

Contents

|          |                                                                                                                                 |            |
|----------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 1 | Data and Information Dimensionality in Non-cooperative Face Recognition . . . . .                                        | 1   |
|          | Geert Verdoolaege, John Soldera, Thiarlei Macedo and Jacob Scharcanski                                                          |            |
| 2 | Remote Identification of Faces . . . . .                                                                                 | 37  |
|          | Vishal M. Patel, Jie Ni and Rama Chellappa                                                                                      |            |
| 3 | Biometric Identification from Facial Sketches of Poor Reliability: Comparison of Human and Machine Performance . . . . . | 57  |
|          | H. Proença, J. C. Neves, J. Sequeiros, N. Carapito and N. C. Garcia                                                             |            |
| 4 | Recognizing Altered Facial Appearances Due to Aging and Disguise . . . . .                                               | 77  |
|          | Richa Singh                                                                                                                     |            |
| 5 | Using Score Fusion for Improving the Performance of Multispectral Face Recognition . . . . .                             | 107 |
|          | Yufeng Zheng                                                                                                                    |            |
| 6 | Unconstrained Ear Processing: What is Possible and What Must Be Done . . . . .                                           | 129 |
|          | Silvio Barra, Maria De Marsico, Michele Nappi and Daniel Riccio                                                                 |            |
| 7 | Feature Quality-Based Unconstrained Eye Recognition . . . . .                                                            | 191 |
|          | Zhi Zhou, Eliza Yingzi Du and N. Luke Thomas                                                                                    |            |
| 8 | Speed-Invariant Gait Recognition . . . . .                                                                               | 209 |
|          | Yasushi Makihara, Akira Tsuji and Yasushi Yagi                                                                                  |            |

|           |                                                                                                          |            |
|-----------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 9  | Quality Induced Multiclassifier Fingerprint VerificationUsing Extended Feature Set . . . . . | 231 |
|           | Mayank Vatsa                                                                                             |            |
| 10 | Quality Measures for Online Handwritten Signatures . . . . .                                      | 255 |
|           | Nesma Houmani and Sonia Garcia-Salicetti                                                                 |            |
| 11 | Human Tracking in Non-cooperative Scenarios . . . . .                                             | 285 |
|           | Kamil Grabowski and Wojciech Sankowski                                                                   |            |

Signal and Image Processing for Biometrics

Scharcanski, J.; Proença, H.; Du, E. (Eds.)

2014, X, 331 p. 150 illus., 91 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-642-54079-0