

Contents

1	Introduction: Promoting Information	1
1.1	Background and Motivation	1
1.2	The Broad Issues of Disclosure	4
1.2.1	The Importance of Disclosure in Financial Markets	4
1.2.2	The Regulation of Financial Markets	7
1.2.3	Why Is Failed Disclosure Unfair to Stakeholders, Investors, Shareholders, Governments, Regulators?	9
1.2.4	Three Problems of Information Disclosure	10
1.3	Research Question and Objectives of This Book	11
1.4	Outline	12
1.4.1	Chapter 1: Introduction – Promoting Information	12
1.4.2	Chapter 2: Disclosure of Financial and Non-financial Information in the Marketplace	13
1.4.3	Chapter 3: How Should Financial Markets Be Regulated to Ensure That Information Is Provided?	13
1.4.4	Chapter 4: Promoting Information Under Broker/Client Rules at Common Law and in Equity	13
1.4.5	Chapter 5: The Failure of Industry Licensing to Keep the Market Informed – Obligation to Provide Financial Services ‘Efficiently, Honestly and Fairly’	14
1.4.6	Chapter 6: The Ability of the Commission to Achieve Disclosure in Financial Markets	14
1.4.7	Chapter 7: Stock Exchanges and the Promotion of Information	15
1.4.8	Chapter 8: Towards Principles-Based Regulation	15
1.5	Solutions and Recommendations	15
	References	16

2 Disclosure of Financial and Non-financial Information in the Marketplace	19
2.1 Why Disclosure? Disclosure of Financial and Non-financial Information	20
2.1.1 The Implications of Information Asymmetries	21
2.1.2 The Philosophy and Purposes of Promoting Information in the Marketplace (Disclosure)	22
2.1.3 Efficient Capital Market Hypothesis (ECMH Disclosure)	24
2.1.4 Implications	26
2.2 Voluntary Disclosure	26
2.3 Mandatory Disclosure as a Response to the Failure of the Market to Provide Information	28
2.3.1 Introduction	28
2.3.2 In Support of Mandatory Disclosure	30
2.4 Mandatory Continuous Disclosure	33
2.5 Three Problems with Mandatory Disclosure	35
2.5.1 The First Problem of Mandatory Disclosure: Information Is Not Cost Free	35
2.5.2 The Second Problem of Mandatory Disclosure: Conflict of Interest	37
2.5.3 The Third Problem of Mandatory Disclosure: How to Promote Information and Facilitate Disclosure?	40
Conclusion	42
References	43
3 How Should Financial Markets Be Regulated to Ensure That Information Is Provided?	49
3.1 Introduction	49
3.1.1 Ineffective Regulation of Disclosure and Failure in the Market for Information	50
3.1.2 Regulation Aims to Correct the Failure in Information	51
3.2 Financial Market Regulation: The Law Does Not Achieve Its Purpose Regarding Disclosure	52
3.2.1 Aims of Financial Market Regulation	52
3.2.2 The Components of Effective Financial Market Regulation	54
3.2.3 Regulation Failure: Uninformed Markets	55
3.3 Analysis of the Disclosure of Information	65
3.3.1 Disclosure Under Securities Regulation	65
3.3.2 Disclosure of Information Under Competition Law	69
3.3.3 Disclosure of Information Under Corporate Law	74
3.3.4 Disclosure of Information and Overlapping Consumer Protection	75

3.3.5	Misleading and Deceptive Statements	76
3.3.6	Disclosure and Financial Intermediaries	77
	Summary and Conclusion	79
	References	80
4	Promoting Information Under Broker/Client Rules at Common Law and in Equity	85
4.1	Introduction to Disclosure Under the Rules of Broker and Client	85
4.1.1	Failings of Piecemeal Disclosure Laws	85
4.1.2	Investor Confidence, Coregulation and Brokers	86
4.2	Disclosure and Fair Dealing at Common Law: Fiduciaries	88
4.2.1	Good Faith and Disclosure in Equity: Fiduciaries	88
4.2.2	Fiduciary Duties Under Civil Law	90
4.2.3	Disclosure by Brokers Who Are Fiduciaries	91
4.2.4	Disclosure by Brokers Who Are Not Fiduciaries	95
4.3	Reliance on Usage to Ensure Disclosure	98
4.3.1	Usage to Justify Implication of a Contractual Term	100
4.3.2	Usage and Notoriety	101
4.3.3	Usage and Express Terms of the Agreement	102
4.3.4	Usage of Non-disclosure Can Be Imputed to the Parties if Reasonable and Legal	102
4.4	Bad Faith and Nondisclosure: Is There a Doctrine of Good Faith to Mandate Disclosure?	103
4.4.1	‘My Word Is My Bond’	104
4.4.2	Contractual Non-disclosure	104
4.4.3	Implied Term of Good Faith	105
4.4.4	Good Faith and Disclosure Under Civil Law	108
4.5	Are There Any Lessons for Disclosure from the US Shingle Theory?	111
	Summary and Conclusion	112
	References	113
5	The Failure of Industry Licensing to Keep the Market Informed: Obligation to Provide Financial Services ‘Efficiently, Honestly and Fairly’	117
5.1	Failures in the Broker/Client Relationship	117
5.2	Occupational Licensing in the Financial Services Industry	118
5.2.1	Background	118
5.2.2	Licensing History	121
5.2.3	Licensing Under the IOSCO Principles	122
5.2.4	Alternatives to Licensing	123
5.3	Regulation of Disclosure by Licensing	126
5.3.1	‘Fit and Proper’ Person	126
5.3.2	Statutory Duties to the Client	127

5.3.3	Compliance with Disclosure Requirements by Licensing	127
5.3.4	Operational Test of Efficiently, Honestly and Fairly to the Promote of Information	129
5.3.5	Efficient, Honest and Fair as a General Obligation	133
	Conclusions on Licensing to Mandate Disclosure	135
	References	136
6	The Ability of the Commission to Achieve Disclosure in Financial Markets	139
6.1	Introduction	139
6.1.1	Nature of Securities Commissions	140
6.1.2	The Concept of Coregulation	141
6.2	Commissions and the Legal Framework	143
6.2.1	Introduction	143
6.2.2	Regulation by Securities Commissions to Overcome Nondisclosure	145
6.3	Enforcement of Disclosure Laws by Commissions	155
6.3.1	Investigations and Information Gathering Powers	155
6.3.2	Enforcement Action	156
6.3.3	Enforcement Approaches	166
6.4	Failure of Securities Commission Alone to Achieve Disclosure	168
6.4.1	The Speed of Market Developments	168
6.4.2	The Distance to the Markets	169
6.4.3	National Boundaries and Funding	169
6.4.4	Reliance	170
	Conclusion	170
	References	172
7	Stock Exchanges and the Promotion of Information	177
7.1	Introduction	177
7.2	Disclosure by Stock Exchange Self-Regulation Is Ineffective	179
7.2.1	The Move from Stock Exchange Self-Regulation of Disclosure to Coregulation	179
7.2.2	Will Self-Regulation Ensure the Disclosure of Information?	183
7.2.3	Disadvantages and Failings of Self-Regulation Regarding Disclosure	187
7.2.4	Conclusion	190
7.3	In Support of Stock Exchange Coregulation to Ensure Disclosure	191
7.3.1	Introduction to Coregulation	192
7.3.2	Forms of Coregulation	192
7.3.3	Addressing Conflict of Interest	194
7.3.4	Exchange and Commission Coregulating the Market	197

7.4	Enforcement of Disclosure Under Stock Exchange Rules	205
7.4.1	Introduction	205
7.4.2	Stock Exchanges as the Front Line Regulator	206
7.4.3	Judicial Review	208
	Summary and Conclusion	211
	References	212
8	Towards Principles-Based Regulation	217
8.1	Introduction	217
8.2	Summary of Findings	218
8.3	In Support of Principles-Based Regulation for Disclosure in Financial Markets	220
8.3.1	Introduction	220
8.3.2	Principles-Based Regulation in Financial Markets	222
8.3.3	Principles-Based Regulation and the Global Financial Crisis	227
8.3.4	‘You Must Keep the Financial Market Fully Informed’ . . .	228
8.4	Research Questions Answered	231
	Conclusion to Keep the Financial Markets Fully Informed	233
	References	233
	Index	235

Promoting Information in the Marketplace for Financial Services

Financial Market Regulation and International Standards

Latimer, P.; Maume, P.

2015, XV, 238 p. 1 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-09458-8