

Preface

This anthology, “European Perspectives on Behavioural Law and Economics”, arises from the 3rd Law and Economics Conference from 11 to 12 April 2014 held at the University of Lucerne. The conference was organized in partnership with Notre Dame Law School and their Program on Law and Market Behavior. The main focus of the conference lay on the talks on European legal questions by European legal scholars. They were complimented by insights from distinguished scholars from the United States in order to foster the dialogue between the two different legal cultures. The thematic scope of this volume spans both the theoretical and practical developments of behavioural law and economics.

I take this opportunity to thank all those who have contributed to the organization of the conference and to the successful completion of this volume. First of all, I thank Avishalom Tor from the Program on Law and Market Behavior, Notre Dame University, for co-organizing the conference. I also thank Julia Wetzel, MLaw, and lic. phil. Ariel David Steffen for their diligent proofreading and flawless coordination and organization of the conference. A special thank goes to the Swiss National Science Foundation (SNSF), the Research Commission (FoKo) of the University of Lucerne, the Charitable Foundation Gambit, Hergiswil, as well as the Bank Julius Baer, Geneva, for supporting the conference. Finally, I am grateful to Neil Olivier, Diana Nijenhuijzen and Corina van der Giessen at Springer Publishers for overseeing the publishing process, as well as to Prachi Mehta and her team from Crest Premedia Solutions Private Limited for the careful typesetting.
