The essence of this volume was conceptualized, executed, fine-tuned, and celebrated long before Critical Topics in Family Therapy: AFTA Monograph Series Highlights was compiled. The chapters in this book were originated from essays in former American Family Therapy Academy (AFTA) Monographs, published between 2005 and 2011 and available to AFTA members. This volume introduces the AFTA SpringerBriefs in Family Therapy series, and the Academy's future work will be available to a broader audience through a collaboration between AFTA and Springer.

First, great thanks are due to the diligence and foundational work of the Editors-in-Chief of the Monographs: Betty MacKune-Karrer (2005), Laura Roberto-Foreman (2005–2010), and Melissa Elliott (2011). We appreciate your perseverance and dedication to the publications, to the Guest Editors, and to AFTA. Working in collaboration with Guest Editors, you oversaw selection of themes, were consulted regarding contributions, and provided both editorial and administrative support for production from text to artwork to distribution. Thank you, Betty, Melissa, and Laura.

To the Guest Editors of the Monographs that are represented here—Jodie KIman, Ramón Rojano, John Sargent, Martha Edwards, Jane Ariel, Pilar Hernandez-Wolfe, Sarah Stearns, Arlene Lev, and Jean Malpas—we cannot thank you enough for the work you did on the Monographs you edited. The inception of each monograph, from idea through invitation of authors, involved much thought and consultation with the Editors-in-Chief, the AFTA board and other members, and prospective authors. Each of you sought out scholars who were on the cutting edge of your subject area, supported their work in whatever way was necessary, and introduced it with respect and admiration.

To each of the Contributors, we thank you for your permission to adapt these articles for this first AFTA/SpringerScience publication and of course, we acknowledge and value the significance of your work. Each of you brought special perspectives and expertise to the subject matter and to your contribution. These articles are now the meat of a new AFTA publication.

To AFTA members who read these works, to the Board of Directors that has approved this publication, and to Jennifer Hadley at Springer who helped develop this project, thank you. We also would like to acknowledge the two administrators at the helm and the heart of AFTA, former Director Barbro Miles and current Director, Kim Cox, for your behind-the-scenes ferrying of all these works through to production.

To Hinda Winawer, I, Thorana, thank you for your persistence and continual dedication to making this project work. I believe this volume and the forthcoming AFTA SpringerScience Briefs volumes will be great contributions to the integration of social context into mental health philosophies and practice.

To Thorana Nelson, I, Hinda, thank you for your leadership in seeing this project through from idea to press, and for your collaboration in the groundwork of creating AFTA SpringerScience Briefs. Without your experience, diligence, and patience, we could not have accomplished this project for AFTA.
