

Contents

1	A Fuzzy Public Choice Model	1
1.1	Improving the Prediction of Public Choice Models: A Fuzzy Approach.	1
1.2	Sets	4
1.3	Fuzzy Sets	5
1.4	Fuzzy Maximal Sets	7
	References	11
2	Fuzzy Preferences: Extraction from Data and Their Use in Public Choice Models.	13
2.1	Introduction	13
2.2	Extracting Preference Measures from Empirical Data	14
2.2.1	Extracting Preferences from the CMP Data	16
2.2.2	A Method for Extracting Fuzzy Preference Profiles from CMP Data	20
2.3	The Conventional Public Choice Model	22
2.4	A Fuzzy Public Choice Model	27
2.5	Advantages of the Fuzzy Public Choice Model	30
	References	31
3	Fuzzy Single-Dimensional Public Choice Models	33
3.1	Intransitivity in Collective Preference	33
3.2	Fuzzy Aggregation Preference Rules	34
3.3	Fuzzy Voting Rules	39
3.4	Single-Peaked Fuzzy Profiles	45
	References	50
4	Predicting the Outcome of the Government Formation Process: Fuzzy Single-Dimensional Models.	51
4.1	An Overview of the Comparative Manifesto Project Data	51
4.2	Traditional Models of Government Formation.	56

4.3	A Fuzzy Model of Government Formation	58
4.3.1	A Fuzzy Maximal Set Approach in One-Dimensional Models	62
4.3.2	A Fuzzy Pareto Set Approach in One-Dimensional Model	64
4.4	Demonstrating the Two Fuzzy Modeling Approaches	68
4.5	Comparing the Fuzzy and Conventional Models of Government Formation.	75
4.6	Results	77
4.7	Conclusions	78
	References	80
5	Issues in Fuzzy Multi-dimensional Public Choice Models.	81
5.1	Stability in Multi-dimensional Models	81
5.2	Majority Rule Maximal Sets	83
5.3	The Existence of a Majority Rule Maximal Set in Arbitrary n -Dimensional Public Choice Models.	89
5.4	Relation Spaces and Majority Rule	102
5.5	A Consideration of Different Definitions of Fuzzy Covering Relations	105
5.5.1	Covering Relations and Minimal Generating Sets	106
5.5.2	Covering Relation C_4 with $n \geq 3$	108
5.5.3	Covering Relation C_2	112
5.5.4	C_2 -Uncovered Set	116
5.5.5	Covering Relation C_7	120
5.5.6	A Symmetrical Covering Relation.	123
5.5.7	The Implication of Missing n -Tuples.	125
	References	127
6	Predicting the Outcome of the Government Formation Process: A Fuzzy Two-Dimensional Public Choice Model	129
6.1	A Two-Dimensional Fuzzy Model.	129
6.2	A Fuzzy Model of Government Formation	130
6.3	Fuzzifying the CMP.	140
6.4	Empirical Performance of the Fuzzy Model	143
6.5	Conclusions and Implications	145
	References	146
7	The Beginnings of a Weighted Model and New Frontiers	149
7.1	A Weighted Fuzzy Government Formation Model.	149
7.2	A Comparison of Models	150

7.3	Future Directions in Fuzzy Public Choice Models	156
7.3.1	Basic Concepts	157
7.3.2	Structure Results.	158
7.3.3	Upper Choice Functions.	163
7.3.4	Comments and Future Research	169
	References	170
	Appendix A: Full Results.	173
	Appendix B: Selected Definitions and Proofs	177
	Index	181

Fuzzy Social Choice Models

Explaining the Government Formation Process

C. Casey, P.; B. Gibilisco, M.; A. Goodman, C.; Pook, K.N.;

N. Mordeson, J.; J. Wierman, M.; D. Clark, T.

2014, XIII, 183 p. 29 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-08247-9