

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Research Problem and Research Questions	2
1.2	Gaps in Research and Innovative Contributions	5
1.3	Organisation of Study	7
2	Theorising Residential Relocations and Their Outcomes	11
2.1	Theoretical Approaches Towards Residential Relocations	12
2.1.1	Early Theories of Residential Relocations	12
2.1.2	Institutional Approach	14
2.1.3	Rational Choice Approach	16
2.1.4	Behavioural Approach	19
2.1.5	Life Course Perspective	22
2.1.6	Conclusion	27
2.2	Explaining Residential Relocations	28
2.3	Explaining Variation in Relocation Outcomes	29
2.3.1	Individual Life Course Conditions	30
2.3.2	Economic Resources	33
2.3.3	Situational Conditions of Decision Making	35
2.3.4	Structural Conditions in the Housing Market	36
2.3.5	Gendered Norms of Behaviour	38
2.4	Summary	41
3	Review of Past Literature	43
3.1	Determinants of residential relocations	43
3.2	Changes in Room Stress After Residential Relocations	48
3.2.1	Relevance	49
3.2.2	Review of Empirical Research	50
3.3	Neighbourhood Effects and Changes in Neighbourhood Quality After Relocations	53

3.3.1	Relevance	54
3.3.2	Measures of Neighbourhood Quality	57
3.3.3	Delimitations of Neighbourhoods	58
3.3.4	Review of Empirical Research	58
3.4	Effects of Relocations on Employment in Dual-Earner Couples	63
3.4.1	Relevance	64
3.4.2	Review of Empirical Research	66
4	Research Design and Methods	71
4.1	Country Case Description: England and Germany	72
4.1.1	Housing Markets	72
4.1.2	Labour Markets	76
4.1.3	Welfare Systems	78
4.1.4	Gender Relations	80
4.2	Unit of Analysis	82
4.3	Data	83
4.3.1	Panel Data at the Individual and Household Level	83
4.3.2	Neighbourhood Level	86
4.3.3	Regional Level	89
4.4	Sample Selection	90
4.5	Measurement	91
4.5.1	Dependent Variables	91
4.5.2	Independent Variables	97
4.6	Methods	101
4.6.1	Fixed-Effects Regression Models	102
4.6.2	Multi-Level Regression Models	106
4.6.3	Actor-Partner Interdependence Models	107
4.6.4	Shared Frailty Discrete-Time Event History Models	109
5	Setting the Scene: Occurrence and Characteristics of Relocations	111
5.1	Descriptive Results	112
5.1.1	Characteristics of Residential Relocations	112
5.1.2	Characteristics of Movers	114
5.2	Multivariate Results	115
5.3	Selective Sample Attrition Due to Residential Relocations	123
5.4	Summary	126
6	Room Stress and Residential Relocations	129
6.1	Descriptive Results	130
6.1.1	Average Room Stress by Groups	130
6.1.2	Patterns in Changes in Room Stress over the Life Course ...	131
6.1.3	Average Changes in Room Stress After Relocations	133
6.2	Multivariate Results	135

6.2.1	Individual Life Course Conditions	136
6.2.2	Economic Resources and Housing Tenure	145
6.2.3	Situational Conditions of Decision Making	149
6.2.4	Immigrant Households and Room Stress	152
6.2.5	Structural Conditions in Housing Markets	155
6.3	Summary	158
7	Neighbourhood Quality and Residential Relocations	161
7.1	Descriptive Results	162
7.1.1	Objective and Subjective Neighbourhood Quality in Germany	162
7.1.2	Patterns in Changes in Neighbourhood Quality over the Life Course	164
7.1.3	Average Changes in Neighbourhood Quality After Relocations by Groups	165
7.2	Multivariate Results	169
7.2.1	Individual Life Course Conditions	170
7.2.2	Economic Resources and Housing Tenure	177
7.2.3	Situational Conditions of Decision Making	183
7.2.4	Immigrant Households and Neighbourhood Quality	186
7.2.5	Structural Conditions in Housing Markets	189
7.3	Summary	192
8	Long-Distance Relocations and Subsequent Employment of Dual-Earner Couples	195
8.1	Descriptive Results	196
8.1.1	Leaving Employment for Movers	198
8.2	Multivariate Results	201
8.2.1	Gross Effect of Long-Distance Relocations	202
8.2.2	Institutional Context	208
8.2.3	Robustness Checks	211
8.2.4	Changes in Wage Rates	214
8.3	Summary	215
9	Outcomes of Residential Relocations and Structural Conditions: England and Germany Compared	217
9.1	Institutional Features and Their Effects on Residential Relocations ..	219
9.1.1	Quality of Locations over the Life Course	220
9.1.2	Role of Housing Tenure	223
9.1.3	Decommodification of Housing	225
9.1.4	Gender Relations in England, and West and East Germany ..	227
9.2	Life Course Regimes and Residential Relocations	229
9.3	Summary	232

10 Conclusion	235
10.1 Discussion of Hypotheses and Empirical Evidence	236
10.2 Limitations of the Analyses	241
10.3 Open Questions for Future Research	243
10.4 Policy Implications of Findings	245
10.5 Final Reflections on Relocations and Social Inequality	247
A Additional Tables	249
A.1 Research Design and Methods	249
A.2 Setting the Scene: Occurrence and Characteristics of Relocations	251
A.3 Roomstress and Residential Relocations	253
A.4 Neighbourhood Quality and Residential Relocations	258
A.5 Long-Distance Relocations and Subsequent Employment of Dual-Earner Couples	264
References	267

<http://www.springer.com/978-3-658-04256-1>

Residential Relocations and their Consequences

Life course effects in England and Germany

Lersch, P.M.

2014, XVIII, 290 p. 10 illus., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-658-04256-1