

Contents

Part I Theory

1 Preliminary Considerations on the Method of Social Thought	3
1.1 Introduction.....	3
1.2 Great ‘Errors’ Fuelled by Methodological Misconceptions.....	4
1.3 Excursus on the Methodological Peculiarity and Equivocations of the Social Sciences.....	8
1.4 Necessity and Choice-Possibility-Creativeness in the Organization and Interpretation of Social Systems.....	17
1.4.1 Freedom and Constraints.....	17
1.4.2 A More Expressive Distinction: Necessity and Choice-Possibility	19
1.4.3 Some Outstanding Equivocations on Economic and Social Necessities	23
1.5 A Primary Methodological Misunderstanding in the Social Sciences: The Conflict Between Normative and Positive Views	25
1.6 An Allusion to the Interpretation of Social and Historical Processes	30
1.7 Conclusion	32
References.....	33
2 The Core of the Methodological Question: Procedure, Rules, Classifications	37
2.1 Introduction.....	37
2.2 An Alternative View on the Confrontation with Social Reality: The Priority of Rules for the Formulation of Hypotheses Versus Those Concerning the Control of Hypotheses; The Rationality Principle. Towards Social Objectivism	38

2.3	The Formulation of General Principles in the Social Sciences.....	43
2.3.1	The Notion of Functional Imperative and the Methodological Centrality of Institutional Analysis.....	43
2.3.2	The Commensurability of Social Knowledge, Ethical Relativism and Natural Rights; The Scientific Derivation of Some Value Premises and the Notion of Ontological Imperative	46
2.3.3	Some Examples.....	48
2.4	From General to Particular: Continuity and Permanence Versus Change.....	52
2.4.1	Grand Options and Civilizations; Their Relations with Functional Imperatives. About the Concept of Utopia	52
2.4.2	Innovation and Choice: The Factors of Change and Their Enemies	55
2.5	Synthesis of the Methodological Framework. The Interrelationships Among Social Subsystems.....	56
2.6	The Notion of Freedom and Necessity Areas as an Indispensable Tool for the Understanding of Function and Conflict	58
2.7	The Problem of Prediction in the Social Sciences; From Micro to Macro Theory	60
2.8	Economic and Social Planning	61
2.9	Conclusion	66
	References.....	67
3	Heterogeneity of Methods in Social Thought: Weakness or Strength – Is There a Synthesis?.....	71
3.1	Introduction.....	71
3.2	Popper's Double Face and Pareto's Methodological Dualism.....	73
3.3	I. Lakatos and T. S. Kuhn.....	75
3.4	T. Lawson's Treatment of Emergence and Ontological Naturalism	81
3.5	The Theorists of Social Action: L. von Mises and T. Parsons	84
3.6	G. Myrdal's Thought on Method	86
3.7	Institutional and Evolutionary Analyses	88
3.8	The Limitations and Difficulties of Heterodox Social Thought in the Light of Feyerabend's Methodological Anarchism.....	91
3.9	Mainstream Economics and Its Opponents: A Great Methodological Confusion.....	93
3.10	Methodological Monism or Pluralism?	105
3.11	Synthesis and Conclusion	107
	References.....	107

4 Social Development and Historical Processes	113
4.1 Premise.....	113
4.2 Initial Elements of a Theory of Social and Historical Development	113
4.3 The Development and Decline of Social Systems	117
4.3.1 The General Scheme	117
4.3.2 Historical Typologies	118
4.4 Synthesis of the Theory and Some Prescriptive Suggestions	122
4.5 The Interpretation of History and the Notion of Historical Phase	125
4.6 Contradictions and Torments of the Present Age.....	127
4.7 A Simple Formalized Model and Its Estimation.....	131
4.7.1 The Interaction Innovation-Adaptation in a Model of Dynamic Competition	131
4.7.2 The Formal Model	133
4.7.3 Econometric Estimation.....	134
4.8 Conclusion	138
References.....	139
5 On the Dynamics of Societies: Is There a Universal Theory?	141
5.1 Premise.....	141
5.2 Marxian Historical Materialism.....	141
5.3 The Theories of Stages of Development.....	144
5.4 Evolutionary and Institutional Theories of the Social-Historical Process. Spencer, Hayek and Douglass North	145
5.5 The Anti-rationalist Interpretations of Social-Historical Processes. Pareto and Spengler	148
5.6 The Central Role of Creative Processes in Toynbee and Ortega y Gasset	151
5.7 Value-Ideological and Political Aspects in the Interpretation of Social-Historical Processes. Weber-Tawney and Pellicani's Analyses.....	155
5.8 Recent Interpretations of Social Development Stimulated by Globalisation	159
5.9 Mircea Eliade and the Terror of History	163
5.10 Conclusion	164
References.....	164

Part II Some Applications

6 About Anthropology.....	169
6.1 Introduction.....	169
6.2 Primitive Civilizations	170
6.2.1 American Primitives	170
6.2.2 Primitives Mainly from East Asia	172

6.3	Kinship, Labour Division, the Authority Principle and Social Hierarchies	175
6.4	Power in Primitive Societies	177
6.5	From the Power of Society to Command-Power	181
6.6	The Consolidation of Command-Power and the Birth of State-Power.....	182
6.7	Conclusion	184
	References.....	185
7	Problems of Political Theory and Action	187
7.1	Introduction.....	187
7.2	The Question of Sovereignty. The Impotence of Democracy Against the Dark Ghost of Domination-Power.....	188
7.3	Freedom and Responsibility	193
7.3.1	An Important and Confused Matter Urging Systematization	193
7.3.2	The Theodicy Puzzle.....	198
7.4	The Anti-reformist, Relativist and Hyper-reformist Prejudices Implied by the Current Methods of Social Thought.....	202
7.5	Inequalities and Social Justice	205
7.6	Political Thought in the Light of the Interpretations of History; Some Clarification on the Use of 'If'	210
7.7	Conclusion	215
	References.....	216
8	The Foundations of Law: Juridical Objectivism Versus Jus Naturalism and Juridical Positivism	219
8.1	Introduction.....	219
8.2	The Speculation of the Doctrine of Natural Law and the Objections of Juridical Positivism.....	220
8.3	Contractualism and the Ambiguities of Enlightenment Thought	225
8.4	Some Meaningful Perplexities Concerning the Foundations and Role of Law in Contemporary Societies	227
8.5	Juridical Objectivism . On the Scientific Explanation and Justification of Juridical Order	230
8.6	Conclusion	233
	References.....	233
9	Some Insight on Sociological Thought: Rationality, Relativism and Social Evolution in Boudon-Weber's Cognitive Method.....	235
9.1	Introduction.....	235
9.2	Reasons for Dissent from Boudon-Weber's Cognitive Method; An Alternative Proposal.....	236
9.3	Further Clarifications on Some Methodological Aspects Considered by Boudon.....	238
9.4	Examples.....	242

9.5	Individualism and the Evolution of Human Societies.....	244
9.6	Rationality, Objectivity of Ethical Values and Social Evolution. The Explanatory Role of the Concepts of Functional Imperatives and Ontological Imperatives	246
9.7	Conclusion	250
	References.....	251
10	Further Meditation on Ethics: Values in the Light of Religious Thought and Its Opponents	253
10.1	Introduction.....	253
10.2	Ethics in Stationary Societies and Dynamic-Evolutionary Societies: The Roots of the Problems That We Are Going to Discuss	254
	10.2.1 Generalities	254
	10.2.2 The Role of the Christian Message.....	255
10.3	Toward the Relativist and Absolutist Equivocations on Values. The Alternative of Cultural Objectivism	259
10.4	The Roots of Civilizations	263
10.5	Some Examples and an Important Misunderstanding of Global Ethics	265
10.6	Further Considerations on Religious and Social Thought: Faith and Reason.....	268
10.7	Hume, Smith, Kant and Hegel on Ethics	275
	10.7.1 Public Utility and Ethics in the Treatments of Hume and Smith	275
	10.7.2 From Kant's Personal Ethics to Hegel's Totalitarian Ethics	278
10.8	Pera's Criticism and Antiseri and Giorello's Defence of Relativism.....	282
10.9	Conclusion	291
	References.....	292
11	Final Conclusion.....	295
	Reference	296
	Name Index.....	297
	Subject Index.....	301

<http://www.springer.com/978-94-017-8674-4>

Methodological Misconceptions in the Social Sciences
Rethinking Social Thought and Social Processes

Fusari, A.

2014, XXVII, 309 p. 1 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-94-017-8674-4