

Contents

1	A Model of New Employee Safety Risks	1
1.1	Introduction	1
1.2	New Employee Accidents	2
1.3	Pre-employment Preparation: Job Applicant Experience and Safety Expectations.	2
1.4	Pre-employment Preparation: Job Risk Profile	3
1.5	Recruitment and Selection Processes	4
1.6	Socialization and Prestart Training Processes	4
1.7	The Initial Employment Period	5
1.8	Helping Behaviors	6
1.9	Measurement	6
1.10	An Integrated Management System	6
1.11	Conclusions	7
	Reference	7
2	New Employee Accident Rates.	9
2.1	Introduction	9
2.2	Job Tenure and Accidents	10
2.3	Employee Age and Accidents.	13
2.4	Employee Turnover Rates and Safety	15
2.5	Can the Problem of New Employee Safety Risks Get Worse?	16
2.5.1	Predicted Global Employee Turnover Rate Increases	16
2.5.2	Retirement of the Baby Boomer Generation	18
2.5.3	Nature of the Contemporary Workforce	18
2.5.4	Recovery from the Global Recession.	19
2.6	Conclusions	19
	References.	20

3	Types of New Employee: Experience and Pre-entry
	Safety Expectations.	23
3.1	Introduction	23
3.2	Job Tenure and Job Experience	23
3.3	Classification of New Employees in Types.	24
3.4	Defining Experience	24
3.4.1	The Transfer of Experience	27
3.5	New Employee Safety Expectations	28
3.5.1	Experience with Accidents and Expectations	30
3.6	Experience and Expectations	30
3.7	Managing the Risks	31
3.7.1	Assessing New Employee Experience	31
3.7.2	New Employee Safety Expectation Assessment and Development	32
3.8	Conclusions	38
	References.	38
4	The Job's Safety Risk Profile	41
4.1	Introduction	41
4.2	Job's Safety Risk Profile	41
4.2.1	Normal and Known Safety Risks	42
4.2.2	Equipment Safety Issues	43
4.2.3	Assigning Tasks to New Employees	44
4.2.4	Assigning New Employee Working Hours and Shifts	45
4.2.5	Workload and Performance	45
4.2.6	Environmental Variance.	46
4.2.7	Team and Co-worker Characteristics	46
4.2.8	Supervision	47
4.2.9	Employee Silence and Safety Voice	48
4.3	Conclusions	51
	References.	51
5	The Influences of Recruitment Processes and Selection Predictors on New Employee Safety.	55
5.1	Introduction	55
5.2	Defining What to Communicate and What to Measure	58
5.3	Job Analysis	59
5.4	Recruitment Processes	60
5.5	New Employee Selection Predictors	62
5.5.1	Application Blank.	62
5.5.2	Employment Interviews	64
5.5.3	Cognitive Ability Testing.	65

5.5.4	Anthropometric Characteristics, and Physical, Psychomotor, Sensory/Perceptual Ability	66
5.5.5	Personality Testing	66
5.5.6	Safety Attitudes	69
5.5.7	Commercial Products	69
5.6	Communicating a Realistic Outcome View.	70
5.7	Conclusions	70
	References.	70
6	The Influences of Socialization and Prestart Training on New Employee Safety.	75
6.1	Introduction	75
6.2	Employees Perception of Pstart Training: The Dangers	75
6.3	Socialization Processes	78
6.4	Pstart Training	81
6.4.1	The Needs Assessment: Training Program Content	82
6.4.2	Training Program Structure and Methods.	83
6.4.3	Integration into Existing Knowledge	84
6.4.4	Training Evaluation.	84
6.4.5	Training Transfer and Maintenance	85
6.5	Communicating Realistic Socialization and Training Outcome Expectations	86
6.6	Conclusions	86
	References.	87
7	The Initial Employment Period: Behaviors, Familiarity, Adaptation and Trust Development.	91
7.1	Introduction	91
7.2	The Adaptation Process	91
7.3	Task Assignment	92
7.4	Supervision	93
7.5	Co-worker Compensatory Behaviors	95
7.6	Changes in New Employee Behavior.	99
7.7	Trust Development	101
7.7.1	A Trust Building Strategy	103
7.8	Conclusions	104
	References.	104
8	New Employee Helping Behaviors	109
8.1	Introduction	109
8.2	Helping	109
8.3	New Employees: Helping and Job Tenure	110
8.4	Why Is Helping Risky?	111

8.5	Other Risk Mechanisms Associated with Helping	114
8.5.1	The Forgetting Mechanism.	114
8.5.2	The Absence Mechanism	115
8.5.3	The Hazard Creation Mechanism	115
8.5.4	The Time Pressure Mechanism	115
8.6	Why Help	116
8.6.1	Need for Job Security	116
8.6.2	Social Integration	117
8.6.3	Need for Affiliation.	117
8.6.4	Respect	117
8.6.5	Gratitude	118
8.7	Managing New Employee Helping Behaviors.	119
8.7.1	A Safety Conscious Helping Culture	119
8.7.2	A Think Before You Help Process	120
8.8	Conclusions	121
	References.	121
9	Measuring New Employee Safety-Related Variables	125
9.1	Introduction	125
9.2	New Employee Safety Expectations	126
9.2.1	Expected Co-worker Behavior	127
9.2.2	Expected Familiarization by Co-workers	127
9.2.3	Expected Co-worker Safety Communication.	129
9.2.4	Expected Co-workers Reactions to New Employees	130
9.2.5	Expected Co-worker Safety Behavior	130
9.2.6	Expected Management Safety Behavior	130
9.2.7	Expected Supervision	131
9.2.8	New Employee Expected Behavior	133
9.3	Awareness of Helping Safety Risks.	134
9.4	Job Safety Risk Profile: The Safety Specific Exit Survey.	135
9.5	Employee Perceptions and Exposure to New Employee Risk	137
9.5.1	Employee Perceptions of Organizational Processes: Selection, and Training.	138
9.5.2	Measuring Co-worker Caring	138
9.5.3	Measuring Perceptions of New Employee Safety Behavior	139
9.6	Conclusions	140
	References.	141
10	Integration of the New Employee Safety Risk Management Processes	143
10.1	Introduction	143
10.2	Step 1: Acknowledgement and Responsibility.	143

10.3	Step 2: Understanding Job Risks Using Safety Risk Profiling	144
10.4	Step 3: Communicating Safety Information to Job Applicants and New Employees	145
10.4.1	Realistic Safety Preview: Job Advertisement	147
10.4.2	Realistic Safety Preview: Job Description and Person Specification	148
10.5	Step 4: Selecting New Employees	148
10.5.1	Selection Measures	149
10.5.2	Assumptions About Selection Processes	150
10.6	Step 5: New Employees' Induction and Prestart Training	151
10.6.1	Setting Realistic Safety Expectations	152
10.6.2	Acquiring Information During Induction and Prestart Training	152
10.6.3	Assumptions About Induction and Prestart Training Processes	153
10.7	Step 6: The Initial Employment Period	153
10.7.1	Familiarization	154
10.7.2	Trust Development	155
10.7.3	Helping Behaviors	155
10.8	Step 7: Annual Safety Training	156
10.9	Conclusions	157
	Index	159

New Employee Safety

Risk Factors and Management Strategies

Burt, C.D.B.

2015, XI, 163 p. 9 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-18683-2