

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	The Breakdown of the Knowledge Monopoly	3
1.2	The Need for a New Coaching Concept	4
1.2.1	Coaching as Self-Bildung	4
1.3	What Is Coaching?	6
1.3.1	Coaching as a Journey	6
1.3.2	Coaching as Storytelling	7
1.3.3	Definition of Coaching: An Attempt	7
1.3.4	Coaching: Urging Self-reflection and New Perspectives	10
1.4	The Goal and Structure of the Book	10
2	The Origins and Development of Coaching	13
2.1	Societal Legitimacy: Coaching as an Answer to Late- and Post-Modern Challenges	14
2.1.1	The Globalized World	14
2.1.2	The Hyper-Complex Society	15
2.1.3	Reflexivity in Late Modernity	16
2.2	Coaching, Identity and Self-constructions: The Self Is at Stake in the Coaching Dialogue	18
2.2.1	Identity Theory: Between Phenomenology and Social Constructionism	20
2.2.2	Identity Negotiations in the Coaching Dialogue	24
2.3	Coaching and Learning: Between Personal Experience and Collaboration	26
2.3.1	Coaching and Experiential Learning	27
2.3.2	Coaching and Learning as a Social and Collaborative Practice	31
2.3.3	Summary: Coaching and Learning: Between Subjective Experiences and Collaborative Dialogues	35

2.4	Coaching in the Theoretical Perspective of Organization and Leadership	35
2.4.1	Leadership Is Dialogical and Involving	36
2.4.2	Leadership Means Managing Complexity	37
2.4.3	Personal Leadership and Value-Oriented Action	38
2.4.4	Coaching in a Leadership Context	40
2.5	Closing Remarks	43
3	Intervention Theories in Coaching and Coaching Psychology	45
3.1	Coaching as a Special Dialogue Form	45
3.1.1	Martin Buber and His Understanding of the Genuine Dialogue	46
3.1.2	Pearce & Cronen: Coordinated Management of Meaning (CMM)	47
3.1.3	Harlene Anderson and Her Understanding of Collaborative Language Systems	49
3.1.4	The Relationship as a Central Focus of the Coaching Dialogue	49
3.2	Basic Intentions in the Coaching Conversation	50
3.2.1	The Three Generations of Coaching	51
3.3	The Coach's Basic Orientation	55
3.3.1	Shifts in Perspective as an Essential Developmental Orientation in the Coaching Dialogue	57
3.3.2	The Situation-Specific Perspective	58
3.4	Basic Theories and Their Role in Coaching	60
3.4.1	The Systemic-Social Constructionist Universe	61
3.5	Additional Theories	96
3.5.1	Positive Psychology	97
3.5.2	Experiential and Emotion-Focused Approaches	100
3.5.3	Mentalization-Based Approach	106
3.6	Closing Remarks	108
4	Narrative Collaborative Coaching: Theory and Practice	111
4.1	Why Coaching as a Narrative Collaborative Practice?	112
4.1.1	Coaching as a Reflective Space	112
4.1.2	Coaching and Meaning-Making	112
4.1.3	Coaching as a Post-Modern Space of Learning and Development	113
4.1.4	Coaching Promotes Dialogical and Reflective Leadership ...	113
4.2	Epistemological Basis: Bridging the Gap Between Phenomenology and Social Constructionism	114
4.2.1	The Construction of Reality	114
4.2.2	The Concept of Meaning	116

4.3	Narrative Collaborative Practice in Coaching	118
4.3.1	Coaching Between Personal Experience and Collaboration ..	120
4.4	Closing Remarks	137
5	Case Studies and Effect Studies of Coaching as a Narrative Collaborative Practice	141
5.1	Case Studies of My Own Practice	141
5.1.1	Case 1: Tangoing with the Boss. Developing a New Working Relationship	143
5.1.2	Case 2: A Little More Skanderborg in My Life	147
5.1.3	Case 3: About Believing in Oneself	152
5.2	Perceived Effect: A Narrative Analysis	157
5.2.1	The Narrative Analysis Method	157
5.2.2	Stories by Coaching Participants	158
5.2.3	Reflection on Perceived Effect	163
5.3	Statistical Effect: Social Recovery and Well-Being as the Main Outcomes	164
5.3.1	Research Design and Findings	165
5.3.2	Discussion of Findings	169
5.4	Conclusion in Relation to the Research Project	172
5.5	Closing Comments	173
6	Professional Practice Between Research, Knowledge and Reflection ..	175
6.1	Evidence-Based Practice and Practice-Based Evidence	176
6.2	The Knowledge Base of Coaching Practice	179
6.2.1	Knowledge from Philosophy	180
6.2.2	Knowledge from Psychology	182
6.2.3	Knowledge from Education, Adult Learning and Personal Development	182
6.2.4	Knowledge About Specific Professional Contexts	183
6.2.5	Knowledge Domains in Dialogue Practice	183
6.3	Developing Knowledge, Practice and Profession	184
6.3.1	Relationship Between Practice and Theory	185
6.3.2	Paths to Professional and Practice Development	186
6.4	Knowledge Between Fact and Intuition	193
7	Reflective Practice Among Coaching Experts	195
7.1	Peter	197
7.2	Steven	200
7.3	Kathrine	207
7.4	Martha	211

7.5	Reflections on Practitioner Reflections	216
7.5.1	Building and Developing a Relationship	216
7.5.2	The Coach's Way of Being	218
7.5.3	Relationship with Theory and Method.....	219
7.6	Afterthoughts	221
8	In Conclusion	223
	References.....	227
	Index.....	243

A Guide to Third Generation Coaching
Narrative-Collaborative Theory and Practice

Stelter, R.

2014, XVIII, 250 p.,

ISBN: 978-94-007-7186-4