

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	A Few Words of Motivation	1
1.2	The Structure of This Book.	3
1.3	Leśniewski's Life and Philosophical Development.	5
1.4	Primary Sources.	9
	References	12
2	Leśniewski's Early Philosophical Views	15
2.1	Introductory Remarks	15
2.2	Linguistic Conventions	16
2.3	A Digression on Proper Names	21
2.4	Existential Propositions.	24
2.5	The Principle of Contradiction.	28
2.6	The Principle of Excluded Middle	30
2.7	Eternity of Truth	32
2.8	Paradoxes	39
2.8.1	The Nelson-Grelling Paradox	39
2.8.2	Meinong's Paradox	39
2.8.3	Epimenides' Paradox (Liar)	41
2.8.4	Russell's Paradox	43
2.9	On Universals	49
2.10	Further Readings	51
	References	53
3	Leśniewski's Protothetic.	57
3.1	Introduction.	57
3.2	Semantic Categories and the Language of Protothetic.	59
3.3	Leśniewski's Notation	62
3.4	Leśniewski's Protothetic and Principia Mathematica	65
3.5	Axiomatic Formulations	71
3.6	Some Theorems and Proofs.	77
3.7	Further Readings	83
	References	85

4	Leśniewski's Ontology	89
4.1	Ontology: Basic Intuitions	89
4.2	The Language of Ontology	91
4.3	The Axiomatic System	92
4.4	Some Examples of Definitions in Ontology	94
4.5	Against Universals, Revisited	96
4.6	Description Theory and Ontology	99
4.7	Time Slices and Ontology	100
4.8	Leśniewski's Arithmetic	102
4.9	Further Readings	103
	References	107
5	Leśniewski's Mereology	111
5.1	Why Mereology?	111
5.2	Axiomatizations	117
5.2.1	Axiomatization from 1916	118
5.2.2	Axiomatization from 1918	120
5.2.3	Axiomatization from 1920	122
5.2.4	Axiomatization from 1921	122
5.2.5	Some Other Conditions of Being a Class	123
5.3	Mereology as a Replacement for Set Theory	124
5.4	Further Readings	133
	References	136
6	Leśniewski and Definitions	139
6.1	Introductory Remarks	139
6.2	Basic Notions	141
6.3	On the Origins of the Folklore	142
6.4	On Leśniewski's Idiosyncrasies	146
6.5	Later Developments in the Folklore	148
6.6	The Creativity of Leśniewski's Definitions	152
6.7	What Did Leśniewski's Rules for Definitions Actually Do?	154
6.8	Łukasiewicz and Ajdukiewicz on Definitions	155
6.9	Remarks	160
	References	162
7	Sets Revisited	165
7.1	Distributive Classes	165
7.2	Russell's Paradox Again	166
7.3	Remark on Frege's Way Out	170
7.4	Sobociński on Distributive Classes	171
7.5	Does not Ontology Contain Some Set Theory Already?	172
7.6	Higher-Order Epsilon: The Basics	174
7.7	Higher-Order Epsilon and Russell's Paradox	176

7.8	Śłupecki's Generalized Mereology	181
7.9	Challenges to Śłupecki's Account	186
	References	188
8	Nominalism and Higher-Order Quantification.	189
8.1	Introductory Remarks	189
8.2	Quantified Naming Logic	191
8.3	The Received View	193
8.4	Challenges to the Substitutional Reading	196
8.5	Simons's Combinatorial Semantics.	201
8.6	Rickey's Natural Models.	203
8.7	Relational Semantics for Plural Quantification.	205
8.8	Philosophical Qualms	209
8.8.1	Modality and the Innocence of Possible Worlds	209
8.8.2	Epistemology and Modality	210
8.8.3	Can We Use Set Theory in Metatheory?.	212
8.8.4	What About the Size Limitation Objection?	215
8.8.5	Why not Go with Boolos's Semantics?	216
8.8.6	Why Complete Naming Structures?	217
8.8.7	Set-Theoretic Content of Plural Logic	218
8.8.8	Is Multiple Reference Relation Innocent?	220
8.8.9	Counting Reference Relations	222
8.9	Loose Ends	223
	References	224
	Index	227

Leśniewski's Systems of Logic and Foundations of Mathematics

Urbaniak, R.

2014, XIII, 229 p. 3 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-00481-5