

Contents

Part I Shelf Life Modeling of Packaged Food

1	Direct Models for Shelf Life Prediction	5
1.1	Introduction	5
1.2	Single Quality Index Models	5
1.3	Multiple Quality Index Models	7
	References	13
2	Influence of Mass Transport Properties of Films on the Shelf Life of Packaged Food	15
2.1	Introduction	15
2.2	Single Layer Structures	16
2.2.1	Empirical Models	16
2.2.2	Mechanistic Models	18
2.3	Multilayer Structures	31
2.3.1	Constant Permeability Coefficient	31
2.3.2	Relative-Humidity-Dependent Permeability Coefficient	32
2.4	Food Deterioration Modeling	40
	References	44
3	Mechanistic Models for Shelf Life Prediction	47
3.1	Introduction	47
3.2	Pseudo-Steady-State Conditions	47
3.2.1	Cereal-Based Dry Products	48
3.2.2	Potato Chips	56
3.3	Unsteady-State Conditions	60
3.3.1	Carbonated Beverages: Fluctuating Temperature Conditions	63
3.3.2	Virgin Olive Oil	70
	References	78

Part II Low-Environmental-Impact Active Packaging

4 Different Approaches to Manufacturing Active Films	83
4.1 Introduction	83
4.2 Immobilization by Chemical Retention	84
4.3 Immobilization by Polymer Surface Modification	87
References	89
5 Bio-Based Packaging Materials for Controlled Release of Active Compounds	91
5.1 Introduction	91
5.2 Biopolymeric Active Systems by Direct Incorporation of Compounds	93
5.3 Multilayer Films to Control Active Agent Release	101
References	104

Part III New Strategies to Prolong Food Shelf Life

6 New Packaging for Food Beverage Applications	111
6.1 Introduction	111
6.2 Packaging of Olive Oil: Quality and Shelf Life Prediction	112
6.3 Packaging of Wine	116
References	120
7 Minimally Processed Food: Packaging for Quality Preservation	123
7.1 Introduction	123
7.2 Table Grape	125
7.3 Lampascioni (Muscari comusum)	130
7.4 Broccoli	133
References	136
8 Innovations in Fresh Dairy Product Packaging	143
8.1 Introduction	143
8.2 Fior di Latte Cheese	145
8.3 Stracciatella Cheese	156
8.4 Ricotta Cheese	158
References	159
9 Packaging for the Preservation of Meat- and Fish-Based Products	165
9.1 Introduction	165
9.2 Fresh Minced Meat	166
9.3 Fish Burgers	172
References	176

Future Perspective	183
-------------------------------------	-----

Index	185
------------------------	-----

Packaging for Food Preservation

Del Nobile, M.A.; Conte, A.

2013, VIII, 193 p. 42 illus., 3 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-4614-7683-2