
Contents

1	Marketing in the Aeronautics Industry	1
1.1	The Aeronautics Sector Environment	1
1.1.1	Specific Characteristics of the Aeronautics Sector	1
1.1.2	Market Deregulation	3
1.1.3	The Role of Regulatory Organizations: FAA, DGAC, CAA, EASA	5
1.2	The Marketing Approach	12
1.2.1	The Rise of Marketing	12
1.2.2	The Two Facets of Marketing	14
1.2.3	An Essential Part of Companies and Organizations	15
1.2.4	A Set of Methods with Wide-Ranging Applications	16
1.3	The Role of Marketing in the Aeronautics Industry	17
1.3.1	The Growing Importance of Marketing in the Aeronautics Industry	17
1.3.2	Different Types of Marketing	19
1.3.3	Marketing in Aeronautics Supply Chain	22
1.3.4	Recent Marketing Trends in Aeronautics	23
	References	26
2	The Individual and Organizational Purchase	29
2.1	The Individual Purchase	29
2.1.1	Factors Influencing Buying Behavior	29
2.1.2	The Buying Process	36
2.2	The Organizational Purchase	41
2.2.1	The Buying Center	41
2.2.2	Buying Phases	43
2.2.3	Different Situations	48
2.2.4	The Behavior of Professional Buyers	51
2.2.5	Bidding	56
2.2.6	E-Procurement and the Development of the Marketplaces	59
2.3	Case Study: The Aircraft Constructor's Approach to the Airline's Buying Center	62

2.3.1	First Action Level (1): The Customer Airline	62
2.3.2	Second Action Level (2): Air Traffic Regulatory Organizations	66
2.3.3	Third Action Level (3): Airports	66
2.3.4	Fourth Action Level (4): Passengers and Citizen Groups . . .	67
2.4	Case Study: Airing's Approach to the Buying Center of the Sultan of M	67
2.5	Purchase Marketing	71
2.5.1	Different Conceptions of Purchase Marketing	72
2.5.2	Purchase Marketing Objectives	72
2.5.3	Means of Action	73
3	Business Marketing Intelligence	83
3.1	The Information System	83
3.2	Market Surveillance: Active Listening	85
3.2.1	The Different Types of Surveillance	86
3.2.2	Setting Up Surveillance	87
3.3	Information Sources	92
3.3.1	Main Information Sources	93
3.3.2	Information Protection	97
3.4	The Main Types of Study	103
3.4.1	Qualitative Studies	105
3.4.2	The Quantitative Studies	107
3.4.3	Permanent and Ad Hoc Studies	111
3.4.4	The Other Objectives for Studies	116
4	Market Segmentation and Positioning	123
4.1	Segmenting a Market	123
4.1.1	The Objectives of Segmentation	123
4.1.2	The Main Segmentation Methods	125
4.1.3	Other Segmentation Methods Used in Business to Business	134
4.2	Positioning	143
4.2.1	Positioning Objectives	144
4.2.2	Setting Up Positioning	148
5	Marketing and Sales Action Plan	157
5.1	The Marketing Plan	157
5.1.1	Part One: The Analysis	159
5.1.2	The Objectives	162
5.1.3	The Means or Action Plan	163
5.2	The Sales Action Plan	167
5.2.1	The Objectives of the Sales Action Plan	167
5.2.2	How the Sales Action Plan Is Carried Out	168
5.2.3	An Example of the Contents of a Sales Action Plan	169

6	Innovation and Product Management	171
6.1	The Learning Curve	171
6.2	The Product Life Cycle	173
6.2.1	Phases of the Life Cycle	174
6.2.2	Applying the Life Cycle Concept	176
6.2.3	The Characteristics of Each Life Cycle Phase	177
6.3	Managing the Product Portfolio	177
6.3.1	The BCG Model	178
6.3.2	The McKinsey Model	184
6.3.3	The Little Model	185
6.3.4	Marketing and Management of the Product Portfolios	186
6.4	Managing the Product Range	188
6.4.1	The Characteristics of the Range	188
6.4.2	Developing a New Aircraft	194
6.5	Managing Innovation	197
6.5.1	Innovation at EADS/Airbus Group	202
6.5.2	The Research & Technology Strategic Approach	202
6.5.3	Fly Your Ideas	204
6.5.4	In-House Innovations: The “Push” Strategy	204
6.5.5	Innovations from Outside: The “Pull” Strategy	209
6.5.6	Product Development Phases	214
6.5.7	The Conditions for Successful Development	218
6.6	Innovation, the Key to Development of the A380 Wide-Body Jet	221
6.6.1	Analysis of the Market and the Range	221
6.6.2	Taking into Account Customer’s Expectations	222
6.6.3	Producing a Solution	224
6.6.4	Innovation in the Cockpit	225
6.6.5	Production Innovation to Reduce Costs	227
6.6.6	The Involvement of Industrial Partners	227
6.6.7	Cabin Fittings	227
6.6.8	Future Versions of the A380	230
	References	232
7	Marketing of Services	233
7.1	The Characteristics of Services	233
7.1.1	Intangibility	233
7.1.2	Perishability and Stock-Impossibility	235
7.1.3	Inseparability	236
7.1.4	Variability	237
7.2	Different Categories of Services	240
7.3	Professional Services	247
7.3.1	Services Which are Required by Law and Regulations	253
7.3.2	More General Services Linked to Management and Strategy	253

7.3.3	The Aeronautical “Marketplaces”	253
7.3.4	Services Linked to the Production Process	255
7.3.5	Sales Related Services	255
7.3.6	Technical and Commercial Global Services	256
7.4	Consumer Services: Transport and Tourism	259
7.4.1	The Cultural Context and the Notion of Service	264
7.5	Focus on the Freight Market	267
7.5.1	The Evolution of the Freight Market: Expansion of the “Integrated” Carriers	269
7.5.2	The Reaction of the Cargo Airline Companies	273
	References	274
8	Pricing Policy	275
8.1	Factors Involved in Pricing	275
8.1.1	External Constraints	276
8.1.2	Internal Constraints	280
8.2	Pricing Approaches	284
8.2.1	Cost-Based Pricing	284
8.2.2	Value-Based Pricing	286
8.2.3	Bidding	291
8.3	Pricing Strategies	292
8.3.1	The Skimming Strategy	293
8.3.2	The Penetration Strategy	294
8.3.3	Flexibility Strategies	296
8.3.4	Yield Management	296
8.3.5	The Development of the “Gray Market”	299
8.4	Price-Adjustment Policy	299
8.4.1	Adjusting the Conditions of Sale	299
8.4.2	The Leasing	301
8.4.3	The Development of Fractional Ownership on the Business Aircraft Market	305
9	Selecting Distribution Channels and Sales Team Management	309
9.1	Logistics	309
9.2	Choosing a Distribution System	312
9.2.1	Choosing an External Solution	313
9.2.2	Choosing a Multi-Brand or Exclusive Distributors	314
9.2.3	Selecting Partners and Managing the Network	316
9.3	Managing the Sales Point: Adjusting Supply to Demand	320
9.3.1	The Basis of the Merchandising Approach	320
9.3.2	Merchandising Objectives	322

9.4	Direct Channel: The Role of the Sales Representative	324
9.4.1	Communication	324
9.4.2	Pre-Sales: Prospecting	325
9.4.3	Sales Presentation and Selling Process	326
9.4.4	After-Sales: The Follow-Up	327
9.4.5	Information Feedback	329
9.5	Managing the Sales Team	330
9.5.1	Defining Objectives	331
9.5.2	Choosing the Structure	332
9.5.3	The Size of the Sales Team	333
9.5.4	Recruiting Sales Representatives	334
9.5.5	Supervising the Team	334
9.5.6	Remunerating Sales Representatives	335
9.5.7	Sales Representatives: Motivation, Training and Career Management	338
10	Project Marketing	343
10.1	The Specific Nature of Project Marketing	343
10.1.1	High Financial Stakes	343
10.1.2	A “One-Off” Project	344
10.1.3	Generally Predefined Buying Procedures	346
10.1.4	A Generally Discontinuous Supplier-Customer Relationship	347
10.2	Building Demand	348
10.2.1	Identifying the Customer’s Latent Demand	349
10.2.2	Helping to Formulate Dissatisfaction	349
10.2.3	Developing a Solution	350
10.2.4	Drafting a Solution	351
10.3	Customer Intimacy	352
10.3.1	The Depth of the Interaction	352
10.3.2	The Extent of the Interaction	354
10.4	Influencing Specifications	354
10.4.1	Intervening Upstream of the Deal	355
10.4.2	Intervening in the Deal	357
	Notes	362
	References	362
11	Communication Policy	363
11.1	Different Types of Communication	363
11.1.1	The Objectives of Communication	363
11.1.2	The Four Main Types of Communication	366
11.2	The Communication Plan	377
11.2.1	Determination of Targets and Budgets	377
11.2.2	Setting Up the Communication Plan	381

12	Selecting Media	387
12.1	Trade Shows	387
12.1.1	The Specific Nature of Trade Shows	387
12.1.2	Exhibiting at a Show	393
12.1.3	The Different Stages of Participating in a Show	397
12.2	The Trade Press	399
12.2.1	Main Characteristics	399
12.2.2	Resources and Tools	406
12.3	The Internet	409
12.4	Digital Marketing and Social Media	413
12.4.1	Airlines and Social Networks	415
12.4.2	Internet Marketing and Communications for Aircraft Manufacturers	417
12.4.3	Engagement in the Social Media	418
12.5	Direct Marketing	420
12.5.1	The Objectives of Direct Marketing	421
12.5.2	The Different Tools	421
12.6	Television, Billboards and Radio	422
12.6.1	Television	423
12.6.2	Radio	425
12.6.3	Billboards	425
12.7	Lobbying	426
12.8	Public Relations and Sponsorship	437
12.8.1	Public Relations	437
12.8.2	Sponsorship	439
12.9	Sales Promotion	443
	References	449
13	Brand Management	451
13.1	Brand Foundation	451
13.1.1	Brand Mechanisms	452
13.1.2	Brand Functions for the Company	456
13.1.3	Brand Functions for the Customer	459
13.2	Special Characteristics of the Industrial Brand	467
13.2.1	“Purchaseability” Levels of the Industrial Brand	467
13.2.2	The Visibility Strategy	467
13.2.3	Airbus: “Setting the Standards”	470
13.3	Industrial Brands Classification	475
13.3.1	According to the Use of Goods	475
13.3.2	According to the International Brand Policy	477
13.3.3	According to Brand Origins	478

13.4	Visual Identity Code, Logos and Slogans	488
13.4.1	Logos	489
13.4.2	Slogans	491
13.4.3	Jingles	493
13.4.4	Visual Identity Code	494
13.5	Latécoère: Technical Partnership and Its Own Products	496
13.5.1	The Rise of Latécoère	496
13.5.2	Latécoère, Technical Performance Facilitator Brand	496
13.5.3	Sales Performance Facilitation	500
13.6	Zodiac: Managing a Brand Portfolio by Sector	502
13.6.1	History	502
13.6.2	Activities of the Zodiac International Group Today	503
13.6.3	Brand Policy	505
14	Building Loyalty: Maintenance, Customer Training and Offsets	509
14.1	Maintenance	509
14.1.1	The Different Forms of Maintenance	517
14.1.2	Maintenance: A Tool for the Marketing-Mix	520
14.1.3	Maintenance, a Tool for the Marketing Information System	525
14.2	Customer Training	529
14.2.1	Different Training Objectives	531
14.2.2	The Contents of Training	532
14.2.3	The Main Types of Training	538
14.3	Offset, a Business Tool	539
14.3.1	Offset: A Means of Payment	539
14.3.2	A Business Argument	542
15	Alliance Strategies	545
15.1	Traditional Forms of Company Development	545
15.2	Specific Objectives of Alliances	546
15.2.1	Financial Objectives	547
15.2.2	Marketing and Sales Objectives	548
15.3	Different Forms of Alliances	551
15.3.1	Presentation of Alliances	551
15.3.2	Tactical Alliances	554
15.3.3	Strategic Alliances While Maintaining the Company's Initial Identity	554
15.3.4	Strategic Alliances with Creation of a Specific Structure	561
15.3.5	From Alliance to Merger	566
	References	581
	Index	583
	About the Authors	589

Aerospace Marketing Management
A Handbook for the Entire Value Chain
Malaval, P.; Bénaroya, C.; Aflalo, J.
2014, XV, 590 p. 375 illus., Hardcover
ISBN: 978-3-319-01353-4