

Contents

Part I The Tradition of Chinese Law

1 To Introduce “Li” (Rites) into Law and to Integrate “Li” (Rites) with Law	3
1.1 The Origin of “Li” (Rites).....	3
1.2 The Function of “Li” (Rites).....	11
1.2.1 To Distinguish Human Beings from Beasts, and the Civilized from the Barbarians	13
1.2.2 To Distinguish the Noble from the Humble, and the Superior from the Inferior	16
1.2.3 To Administer the Government and to Stabilize the State	19
1.2.4 To Be the Guideline for Proper Conducts and to Be the Criterion for the Right and the Wrong	22
1.3 The Introduction of “Li” (Rites) into Law	24
1.3.1 Drawing a Lesson from the Extinction of Qin Dynasty and Creating Public Opinions for Bringing “Li” (Rites) into Law	26
1.3.2 Introducing the Spirit of “Li” into Law Through Legislation and the Interpretations of the Current Law.....	28
1.3.3 Settling Lawsuits with Chun Qiu (Spring and Autumn Annals).....	30
1.4 The Combination of “Li” (Rites) and Law	32
1.4.1 Laws Made Under the Guidance of “Li” (Rites)	35
1.4.2 The Code and Doctrines of Rites Directly Included in Law	36
1.4.3 Trial and Punishment Guided by the Principles of “Li” (Rites)	37
1.4.4 “Li” (Rites) and Law Complementary to Each Other to Maintain Social Stability and the Long-Lasting Prosperity of the State	39

2 To Regard Human Being as a Standard, to Promote Morality and to Inflict Penalty with Prudence.....	41
2.1 The Formation and Development of Ancient Chinese Humanistic Ideas.....	41
2.2 Traditional Chinese Law Influenced by Humanistic Ideas	48
2.2.1 “De Zhu Xing Fu” (Employing Moral Teaching as the Primary Means, Punishment as the Supplement) and Laying Stress on Moralization	48
2.2.2 Rejecting the Adjudication of the Supernatural Beings and Stressing Evidence in Court	51
2.2.3 Being Benevolent and Prudent in the Use of Punishment and Cherishing Human Life.....	54
2.3 Reflections on Humanistic Ideas in the Traditional Chinese Law.....	62
3 Rights Differentiated, Duty as a Standard.....	65
3.1 Differentiated Legislation	65
3.2 Judicial Privileges	74
3.3 Duty as a Standard	79
4 Advocating Impartiality, Emphasizing Criminal Law and Neglecting Civil Law	85
4.1 The Discussions on Legal Impartiality	85
4.2 The Legal Principles Embodying Impartiality.....	89
4.2.1 “All Judgments Made According to Law” and “No Impartiality for Punishments”	89
4.2.2 The Enforcement of Public Law and Abandoning of Private Law, and Making the Country Prosperous and Bringing People Peace and Stability	93
4.2.3 Granting Awards in the Light of Merits Achieved, and Enforcing Punishments in the Light of Crimes Committed.....	95
4.2.4 The Faithful Enforcement of Law and the Impartiality in Justice.....	99
4.2.5 The Principle of Integrity Acting as a Standard for Civil Acts	103
4.3 The Emphasis of Criminal Law and Neglecting of Civil Law.....	106
4.3.1 The Synonymous Connotation of Law and Punishment and Regarding Preventing Violence and Stopping Evils as Its Basic Function	106
4.3.2 The Penal Code Applied as the Main Code in Different Dynasties.....	110
4.3.3 The Strictness of the Penalty System and the Brutality of the Penal Methods.....	113
4.3.4 The Reflection of “Zhong Xing Qing Min” (Stressing the Criminal Law and Neglecting the Civil Law) in the Judicial System	119

5 Following “Tian Li” (Heavenly Principles) and Enforcing Laws According to the Concrete Situations of Specific Cases	129
5.1 The Connection of “Tian Li” (Heavenly Principles) and National Law	129
5.2 The Combination of the National Law and Human Relationships.....	134
5.2.1 The Legalization of Family Affection.....	137
5.2.2 “Zhi Fa Yuan Qing” (Executing Law According to the Concrete Situations of Specific Issues).....	145
5.3 The Harmonious Unification of “Tian Li” (Heavenly Principles), National Law and “Ren Qing” (Human Feelings)	150
6 The Law Deriving from Monarch, the Monarchy Power Overtopping Law	153
6.1 The Power of Absolute Monarchy and the Legal System in the Pre-Qin Periods	153
6.2 The Systematization and Legislation of Imperial Power	158
6.2.1 The Systematization of Imperial Power.....	159
6.2.2 The Legalization of the Imperial Power.....	164
6.3 The Conflicts Between the Imperial Power and Law.....	181
7 Clan Orientation and the Ethical Rule of Law	187
7.1 Clan Regulations as Significant Parts of the Traditional Laws	187
7.2 The Evolution of Ethical Clan Law	190
7.3 The Concrete Contents of Ethical Law and Embodiment of Patriarchal Power	194
7.4 The Social Causes of Clan-Oriented Ethical Law	207
8 Regulating Official by Law, Defining Duties and Obligations	213
8.1 The Appointment and Organization of Officials.....	214
8.2 The Appointment, Removal, Examination and Promotion of Officials	223
8.3 The Assessment, Reward and Punishment of Officials.....	232
8.4 The Salaries and Retirements of Officials.....	239
8.5 The Common Supervision and Legal Restriction of the Officials.....	243
8.6 The Requirement for Officials to Hold Trials According to Complaint and to Make Convictions by Law	258
9 Historical Comparison and Timely Adjustment of the Legal System	265
9.1 Drawing Lessons from the Preceding Dynasties and Establishing the Priorities of the Legal System Construction	266
9.2 The Continuous Adjustment of the Structure of Legal Codes by Comparison	271
9.3 The Contents of Legislation Being More Appropriate and Closer to Real Life by Comparison.....	285

10 Unified Interpretation of Law and Unparalleled Flourishing of “Lv Xue”	297
10.1 The Evolution of “Lv Xue” (The Study of Statutory Laws) in Ancient Times	297
10.1.1 “Lv Xue” (The Study of Statutory Laws) in Qin and Han Dynasties	298
10.1.2 “Lv Xue” (The Study of Statutory Laws) in Wei and Jin Dynasties	305
10.1.3 “Lv Xue” (The Study of Statutory Laws) in Tang Dynasty	308
10.1.4 “Lv Xue” (The Study of Statutory Laws) in Song and Yuan Dynasties	311
10.1.5 “Lv Xue” (The Study of Statutory Laws) in Ming and Qing Dynasties	313
10.2 The Achievements of “Lv Xue” (The Study of Statutory Laws) in Qing Dynasty	315
10.2.1 The Simultaneous Development of Both Official and Private “Lv Xue” (The Study of Statutory Laws) with the Diversification of Schools	315
10.2.2 Stemming from Yet Transcending the Traditions	316
10.2.3 Exhaustive Textual Researches and Meticulous Elaborations	317
10.2.4 The Improvement of Legislation and Judicature	317
10.3 The Basic Characteristics of “Lv Xue” (The Study of Statutory Laws) in Ancient China	319
10.4 The Comparison of Chinese and Western Legal Cultures	325
11 “Zhu Fa Bing Cun” (The Coexistence of Various Laws) and “Min Xing You Fen” (The Differentiation Between Civil and Criminal Laws)	331
11.1 The Inheritance and Conservativeness of Legal Codes in Styles	331
11.2 “Zhu Fa Bing Cun” (The Coexistence of Various Laws) and “Min Xing You Fen” (The Differentiation Between Civil and Criminal Laws) in Legal System	338
11.2.1 The Development of Ancient Chinese Administrative Law and Its Characteristics	339
11.2.2 The Development of Ancient Chinese Civil Law and Its Characteristics	351
12 Revising Laws by Legislation and Citing Precedents by “Bi Fu” (Legal Analogy)	371
12.1 The Status of the Statute Laws in the Traditional Laws	371
12.2 The Evolution and Function of Case Law	378
12.3 The Interaction of Statute Law and Case Law	396

13 Making Convictions by Law and Making Judgments by Analogy	401
13.1 The Controversies over Making Convictions by Law and Making Judgments by Analogy Caused by the Announcement of Statute Law	401
13.2 Making Convictions by Law and Making Sentences by Analogy in Qin and Han Dynasties.....	404
13.3 Making Convictions by Law, and Carrying Out Punishments by Analogy	409
13.4 Holding Court Trials in Separate Departments and Making Convictions According to Law	415
13.5 Holding Trials by Law and Making Convictions by “Bi Fu” in Extreme Autocratic System.....	422
14 Pursuing No Litigation, and Settling Conflicts by Mediation.....	429
14.1 “No Litigation” as a Perfect Realm of Confucianism.....	429
14.2 Achieving “No Litigation” by Settling Conflicts Through Mediation	435
14.2.1 The Official Mediation by “Zhou” (Subprefecture) and “Xian” (County).....	436
14.2.2 Civil Mediation.....	439
14.3 “No Litigation” as the Basis of Ancient Chinese Legal Tradition .	446
14.3.1 The Social Origin.....	446
14.3.2 The Ideological and Cultural Origin.....	448
14.3.3 The Political Origin	450
14.4 “No Litigation” Carried Out at the Price of Avoiding the Burden of Prosecution.....	451
15 The Contribution to Chinese Legal System by All Nationalities in China.....	457
15.1 The Chinese Legal System and the World	457
15.2 The Creation of Chinese Legal System by All Nationalities in China.....	461

Part II The Modern Transition of Chinese Law

16 The Introduction of Western Legal Culture	469
16.1 China and the World Before the Opium War	469
16.1.1 The Secluded China.....	469
16.1.2 The Social Crisis in China and the Threat of Western Invasion at the Eve of Opium War.....	471
16.2 The Introduction of Western Legal Culture and the Breaking Up of the Seclusion of Chinese Traditional Legal Culture	476
16.2.1 Beginning to “Open the Eyes and See the World”	476
16.2.2 The Media of Introducing the Western Legal Culture— Missionaries, Merchants, and Foreign Advisors	477

16.2.3	The Influence of Western Legal Culture by Way of Consular Jurisdiction.....	481
16.2.4	The Introduction and Acceptance of International Legal Concepts	485
16.3	The Wide Spreading of Modern Legal Culture by Translating and Publishing.....	490
16.3.1	The Books and Newspapers Spearheaded the Trend.....	490
16.3.2	The Compilation and Translation of Large Amount of Legal Works Before and After “Wu Xu Bian Fa” (Wu Xu Reform).....	494
16.4	The Introduction of Western Legal Culture by the Chinese Overseas Returnees.....	500
16.4.1	The Western Countries Described by the Travellers.....	500
16.4.2	The Western Legal Culture Spread by Overseas Students	503
16.4.3	The Promotion of Democratic Legal System in Late Qing Dynasty by Ambassadors	506
17	The Change of Traditional Legal Concepts	511
17.1	From Adhering to the Established Statutes to Conducting Reforms by Learning from the West.....	511
17.1.1	Criticism on the Laws and Judicial Systems of Qing Dynasty.....	512
17.1.2	The Formation of the Concept of Conducting Reforms by Learning from the West.....	514
17.2	From the Maintenance of “San Gang” (Three Cardinal Guides) to Its Criticism.....	518
17.3	From Discriminating Against Foreigners Blindly to “Zhong Ti Xi Yong” (Studying Western Science and Technology Under Chinese Traditional Culture)	521
17.4	From Absolute Autocracy to Constitutional Republic	523
17.5	From “Ren Zhi” (The Ruling of Man) to “Fa Zhi” (The Ruling of Law)	532
17.6	From Duty-Orientation to the Pursuit of Rights	537
17.6.1	On Human Rights	538
17.6.2	On the Rights of Liberty and Equality.....	539
17.7	From the Integration of Judiciary and Administration to Judicial Independence.....	547
17.8	From Regarding Punishments as the Priority to the Emphasis of Various Laws	550
18	The Thoughts and Practices of Legal Reform in the Transitional Process	555
18.1	The Making of Laws by Slight Changes and the Introduction of Western Laws by “Yang Wu Pai” (The Westernization Group)	555

18.1.1	The Guiding Principle of the Legal Reform by “Yang Wu Pai” (The Westernization Group).....	556
18.1.2	The Main Contents of the Legal Reform by “Yang Wu Pai” (The Westernization Group).....	561
18.1.3	The Evaluation of the Legal Reform by “Yang Wu Pai” (The Westernization Group).....	570
18.2	“Wu Xu Bian Fa” (Wu Xu Reform) and Legal Reform.....	571
18.2.1	The Guiding Principle of the Reform by “Wei Xin Pai” (The Later Reformists)	573
18.2.2	The Evaluation of the Reform Ideology and Practices of “Wei Xin Pai” (The Later Reformists)	584
18.3	The Legal Modernization in Late Qing Dynasty	586
18.3.1	Constitutionalism and Constitution	586
18.3.2	The Amendment and Revision of Administrative Laws	610
18.3.3	The Law Revision and Judicial Reform in Late Qing Dynasty.....	618
19	The Continuing Progress of the Modern Legal Transition
	During the Period of the Republic of China	671
19.1	The Background of the Continuing Progress.....	672
19.2	The Ideological Basis for the Continuing Progress	673
19.3	The Process and Achievements of the Continuing Progress.....	679
19.3.1	Equality and Civil Rights Legislation.....	680
19.3.2	The Official System Legislation	683
19.3.3	The Civil Affairs Legislation	684
19.3.4	The Criminal Law Legislation.....	686
19.3.5	The Continuing Reform of Legal System.....	688
20	The Historical Value of the Modern Transition of Chinese Law
	and the Experience for Reference.....	695
20.1	The Westernized form of the Modern Transition of Chinese Law	695
20.2	The Orientation and Historical References of the Modern Transition of Chinese Law	700
20.2.1	The Reasons for Adopting the Continental Legal System	700
20.2.2	The Historical Lessons for Reference	702

<http://www.springer.com/978-3-642-23265-7>

The Tradition and Modern Transition of Chinese Law

Zhang, J.

2014, XVII, 710 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-642-23265-7