

Contents

1	Introduction and Methodology	1
	References	4
2	Societal, Educational, and Occupational Changes	7
	References	12
3	Parents	15
3.1	The Changing Role of Parents	15
3.2	Qualitative Data on Parents	17
3.2.1	Closer to Mothers and More Conflict with Fathers	17
3.2.2	Less Relationship Conflict Presently	18
3.2.3	Parental Marital Conflict Permeating the Child-Parent Relationship	19
3.2.4	Disliking Being Treated Like a Child	20
3.2.5	General Good Relationships	22
3.2.6	Talking Through Conflict with Parents	23
	References	23
4	Siblings	25
4.1	Changes in the Relationship	25
4.2	Outcomes of Sibling Relationships	28
4.3	Gender Differences in the Sibling Relationships	30
4.4	Qualitative Data on Siblings	30
4.4.1	Change in the Relationship Due to Time and Transitions	30
4.4.2	Variability Due to Family Constellation	31
4.4.3	Difficulties Due to Divorce and Blended Families	32
4.4.4	Older Sibling Blame and Responsibility	33
4.4.5	Parental Punishment During Sibling Dispute and Disengagement as the Siblings Aged	33
4.4.6	Differences Between Parents in Sibling Dispute Intervention	34
	References	34

5	Romantic Partners	37
5.1	Identity Formation and Dating	37
5.2	Changes in Dating Patterns	38
5.3	Changes in Mentality of Dating	41
5.4	Functions of Dating	42
5.5	Gender Differences in Dating and Partner Selection	43
5.6	Qualitative Data on Romantic Partners	44
5.6.1	Maturation of Romantic Relationships	45
5.6.2	The Benefits of Being in a Relationship.	47
5.6.3	Balancing Commitment and Independence in the Relationship	48
5.6.4	Dealing with Challenges to the Relationship.	50
5.6.5	The Difficulty and Importance of Communication	52
	References	55
6	Discussion and Conclusions	57
	References	60

The Transitory Nature of Parent, Sibling and Romantic
Partner Relationships in Emerging Adulthood

Milevsky, A.; Thudium, K.; Guldin, J.

2014, VI, 61 p., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-06637-0