

Contents

Part I Prelims

1	On Human Rules About God's World.	3
	Bibliography	5
2	In Search for Rules	7
	Bibliography	11
3	Rules Against Mock-Criticism.	13
	Bibliography	15
4	Rules Against Excessive Defensiveness.	17
4.1	Let a Thousand Flowers Bloom	17
4.2	The Evasion of Criticism.	18
4.3	Popper for Criticism in Science	19
4.4	Lakatos Against Criticism in Science	19
4.5	Feyerabend Against Method.	21
4.6	Kuhn for Constructive Criticism.	22
	Bibliography	22
5	Against the Bouncers at the Gates of Science.	25
	Bibliography	29
6	Duhem, Quine and Kuhn, and Incommensurability	31
	Bibliography	34

Part II Popper and His Popular Critics

7	Karl Raimund Popper (1902–1994)	37
7.1	Life and Works	38
7.2	A Fallibilist Theory of Rationality	39
7.3	A Fallibilist Theory of Logic	42
7.4	Between Science and Metaphysics	44

7.5	Philosophy of Science	45
7.6	Social and Political Philosophy	47
7.7	Optimism	48
	Bibliography	49
8	Kuhn's Way	53
8.1	Glossing Over Criticism Creates Confusion	54
8.2	The Scientific Tradition Encourages Glossing Over Criticism	55
8.3	Kuhn Used Commonsense to Fill Gaps in His Philosophy.	56
8.4	Conant Influenced Kuhn Significantly.	57
8.5	Conant's View of Criticism Is Conservative	58
8.6	Hempel Failed to Reconcile Kuhn with Rationalism.	58
8.7	Kuhn Borrowed Traditionalism from Polanyi.	59
8.8	Kuhn Borrowed Incommensurability from Duhem	60
8.9	The Consensus Is a Complex Matter.	60
8.10	Kuhn's Incommensurability Is Redundant at Best.	61
8.11	Kuhn's Critique of Approximationism Is Disappointing	62
8.12	Kuhn Had No Theory of Truth.	63
8.13	Kuhn Had No Theory of Meaning	63
	Bibliography	64
9	Feyerabend's Proposal	67
9.1	Preliminaries	67
9.2	The Ethics of the Matter	69
9.3	Science as a Social Phenomenon	70
9.4	Science and the General Public	71
9.5	Feyerabend's Proposal.	72
9.6	Towards an Institutional Analysis of Science.	74
	Bibliography	76
10	Imre Lakatos	77
10.1	Works	77
	Bibliography	79
11	A Touch of Malice	81
11.1	The Lectures	82
11.2	In Praise of Destructive Criticism.	83
11.3	The Correspondence	85
11.4	Inaccuracies	86
11.5	Conclusion.	87
	Bibliography	88

Part III In a Nutshell

12 The Essential Popper	91
12.1 Fallibilism	91
12.2 Democracy	93
12.3 Methodological Essentialism.	95
12.4 Anti-metaphysics	97
Bibliography	98
13 Kuhn on Pluralism and Incommensurability	99
Bibliography	107
14 Paul Feyerabend and Rational Pluralism.	109
Bibliography	118
15 Lakatos on the Methodology of Scientific Research Programs . . .	121
15.1 The Need to Assess Research Projects and Programs	121
15.2 Tradition Against Research Assessments	121
15.3 The Pedigree Theory and the Hic Rhodos Theory.	122
15.4 Is Methodology Ineffable or Rational?	123
15.5 The Rational Way to Assess Frameworks	124
15.6 Progressive and Degenerative Problem-Shifts.	125
Bibliography	126
16 Epilogue: Civilization and Its Self-defense	129
Bibliography	131
Appendix 1: The Biological Base of Dogmatism	133
Appendix 2: Popper on Explanation.	135
Bibliography	137
Author Index	149
Subject Index	153

Popper and His Popular Critics

Thomas Kuhn, Paul Feyerabend and Imre Lakatos

Agassi, J.

2014, XX, 158 p., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-06586-1