Contents

1 Research Partnerships as a Form of Knowledge Translation 1
Evolution of Policing Research 2
United States Experience 2
Australian Experience 6
Difficulties in Connecting Research to Practice in Practice 11
The Utilization of Research 12
The Two-Communities Perspective and Research Utilization 13
The Police Practitioner–Researcher Cultural Divide and the Utilization of Research 15
Examining Patterns of Research Utilization 18
The Knowledge Translation Framework 21
Conclusion 25

2 The Literature and Research on Police–Research Partnerships in the USA 27
The Growth and Prevalence of Police Practitioner–Researcher Partnerships 27
Findings on Partnership Prevalence from the NIJ Partnership Study 30
The Benefits of Partnership Participation 34
Findings from the NIJ Partnership Study 35
Barriers and Facilitators to Police–Researcher Partnerships 37
Findings from the NIJ Partnership Study 40
Conclusion 44

3 The Perspective of a Frontline Practitioner in Australia 45
Managing the Demands for Access to Personnel and Their Data 46
Why Is Real Change so Difficult to Achieve in Police Agencies? 47
The Police View of the Researcher—'All Care and No Responsibility' 48
What Has Been the Police Attitude to Research? 48

Where Is that Relationship at Present? 49
What Makes QCET Good Practice in Terms of Police and Researcher Relationships? 51
What Are the Hallmarks of a Mature Relationship? What Is the End State? 52
What Are the Barriers to Integrating Research Findings into Practice? 52
Why Are Some Researchers More Acceptable to Police Than Others? 53
Why Are Some Police More Amenable to Facilitating Research Than Others? 55
Problem Definition, Analysis, and Problem Solving 56
How Can We Make It Worth the While of the Officer to Get Interested in Research? 57
How Do Police Socialize Researchers into the Police Culture? 57
What Can Researchers Give up in Order to Get Something? 58
What Needs to Happen to Make Police Agencies Use Research and What Is the Role of the Researcher? 58
Conclusion 59

4 The Challenges and Promise to the Future of Partnerships 61
The Future Prospect of Partnerships in the USA 61
The Future Prospect of Partnerships in Australia 65
The Crucial Role of Interpersonal Relationships 67
First Acquaintance 68
Building Up 70
Continuation 72
Parting Comments 74

References 77

http://www.springer.com/978-1-4939-2055-6

Developing and Maintaining Police-Researcher Partnerships to Facilitate Research Use

A Comparative Analysis

Rojek, J.; Martin, P.; Alpert, G.P.

2015, XII, 84 p. 2 illus., Softcover
ISBN: 978-1-4939-2055-6