

Contents

1 Introduction	1
1.1 Mass Violence and Victim Needs During Transitions Toward Sustainable Peace.....	1
1.2 Outline of Findings	5
References.....	6
2 Healing and Truth Commissions: Competition or Complement?	9
2.1 Why Focus on Healing.....	9
2.2 Healing: A Complex Goal After Mass Violence	11
2.2.1 Conceptualising Healing: Components and Processes	12
2.3 Truth Commissions: A Restorative, Victim-Centred Response to Mass Violence.....	17
2.3.1 Truth Commission Goals.....	19
2.3.2 Truth Commissions as Participatory Processes.....	20
2.3.3 Truth Commissions as Healing Enterprises	22
Conclusion.....	24
References.....	24
3 Theories Explaining the Healing Potential of Public Truth Telling: Linking Voice, Truth Commissions, and Healing	29
3.1 Testimony Method and Healing	30
3.2 Theories of Justice and the Role of Voice	32
3.3 Giving Testimony in Truth Commissions: Possibilities for Voice and Healing.....	35
3.3.1 Empowerment	37
3.3.2 Catharsis.....	41
3.3.3 Being Acknowledged	42
Conclusion.....	45
References.....	45

4	Research Design and Methods	51
4.1	Choosing the Investigation Method	51
4.2	Operationalising Key Concepts.....	52
4.3	Case Selection	53
4.4	Developing the Research Instrument: Semi-Structured Interview Questionnaire	58
4.5	Sampling Strategy	59
4.6	Data Collection.....	60
4.7	Ethical Issues.....	61
4.8	Data Analysis and Presentation.....	62
4.9	Limitations	64
	Conclusion.....	65
	Reference.....	66
5	Timor-Leste: Case Study Analysis	69
5.1	Case Background: Timor-Leste.....	69
5.1.1	Indonesian Occupation.....	71
5.1.2	Women and the Resistance.....	72
5.1.3	Santa Cruz Massacre	73
5.1.4	Path to Independence and Subsequent Violence	73
5.2	Post-Conflict Justice Efforts.....	75
5.2.1	Judicial Initiatives	75
5.2.2	Commission for Reception, Truth, and Reconciliation.....	77
5.3	Field Research Findings and Analysis: Giving Testimony to the CAVR—Opportunities for Healing Through Voice	80
5.3.1	Empowerment	81
5.3.2	Catharsis.....	85
5.3.3	Social Acknowledgment.....	89
5.4	Other Findings.....	94
5.4.1	Clear Communication of CAVR Purpose and Intended Outcomes.....	94
5.4.2	Process Outcomes and Healing: Unmet Expectations and Continuing Needs	96
	Conclusion.....	102
	References.....	103
6	Solomon Islands: Case Study Analysis	107
6.1	Case Background: Solomon Islands.....	108
6.2	Post-conflict Justice Efforts	112
6.2.1	Reconciliation Efforts	112
6.2.2	Tension Trials	114
6.2.3	Solomon Islands Truth and Reconciliation Commission.....	115
6.3	Field Research Findings and Analysis: Giving Testimony to the TRC—Opportunities for Healing Through Voice	116
6.3.1	Empowerment	117

6.3.2	Catharsis.....	121
6.3.3	Social Acknowledgment.....	132
6.4	Other Findings.....	135
6.4.1	Clear Communication of TRC Purpose and Intended Outcomes.....	135
6.4.2	Process Outcomes and Healing: Unmet Expectations and Continuing Needs	137
6.4.3	Counselling and Victim Healing	144
	Conclusion.....	146
	References.....	148
7	Making Sense of the Findings from Timor-Leste and Solomon Islands	153
7.1	Similarities Between Cases	153
7.1.1	Empowerment.....	153
7.1.2	Catharsis.....	154
7.1.3	Social Acknowledgment.....	154
7.1.4	Limitations of Voice and Hindrances to Pathways Toward Healing.....	157
7.1.5	Cultural Sensitivity and Healing.....	161
7.1.6	Process Clarity and Unmet Expectations	162
7.1.7	The Role of Truth and Apology in Mitigating Insufficient Process Outcomes.....	167
7.2	Differences Between Cases.....	169
7.2.1	Differences in Primary Pathways Between Cases: Empowerment and Catharsis.....	169
7.2.2	Desired Outcomes of Truth-Telling Processes: Justice vs. Reconciliation.....	170
7.2.3	Negative Social Reactions to Testimony in Timor-Leste.....	172
	References.....	174
8	Conclusion	179
	References.....	181
	Index	183

<http://www.springer.com/978-3-319-12486-5>

Victim Healing and Truth Commissions
Transforming Pain Through Voice in Solomon Islands and Timor-Leste

Guthrey, H.L.

2015, IX, 184 p. 5 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-12486-5