Restakis’ Caricature of “Socialist Revolutions”	119
	Can Apolitical, Market-Based Co-ops Humanize Society?	122

Conclusion, and Segue to Subsequent Chapters	129
End Notes	130
References	131
6 Cooperation in Practice: Successes and Shortcomings of the International Cooperative Movement Today	133
Confederation of Catalan Cooperatives	135
Ansaloni Housing Co-op	136
Bologna, Italy Construction Cooperative	139
Northcoast Cooperative Incorporated, Arcata, CA., USA	140
Election of Board Members	140
Worker Board Members	141
Management-Worker Relations	144
Co-op Education	148
Diminished Cooperation in European and South American Co-ops	151
LEGA	151
Mondragon	152
South American Co-ops	155
International Co-ops	156
Decline in Cooperative Spirit	156
End Notes	158
References	159
7 Explaining Coop Weaknesses in Terms of the Dominant Cooperative Paradigm	161
Market Economics and Social Relations	162
Voting as Insufficient to Ensure Cooperation	163
Political Disengagement: The Phantasmagoric Oxymoron of Nonpolitical Political Change	166
Employment Law	167
Conciliation with Capitalism	168
Co-ops and International Issues	169
The Myth of Classlessness	175
Co-op Problems Indicate a Flawed Co-op Model and the Need for a New Co-op Model	177
End Notes	179
References	179
8 An Enriched, Viable, Necessary Cooperative Paradigm for Our Global Era	181
Organic Cooperation	184
Collective Ownership of Resources	185
Cooperatives as Families	187

The Logic/Logos of Cooperation	190
A Socialist Cooperative	191
Collective, Communal Cooperation Enhances Individuality and Social Caring	194
Collective, Communal Cooperation Enhances Freedom and Democracy	194
Cooperative Psychology	197
Individuality, Individualism, and Cooperation	199
Cooperation does not Sacrifice the Self, It Enhances It	201
Freedom, Democracy, Individuality, Cooperation, Collectivism, and Communalism: A Hexamorous Helix	202
Cooperation is Not Liberalism	204
Collective-Communitarian-Cooperative Morality and Rights	205
Co-ops as Cooperativizing Agents	207
Co-op Research Centers	208
Remuneration and Punishment Strategies	209
Cooperative Education Includes General Education to Raise the Intellectual and Cultural Level of Cooperators	210
Cooperative Society is on the Horizon of Capitalism	211
Political Action	216
Cooperation is a Historical Project Where Each Advance Fosters Additional Advances	218
End Notes	219
References	221
Index	225

<http://www.springer.com/978-1-4614-5824-1>

Cooperation, Community, and Co-Ops in a Global Era

Ratner, C.

2013, XVIII, 230 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-4614-5824-1