

Contents

1	The Policy Case for Metropolitan Transport Authorities	1
1.1	Introduction	1
1.2	Investigating Metropolitan Transport Authorities (MTAs)
	Through Institutional Analysis	2
1.2.1	Introducing Institutions	3
1.2.2	Applied Institutional Analysis: The Case of MTAs	5
1.3	Institutions and Policy Problems: The Instrumental Logic	8
1.3.1	Learning from the Classics	9
1.3.2	Discussing MTAs and Policy Problems	11
1.4	A Static Critique on the ‘Instrumental Logic’	14
	References	25
2	Institutions, Institutional Change and Policy Outcomes	29
2.1	Introduction	29
2.2	Emergence, Evolution and Institutional Efficiency	31
2.2.1	Functionalism and Equilibria-Institutions	32
2.3	Looking Inside Stability and Change	34
2.3.1	Stability and Path Dependence	34
2.3.2	Historical Institutionalism and Varieties of Institutional Change	36
2.4	Power, Institutions and Institutional Change	38
2.5	A Policy Perspective on Institutional Change	42
2.5.1	Who Cares? The Actors of Constituent Policies	42
2.5.2	What Do Designers Want? Institutional Preferences Revisited	44
2.5.3	A Peaceful Decision? Modes of Interaction for Reforming the Metropolis	46
2.5.4	When Will Change Happen?	48
	References	49

3	The New Governance of Transport in London	53
3.1	Introduction	53
3.2	A Brief History of London Transport and Institutions	54
3.2.1	Policy Problems Between the Abolition of the GLC and the Constitution of the GLA	58
3.3	Setting Up a New Government: The Greater London Authority	60
3.3.1	No Compromise in Parliament: The ‘Blair Factor’ and the Labour Victory	63
3.3.2	No Compromise at the Local Level: London Business and the Boroughs	65
3.3.3	Avoiding Tacit Opponents: The Administrative Process	66
3.3.4	Inside Labour: The PPP and the ‘Livingstone Factor’	68
3.4	Understanding Change: New Governance for Better Transport?	71
3.4.1	Clear Accountability: The Mayor, the Assembly and TfL	72
3.4.2	A Strong Metropolitan Leadership: The Mayor, Central Government and the Boroughs	73
3.4.3	A New Decision-Making for Transport Policy	75
3.4.4	Solving Congestion	78
3.5	Some Preliminary Conclusions	80
	References	81
4	The Metropolitan Transport Authority of Barcelona (ATM)	85
4.1	Introduction	85
4.2	From the Origins of Public Transport to the Abolition of the Metropolitan Government	86
4.2.1	The Abolition of the Metropolitan Government	89
4.3	The Establishment of the ATM	91
4.3.1	The Constituent Process: Beyond Coordination	93
4.3.2	The Establishment of the ATM: Some Provisional Conclusions	97
4.4	Understanding Change: New Governance for Better Transport?	98
4.4.1	The ATM and the Funding System	99
4.4.2	Coordinated Planning: Project Elaboration, Approval and Implementation	101
4.4.3	Coordinated Services: Company Affiliations and the Operation of the Services	103
4.5	The ATM Model: A Conservative Innovation	104
	References	105

5 Lessons for Institutional Designers 107

5.1 How to Trigger Institutional Change 108

5.2 Driving the Change Process 109

5.3 Institutional Designs for Policy Capacity. 112

References 114

Index. 115

Governing Metropolitan Transport
Institutional Solutions for Policy Problems

Busetti, S.

2015, XV, 119 p. 3 illus., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-10658-8