

Contents

|          |                                                                                                       |    |
|----------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| 1 | Introduction . . . . .                                                                         | 1  |
|          | References . . . . .                                                                                  | 8  |
| 2 | Engineering Approach . . . . .                                                                 | 11 |
|          | References . . . . .                                                                                  | 14 |
| 3 | Geostatistical Approach . . . . .                                                              | 17 |
|          | 3.1 Ensembles . . . . .                                                                               | 19 |
|          | 3.2 Elements . . . . .                                                                                | 22 |
|          | 3.3 Sampling at Random. . . . .                                                                       | 25 |
|          | 3.4 Probability Distributions . . . . .                                                               | 26 |
|          | 3.5 Effective Parameters . . . . .                                                                    | 29 |
|          | 3.6 Meaning of Geostatistically Inferred Results . . . . .                                            | 32 |
|          | 3.7 Geostatistics and Uncertainty . . . . .                                                           | 33 |
|          | References . . . . .                                                                                  | 37 |
| 4 | Model Identification . . . . .                                                                 | 39 |
|          | 4.1 Incorrectness in Mathematics . . . . .                                                            | 41 |
|          | 4.2 Regularization of Ill-Posed Problems . . . . .                                                    | 48 |
|          | 4.3 Problem-Dependence of Model Identification. . . . .                                               | 49 |
|          | 4.4 More Complex Model Versus Less Complex One . . . . .                                              | 53 |
|          | 4.4.1 Short Description of the Borden Landfill. . . . .                                               | 54 |
|          | 4.4.2 Simulating the Water Table . . . . .                                                            | 54 |
|          | 4.4.3 Calibration with Respect to the Streamlinesand the Arrival Time . . . . .                   | 57 |
|          | References . . . . .                                                                                  | 61 |
| 5 | Transformation of Geological Objects' Propertiesinto Effective Model Parameters . . . . . | 65 |
|          | 5.1 Geological Objects and Simulation Models . . . . .                                                | 65 |
|          | 5.2 Transforming Mechanisms. . . . .                                                                  | 67 |
|          | 5.3 Properties of Transforming Mechanisms . . . . .                                                   | 68 |

|           |                                                                                                              |            |
|-----------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 6  | Examples of Linear Transforming Mechanisms . . . . .                                                  | 73  |
| 6.1       | One-Dimensional Steady-State Filtration to Fully PenetratingTrench . . . . .                             | 73         |
| 6.2       | Illustrative Cases . . . . .                                                                                 | 77         |
| 6.3       | Discussion on Illustrative Cases . . . . .                                                                   | 84         |
| 6.4       | Borden Landfill . . . . .                                                                                    | 88         |
|           | References . . . . .                                                                                         | 92         |
| 7  | Examples of Nonlinear Transforming Mechanisms . . . . .                                               | 93  |
| 7.1       | Simulation of Transient Filtration in Two-Body Objectby Homogeneous Model: Problem Formulation . . . . . | 93         |
| 7.2       | Explicit Numerical Simulation . . . . .                                                                      | 95         |
| 7.3       | Implicit Numerical Simulation . . . . .                                                                      | 98         |
| 8  | Evaluation of Transforming Mechanisms . . . . .                                                       | 105 |
| 8.1       | Two-Level Modeling Concept . . . . .                                                                         | 105        |
| 8.2       | Examples of Evaluating Linear Transforming Mechanisms . . .                                                  | 107        |
| 8.3       | Transforming Mechanisms for Effective Recharge Ratesat Borden Landfill . . . . .                         | 111        |
| 8.4       | Two-Level Modeling for Non-Linear TransformingMechanisms . . . . .                                       | 113        |
| 8.5       | Conclusion. . . . .                                                                                          | 119        |
|           | References . . . . .                                                                                         | 120        |
| 9  | Inverse Problems and Transforming Mechanisms . . . . .                                                | 121 |
| 9.1       | Linear Transforming Mechanisms: Illustrative Examples . . . .                                                | 122        |
| 9.2       | Borden Landfill: Evaluating Actual Recharge Rates . . . . .                                                  | 128        |
| 9.3       | Non-Linear Transforming Mechanisms: Illustrative Example . .                                                 | 136        |
| 9.4       | Conclusion. . . . .                                                                                          | 141        |
|           | References . . . . .                                                                                         | 142        |
| 10 | Advective Solute Transport Through Porous Media. . . . .                                              | 143 |
| 10.1      | On Classical Convective-Dispersive Model . . . . .                                                           | 143        |
| 10.1.1    | First Versus Third Type of Boundary Conditionat Inlet . . . . .                                          | 143        |
| 10.1.2    | On Dispersion Coefficient . . . . .                                                                          | 149        |
| 10.2      | Model of Advective Solute Transport InvolvingHydrodynamic Dispersion . . . . .                           | 150        |
| 10.2.1    | Introductory Examples . . . . .                                                                              | 150        |
| 10.2.2    | Example of Simulation of Real Column Test. . . . .                                                           | 155        |
| 10.3      | Transforming Mechanisms for Degradation Rate . . . . .                                                       | 158        |
| 10.3.1    | Estimating Hydraulic Dispersion . . . . .                                                                    | 158        |
| 10.3.2    | Estimating Effective Value for Degradation Ratefor Homogeneous Model . . . . .                           | 160        |

|           |                                                                                    |            |
|-----------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 10.3.3    | Solute Transport Through Piecewise Heterogeneous Porous Media. . . . .             | 161        |
| 10.3.4    | Transforming Mechanisms for Degradation Rate and Inverse Problem Solving . . . . . | 162        |
| 10.4      | Conclusions . . . . .                                                              | 163        |
|           | References . . . . .                                                               | 169        |
| 11 | Conclusion . . . . .                                                        | 171 |
|           | References . . . . .                                                               | 173        |
|           | Afterword . . . . .                                                         | 176 |

Effective Parameters of Hydrogeological Models

Gorokhovski, V.

2014, XXI, 182 p. 68 illus., 35 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-03568-0