

Contents

1	What are the Stars?	1
	Historical Introduction	1
	The Photosphere	7
	The Interior of the Sun	11
	The Virial Theorem	17
2	Stars as Globes of Gas	21
	A Theory of the Stars	21
	Hydrostatic Equilibrium	21
	Why Does the Sun Shine?	23
	Source of Energy	24
3	Eddington's Theory of the Stars	33
	Radiation Pressure	33
	Radiative Equilibrium	37
	Basic Equations of Stellar Structure	39
	Solution of the Equations of Stellar Structure	41
	Eddington's Mass–Luminosity Relation	55
	The Eddington Luminosity Limit	60
4	Why are the Stars as they are?	63
	Are Stars Really Globes of Perfect Gas?	63
	The Happening of the Stars	67
	Why are the Stars as they are?	68
5	Energy Generation in the Stars	77
	The Hypothesis of Nuclear Fusion in the Stars	77
	The Basic Difficulty	78
	Tunnelling Through a Potential Barrier	82
	Enter the Neutron	86
	The Neutrino	87
	The Synthesis of Helium in the Stars	91
	Why Does the Sun Not Blow Itself Up?	95
	Where is the Evidence?	98

6	Sounds of the Sun	105
	The Standard Model of the Sun	105
	The Phenomenon of Convection	107
	Sounds of the Sun	115
	Nodes, Nodal Lines and Nodal Surfaces.	119
	Vibrating Spheres	121
	Helioseismology	124
	The Antarctic	126
	Global Networks	127
	Solar Observatories in Space	127
	The Standard Model Put to Test	129
	Rotation of the Sun	133
	Internal Rotation of the Sun from Helioseismology	140
7	The Smoking Gun is Finally Found	143
	The Hunt for the Smoking Gun.	143
	The Kamiokande II Experiment	146
	The Gallium Experiments.	149
	The Atmospheric Neutrinos	150
	Back to Solar Neutrino Experiments	152
	The Sudbury Neutrino Observatory	152
	The Smoking Gun was Finally Found	157
	The Fingerprints on the Gun.	158
	Neutrinos Do Oscillate in Flavour!	159
	Mass States and Flavour States: Quantum Oscillations.	160
	Coupled Pendulums.	162
	Circular Polarization of Light	163
	Quantum Oscillations.	165
	Neutrino Oscillations in Matter.	168
	Epilogue	171
	Suggested Reading	173
	Index	175

What are the Stars?

Srinivasan, G.

2014, XLV, 177 p. 105 illus., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-642-45301-4