

Contents

List of figures.....	12
List of tables	12
List of abbreviations	13
1. Introduction	15
2. Key Concept: Transitional justice.....	27
2.1. Origins and historical developments	27
2.2. Conceptual definition and instruments	33
2.3. Transitional justice and collective memory.....	47
3. State of the art.....	51
3.1. Transitional justice as an academic field.....	51
3.2. Enabling conditions for transitional justice	55
3.3. The impact of transitional justice	61
4. Nicaragua: Case selection and historical context.....	67
4.1. Case selection.....	67
4.2. Historical introduction: Nicaragua in the 17 th to 20 th century	67
4.3. The Somoza dictatorship (1936-1979).....	70
4.3.1. Regime characteristics	70
4.3.2. The formation of the FSLN and the revolution of 1979.....	71
4.4. The Sandinista era (1979-1990)	76
4.4.1. Revolutionary rule	76
4.4.2. Regime opposition and counterrevolution	80
4.4.3. The civil war and the economic decline.....	89
4.4.4. The peace process	91
4.5. Drawing a line under the past.....	98
4.6. Transitional justice literature on Nicaragua	100
5. Research design and methodology	103
5.1. Case study method and hypotheses	103
5.2. Process-tracing	107
5.3. Qualitative interviews	109
5.4. Qualitative content analysis	112

6. Historical reasons for the lack of transitional justice	115
6.1. The mode of the regime transition and the Sandinistas' victor's justice	115
6.1.1. The dual regime transition	115
6.1.2. Victor's justice under the Sandinistas	118
6.1.3. Dealing with the Somoza era after 1990	121
6.2. The nature of the Sandinista regime.....	122
6.2.1. 1979-1983: The 'Sandinization' of Nicaragua.....	122
6.2.2. 1984-1990: Democratic reforms	128
6.3. Human rights violations (1979-1990)	132
6.3.1. Legal foundations and the states of emergency.....	134
6.3.2. Civil liberties.....	135
6.3.3. Revolutionary justice	138
6.3.4. Freedom from arbitrary arrest, torture, and inhuman treatment	139
6.3.5. The right to life	141
6.3.6. Human rights violations at the Atlantic Coast	143
6.3.7. Human rights abuses by the Contras and the USA	148
6.3.8. The distribution of guilt	152
6.3.9. Cases of comparison and conclusion	153
7. Reasons for the lack of transitional justice 1990-1997.....	157
7.1. Elite interests and the balance of power	157
7.1.1. Interests of the Sandinistas and the Contras in Sapoá	158
7.1.2. The first priority of the Chamorro government: A peaceful transition.....	162
7.1.3. The balance of power.....	166
7.1.4. The post-war crime wave	167
7.1.5. Chamorro's personal position on transitional justice	174
7.2. The desolate state of the national economy.....	176
7.3. The lack of domestic demand for transitional justice.....	179
7.3.1. The absence of a victims' movement.....	179
7.3.2. The 'Mothers of the Disappeared'	184
7.3.3. The position of the Catholic Church	186
7.3.4. Human rights organizations and transitional justice	191
7.4. The absence of international transitional justice advocacy	195
7.4.1. The position of foreign states.....	196
7.4.2. The United Nations	198

7.4.3. The USA	200
7.4.4. The Organization of American States	203
7.4.5. International human rights organizations	206
8. Transitional justice and contested memories 1997-2012	211
8.1. The Alemán administration (1997-2002).....	211
8.1.1. Memory wars and the 1996 electoral campaigns	212
8.1.2. Erasing the revolutionary era from public memory	216
8.1.3. Political developments: The revival of caudillismo	218
8.2. The Bolaños presidency (2002-2007)	223
8.2.1. Political developments under President Bolaños	224
8.2.2. The attempted truth commission	227
8.3. The Ortega II government (2007-2012).....	235
8.3.1. History, memory, and the 2006 elections.....	235
8.3.2. Recovering the revolution	238
8.3.3. Political developments: Towards an authoritarian state	241
8.3.4. The case of the Navidad Roja	247
8.3.5. Último Capítulo. Goodbye Nicaragua.....	258
8.3.6. Memoria, Cultura, Ciudadanía: Initiatives of the IHNCA	270
9. Conclusion	275
9.1. Summary and discussion.....	275
9.2. Comparable cases.....	291
9.3. Implications for practice	294
9.4. Future research	298
Appendix 1: The Nicaraguan justice system	301
Appendix 2: Judicial parameters in comparative perspective.....	305
Bibliography	307

Transitional Justice in Nicaragua 1990-2012

Drawing a Line Under the Past

Bothmann, A.

2015, XIV, 320 p. 7 illus., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-658-10502-0