

Contents

1	The New Population of Economics: Multiple, Fair, Ignorant and Emotional Actors. How Are the Markets Ordered in Accordance with Diversified Knowledge Bases?	1
1.1	Many “I”’s	3
1.2	The Modern “I”: In a Language Game	9
1.3	Embedded Individuals: Networks	12
1.4	New Dynamics	14
	References	17
2	Mutual and Self-Enforcing Agreements. Contracts as the Basic Institution of Economics: Network Knowledge Instead of Rational Choice	21
2.1	Mutuality of Advantage	23
2.2	Contractual Processes	29
2.3	From Choice to Contract (I) from Contract to Cooperation (II) . . .	31
2.4	Summa and Amplifications: Contracts and Network Environments	33
	References	36
3	Morals: Restrictions, Metapreferences: Adjusting an Economics of Morality	39
3.1	Morals as Restriction: G.S. Becker’s ‘Economic Approach’	39
3.2	Morality as Metapreference: A. Sen et al.	45
3.2.1	‘Belief Systems’, Communication and Changing Preferences	49
3.2.2	Preference and Semantic	51
3.3	Morality as Resource	55
	References	61

4	Communication of the Constraints on Action K. J. Arrow on Communication	65
4.1	Introduction	65
4.2	'Judgement' Versus 'Rational Choice'	65
4.3	'Probabilities', 'Common Experience' and 'Convergence of Beliefs'	67
4.4	Communication as Learning Process	71
4.5	Communication as Mechanism and Interpretation	73
4.6	Arrow's Scepticism	75
4.7	Communication as Equilibrium of the Second Order	77
4.8	Context Neutrality of Communication	79
	References	82
5	Communication as Interpretation of Economic Contexts: The Example of Culture and Economy: D.C. North	85
5.1	Culture as Institutions: D.C. North	87
5.2	Deficit of Conception: The Unexplained Semantic Dimension	91
5.3	Stability and Contingence: Consequences for the Construction of Economic Theory	95
	References	98
6	Ludonarrative Dissonance: Economy as a Diversified Language Game Landscape	101
6.1	For Example: "Stocks" in E and D	108
6.2	The Difference Between E and D	111
6.3	Everyday Theories: TH (D)	114
6.4	Consequences	117
	References	123
7	Rationality, Hermeneutics, and Communicational Processes. On L. Lachmann's Approach of Hermeneutical Economics	127
7.1	The Hermeneutical Approach of Ludwig M. Lachmann	127
7.2	Further Evidences on Hermeneutical Economics	131
7.3	Some Epistemological Problems	134
7.4	Some Critics of Hermeneutical Economics	138
7.5	From 'Intersubjectivity' to 'Communication'	139
7.6	Possible Consequences	142
	References	146

Communication and Economic Theory

How to deal with rationality in a communicational environment

Priddat, B.

2014, VIII, 147 p. 1 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-06900-5