Prologue.	xI
1 Königsberg Roots	I
1.1 Childhood.	I
1.2 School Years	4
1.3 University Study.	6
1.4 A Competition	11
1.5 The Dissertation.	16
1.6 A Mechanical Basis of Electrodynamics	18
2 Setting the Course.	23
2.1 Missed Opportunities	23
2.2 Military Service	26
2.3 Mineralogical Interlude	28
2.4 Stick It Out, or Resign?	36
2.5 Approach to Felix Klein	42
2.6 Physics or Mathematics?.	44
3 Klein's Assistant	49
3.1 Physical Mathematics	49
3.2 Then I'll Grow into the Lectureship	54
3.3 Reading Room and Model Collection	57
3.4 Habilitation	60
3.5 Lecturer	64
3.6 The Engagement.	72
4 Clausthal	77
4.1 An Offer from America	77
4.2 The Appointment at the Clausthal School of Mining	79
4.3 The School of Mining	85
4.4 The Wedding	89
4.5 Gyroscope Matters and Electrodynamic Problems.	93
4.6 Encyclopedia Travels.	99
4.7 Gyroscope + Encyclopedia = Aachen-Recommendation	107

CONTENTS

5 Aachen	113
5.1 Backgrounds of an Appointment	114
5.2 Rapprochement with Engineering.	117
5.3 Technological Expert	122
5.4 Family Life	128
5.5 Duties and Inclinations	132
5.6 The “Super-Mechanics” of Electrons.	137
5.7 “In Truth I Am No Engineering Professor; I Am a Physicist”	141
6 Munich	147
6.1 Academic Traditions.	148
6.2 Quarrel over Electron Theory	152
6.3 The Origins of the Sommerfeld School	157
6.4 The Mathematical Attack	166
6.5 The “ h -Discovery”	171
6.6 The First Solvay Congress	177
6.7 X-Rays and Crystals	182
7 Physics in War and Peace	193
7.1 “For Me, the Political Future Lies in Utter Darkness”	193
7.2 Return to Theory	196
7.3 Letters from the Front.	201
7.4 Elaboration of Bohr’s Atomic Model	205
7.5 Success	214
7.6 Military Physics	218
7.7 An Emotional Roller Coaster	224
8 The Quantum Pope	229
8.1 Atomic Structure and Spectral Lines.	230
8.2 The German Physical Society: Internal Strife	233
8.3 Visiting Bohr	240
8.4 A New Quantum Number	246
8.5 Teacher and Students	250
8.6 The Bible of Atomic Physics.	255
8.7 The Lusitania Medal.	258
8.8 Karl Schurz Professor at Madison	261
8.9 California Impressions.	271
8.10 Practical Spectroscopy	274

CONTENTS

9	Wave Mechanics.	279
9.1	The Crisis of the Models.	280
9.2	“We Believe in Heisenberg, but We Calculate with Schrödinger” . . .	284
9.3	Electron Theory of Metals.	292
9.4	The Planck Succession.	295
9.5	“Not Sommerfeld, but Schüpfer”	298
9.6	The Volta Congress	301
9.7	A Wave Mechanics Supplement	303
10	Cultural Ambassador.	307
10.1	German Science on the International Stage	308
10.2	Impressions of India	309
10.3	German Science at Chinese Outposts	315
10.4	Birthday in Japan	317
10.5	Visiting Professor in Pasadena	321
10.6	The Second American Tour	326
10.7	Critique of Positivism	330
10.8	Quarrel with Stark	332
10.9	On the Road Again	336
10.10	Consolidation of the New Theories	341
11	Descent	347
11.1	Consequences of the New Civil Service Law.	347
11.2	A Deceptive Normalcy.	354
11.3	“Retirement” with Postponement	358
11.4	“German Physics”	362
11.5	Science on the Sidelines	365
11.6	The Seventieth Birthday	368
11.7	The Decision in the Succession Dispute	371
12	Bitter Years.	375
12.1	The Scandal Intensifies.	375
12.2	The End of “German Physics”	378
12.3	Political Misgivings	382
12.4	A Research Assignment for the Navy.	387
12.5	Lectures on Theoretical Physics	390
12.6	Relativity Theory Without Einstein?	393

CONTENTS

13 Carrying On	395
13.1 Denazification	395
13.2 A Provisional Fresh Start	399
13.3 “I’ll Bet on the Anglo-Americans”	405
13.4 Recognition for the Teacher	408
13.5 The Eightieth Birthday.	410
13.6 The Late Work	412
13.7 The Last Years	414
 14 Legacy	 419
14.1 Obituaries	419
14.2 Leading Figure for the History of Physics	421
14.3 The Fine-Structure Constant.	423
14.4 The “Sommerfeld Puzzle”	426
14.5 From the Pacific Problem to Dark Matter	429
14.6 The Nobel Prize Denied	431
 15 Epilogue	 433
