

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Notes on Previous Literature	5
2	Medical and Cultural Background	9
2.1	The Medical Notion of Mental Disorders	10
2.1.1	The Hippocratic On the Sacred Disease	10
2.1.2	The Concept of Mania	13
2.1.3	Melancholy	19
2.1.4	Further Remarks on the Ancient Medical Discussion on Mental Illness	23
2.2	The Popular Conception of Mental Illness and the Greek Vocabulary of Madness	26
3	Plato on Madness and Mental Disorders	35
3.1	Preliminary Observations	35
3.2	The Phaedrus and Inspired Madness	37
3.3	Further Remarks on Poetic and Prophetic Madness	40
3.4	Diseases of the Soul in the Timaeus	43
3.4.1	Diseases of the Soul and the Aetiology of Evil	44
3.4.2	Therapy of the Soul	48
3.4.3	The Soul and the Anthropology of the Timaeus	49
3.5	The Republic and the Laws —Defective Souls in Society	51
3.5.1	The Republic and the Aristocracy of Reason	52
3.5.2	Corrupted Types of City, Corrupted Types of Man	54
3.5.3	The Laws —Legislation as the Educator of Citizens	58
3.6	Conclusions	66
4	The Aristotelian Concept of Mental Disorders	69
4.1	The Nature of Mental Illness	69
4.2	Symptoms of Mental Illness	77
4.3	Deficiency of Reason and Ethical Concerns	85

4.4	Manic and Melancholic Temperaments	92
4.4.1	The Melancholic Temperament According to Problems XXX, 1	98
4.5	Conclusions	101
5	The Stoics on the Kinds of Madness	103
5.1	Distinguishing the Kinds of Madness	103
5.2	The Madness of all Mankind	107
5.3	Medical Madness and its Effects	112
5.3.1	Passibility of the Body, Passibility of the Soul	115
5.4	Pathology of the Soul—Passions, Diseases, Susceptibilities	124
5.5	Nature and Stoic Anthropology	133
5.6	Conclusions	136
6	Galen on the Diseases of the Mind and Soul	139
6.1	Mental Illness in Galen's Medical Philosophy	140
6.2	Mental Disorders and their Treatment in Galen	145
6.2.1	Melancholic Mental Illness	145
6.2.2	Galen on Phrenitis	156
6.2.3	The Concept of Mania	159
6.2.4	Other Medical Conditions Affecting the Mind and the Rational Functions	159
6.3	Two Clinical Cases Resembling Mental Illness	161
6.4	Galen on the Passions of the Soul	163
6.5	Passions, Errors and Medical Symptoms	168
6.6	Conclusions	176
7	Other Philosophical Traditions	179
7.1	The Sceptics and Medical Empiricism	179
7.2	Epicurus and the Epicureans	187
7.2.1	Epicurean Psychopathology	188
7.2.2	The Soul and Mental Illness in Lucretius	191
7.2.3	Physics, Ethics and Diseases of the Soul	198
7.3	Middle Platonic Writers	200
7.3.1	"Timaeus of Locri" on Plato's Timaeus	201
7.3.2	Philo, Plutarch, Alcinous	202
7.4	Neoplatonic Writers	207
7.4.1	Plotinus	207
7.4.2	Iamblichus and Hermias	209
7.4.3	Proclus	211
7.5	Commentators on Aristotle	212
7.6	Conclusions	215

8 Appendix A: Aristotle and Caelius Aurelianus on Homosexuality	217
9 Appendix B: Philosophers as Mental Patients
in Ancient Tradition	223
9.1 Democritus' Madness	225
9.2 Lucretius' Mental Illness	227
9.3 Porphyry's Case of Melancholy	228
Bibliography	233
Editions of Primary Sources Referred to by the Editor's Name	233
Secondary Sources	234
Author Index	243
Index Locorum	249
Subject Index	263

Mental Disorders in Ancient Philosophy

Ahonen, M.

2014, XI, 265 p. 1 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-03430-0