

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	References	4
2	Interest Groups	7
	Introduction	7
	Defining Interest Groups	8
	Interest Groups as Transnational Actors	10
	Towards a Different Perspective on Interest Groups in Water Politics and Governance	12
	Conclusion	16
	References	17
3	The Orange-Senqu River	21
	Introduction	21
	Biophysical Characteristics	21
	The Orange River's Importance	23
	The Lesotho Highlands Water Project	25
	Historical Background of Water Resources Development in the Orange River Basin	27
	Water Project Implementation Picks up: 1867–1956	27
	From Idea to Treaty: 1956–1986	28
	A New Idea and Political Issues Surfacing	29
	Independence and Cooperation	30
	Worsening Relations	31
	The Feasibility Study	32
	Macroconflict and Microcooperation	33
	Coup d'état and the Signing of the Treaty	35
	Improved Relations and Implementation: 1986–2003	36
	Interest Group Involvement	37
	It All Started with Faith-Based Interest Groups	37
	More Interest Groups Come to the Party	39

Christian Aid's Tour of the Project	39
Response to Labour Unrest	41
Villagers File a Law Suit	42
Report by the Highland Church Action Group and Increased Pressure on the Governments	42
Memorandum of Understanding	44
World Commission on Dams Hearings	46
Interaction with the World Bank	46
Three Individuals Complain	49
'Water Wars'	51
The Alexandra Civics Organisation's Continued Opposition	51
Demand for Compensation	52
Alternatives Suggested	52
Mohale Reservoir and the Lakabane Family	53
Parliamentarians Visit the LHWP	54
The Ombudsman Investigates	55
Recommendations to Project Authorities	57
Conclusion	58
References	59
4 Everyday Agency and the Lesotho Highlands Water Project	65
Introduction	65
Interest Groups as Agents	66
Expression of Norms	69
Change	71
Discussion and Conclusion	74
Moral Authority	77
Knowledge Authority	78
Reputational Authority	78
Issue-Specific Authority	78
Affiliative Authority	79
Erosion of Agential State Power	79
References	82

Interest Groups, Water Politics and Governance
The Case of the Lesotho Highlands Water Project

Meissner, R.

2015, VIII, 83 p. 2 illus. in color., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-21129-9