

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	References	3
2	Shift Happens	5
2.1	Digital Technologies Allow New Forms of Social Interaction.	6
2.2	Enhanced Interaction Opens New Collaboration Possibilities	7
2.3	A New Collaboration Model Presents New Economic Opportunities.	8
2.3.1	Sharing Economy and Disruptive Innovation.	10
	References	12
3	Why Does Law Even Care?	13
3.1	The Scale of the Economic Repercussion of the Creation Industry	14
3.2	Technology Itself Can Play a Regulatory Role.	16
3.3	Legal Interests at Stake and the Mantra of Balance	17
	References	20
4	Collective Rights Management	21
4.1	Collecting in the Name of the Artist.	22
4.2	Controversial Issues in the Context of Collective Rights Management	24
4.2.1	Competition Issues.	24
4.2.2	Transparency and Accountability	25
4.2.3	Multi-territorial Licensing	29

4.3	The Legal Framework of the Collective Rights Management (CRM) Directive	30
4.3.1	Competition Issues	32
4.3.2	Transparency and Accountability	34
4.3.3	Multi-territorial Licensing	37
4.4	Creators X Creative Industry—Are We Speaking the Same Language?	41
	References	43
5	Conclusion	45
	References	47
	Bibliography	49

Collective Rights and Digital Content

The Legal Framework for Competition, Transparency and Multi-territorial Licensing of the New European Directive on Collective Rights Management

Lucena, C.

2015, XI, 50 p., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-15909-6