

Contents

1	Voices from the Steppe	1
1.1	Geographical Contexts	3
1.2	Historical Contexts	4
1.3	Conceiving of Nomadic Peoples and Their Polities	5
1.4	Lattimore and Anthropology: Approaches to the Nomad as State Builder	7
1.5	Shaping Alternatives for Inner Asia: Mobility, Politics, and Interaction	11
1.6	Outline of Chapters to Come	12
	References	15
2	Overcoming the Tyranny of Distance: Culture Contact and Politics	17
2.1	Novelty from Afar: The Jew's Harp	18
2.2	Do New Foods Beget New Appetites? The Oreo Cookie that Wasn't	21
2.3	Walls and Relationships: Building New Inequalities	23
2.4	Interregional Theory and Social Transformations	26
2.5	How Do Things Move and Become Novel?	27
2.6	What Counts as Long Distance, Cross-Cultural, or Interregional?	28
2.7	How Does Inter-cultural Process Change Social Organization?	30
2.8	Foundations of Entanglement: Relationships, Negotiation, and Contingency	32
2.9	Social Relationships	34
2.10	Social Negotiation, Groups, and Social Order	35
2.11	Politics and Social Organization	36
2.12	Entanglement, Inter-contingency, and the Uncertain Politics of Change	38
2.13	Upscaling and Political Community as a Pathway to Statehood	41
	References	43

3	Solving Contradictions: Nomads and Political Complexity	47
3.1	Nomads, the State, and Explaining the Xiongnu Polity	49
3.2	Preceding the State	51
3.3	From Leaders to Rulers	52
3.4	Organization of the State	53
3.5	What Makes a Pastoral Nomad: Variation and Commonality	54
3.6	What Makes a State: Scale, Duration, and Contingency	57
3.7	Mobility, Relation, and Spatial Politics	63
3.8	The Xiongnu State: A Macro-Region Transformed and Empires Made	68
3.9	Preceding the State: Early Entanglements, 1400–700 BC	68
3.10	From Leaders to Rulers: Regional Consolidation and State Emergence, 600–200 BC	70
3.11	Organizational Trends of Xiongnu Statehood: Spatial Politics, 200 BC–200 AD	71
3.12	Origins of an Amalgamated Imperial Tradition in East and Inner Asia	73
	References	74
4	The Heartland of Inner Asia: Mongolia and Steppe Pastoral Nomadism	79
4.1	More than just Grasslands: The Inner Asian Interior of a Macro-Continent	80
4.2	Examples of Inner Asian Pastoral Nomadism from Mongolia	86
4.3	Egiin Gol: A Northern Mongolian River Valley	94
4.4	Baga Gazaryn Chuluu (BGC): Granite Peaks of the Gobi	99
4.5	Archaeology at Egiin Gol and Baga Gazaryn Chuluu	105
	References	106
5	The Late and Final Bronze Age Cultures of Mongolia, 1400–700 BC	109
5.1	Documenting the Bronze Age	111
5.2	Western and West-Central Regions: Khirigsuurs and Deer Stones of Mongolia	112
5.3	Eastern and South-Central Regions: Ulaanzuukh–Tevsh Culture and Slab Burials	122
5.4	Habitation Sites, Economy, and Lifeways	132
5.5	Local and Regional Perspectives	139
5.6	Summary: Bronze Age Experiments in Subsistence, Transport, Monuments, and Leadership	147
	References	150
6	The Surrounding Bronze Age World: Kazakhstan and South Siberia, 1300–700 BC	157
6.1	Semirech'e and Kazakhstan: A View from the Western Periphery	159
6.2	Minusinsk and Southern Siberia: Connections to the Northwestern Forest Steppe	164

6.3	Early Iron Age Transformation: Political Communities of the Scythian Tradition	173
6.4	East Versus West in Inner Asia.	177
	References.	178
7	At the Edge of Inner Asia: The Northern Zone and States of China, 1200–700 BC	185
7.1	South-Central Inner Mongolia: The Ordos and the Chariots of Shang	187
7.2	Southeastern Inner Mongolia: Cultural Hybrids and the Horses of Zhou.	195
7.3	Follow the Horses: Steppe Influences on Statehood in China	205
7.4	How the Eastern Bronze Age Came to an End: The Politics of Entanglement.	211
	References.	215
8	Nomadic Alternatives: Forming the State on Horseback	221
8.1	Histories of the Xiongnu	222
8.2	Overview of the Xiongnu Archaeological Record.	225
8.3	Archaeological Trajectories Toward Statehood: The Prelude, c. 600–300 BC	232
8.4	Patterns of Transition in the Egiin Gol Valley	236
8.5	Gobi Desert Evidence from Baga Gazaryn Chuluu (BGC).	241
8.6	A Regional Political Community: From Local to Macro-regional Perspectives, 300–200 BC	244
8.7	Re-imagining the Macro-region: Multiple Centers and Multi-lateral Contacts	246
8.8	Disruption and Upscaling: A Complex Macro-region in the Making.	249
8.9	Along the Way to Becoming a State	252
	References.	254
9	Not of Place, But of Path: Nomads on the World Stage.	261
9.1	Xiongnu Landscapes at Egiin Gol and Baga Gazaryn Chuluu: Spatial Politics at Work	262
9.2	Patterns of Xiongnu Integration and Centralization.	270
9.3	Macro-regional Conversions as Spatial Politics: The Early Silk Roads	274
9.4	Historical Overview of the Xiongnu and the Western Regions . . .	275
9.5	Xiongnu Mortuary Archaeology and Riches from the West	278
9.6	Silk Roads Evidence in the Gobi Desert	282
9.7	The Western Interaction Sphere of the Late First Millennium BC.	285
9.8	Steppe Roads: A Re-orientation of Perspective	288
	References.	290

10	Steppe Cores, Sedentary Peripheries, and the Statecraft of Empire...	297
10.1	Reciprocal Entanglements: Historical Experiments in Imperial Statecraft	300
10.2	Epilogue: Mobile Legacies in a Globalizing World.....	305
10.3	Modern Mongolia: A Nation of Herders	306
10.4	Discourses of Development and Modernity.....	308
10.5	An Ancient and Unchanging Nomadic Pastoralism?.....	309
10.6	Is the Center Always Central?	310
10.7	Globalized Herders.....	311
	References.....	313
	Index.....	317

<http://www.springer.com/978-1-4939-1814-0>

Inner Asia and the Spatial Politics of Empire
Archaeology, Mobility, and Culture Contact
Honeychurch, W.

2015, XI, 321 p. 46 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-4939-1814-0