

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	The Purport and Conception of the Studies in This Book	1
1.2	Mutations and Shifts Within the Traditional Culture at the Juncture of the Ming and Qing Dynasties	5
1.3	Evolutions in Qing Dynasty Ideology, Academics, and Culture Prior to the Opium Wars	15
	References	28
2	Evolution in Ideology and Culture After the Opium Wars and Up To the Westernization Movement	29
2.1	The Strange “Barbarians”	30
2.2	Learning the Best of Foreign Skills	33
2.3	The Culture of the Taiping Heavenly Kingdom	44
2.4	The Initial Foundations of Modern Culture	48
2.5	The Conceptual Framework of “Zhong Ti Xi Yong”	62
	References	77
3	The Leading Roles of Reform and Revolution in the Sociocultural Trends of the Final Years of the Qing Dynasty	79
3.1	The Acute Challenges Faced by “Zhong Ti”	80
3.2	Politics Guide Cultural Trends	93
3.2.1	Translation and Writing of Books	94
3.2.2	Newspapers	96
3.2.3	Education	97
3.2.4	Industry and Commerce Serving the Country and the Movement to Recover Economic Rights	103
3.2.5	The Politicization of Literature as Represented by Novels	110
	References	116

4	Initial Shaping of Social Public Cultural Spaces at the End of the Qing Dynasty	117
4.1	Development of Modern Education Between 1898 and 1911 . . .	118
4.1.1	Before and After 1898	118
4.1.2	Advances in New Education from 1902 to 1905 Prior to the Abolishing of the Imperial Examinations System . . .	119
4.2	Development of Modern Social Groups During the 1898–1911 Period	125
4.3	The Establishment of a Modern Media System and Other Matters	132
4.3.1	The Development of Modern Newspapers and a Modern Publishing Industry and Their Role in Society	132
4.3.2	The Establishment of Other Social Public Culture Facilities	137
	References	138
5	Major Trends in Ideological and Cultural Transformation Toward the End of the Qing Dynasty	141
5.1	Major Transformations in Thinking and Concepts	141
5.1.1	From the “De-Reverencing of the Sons of Heaven” to the Negation of Monarchical Power	141
5.1.2	The Shaking of the Exalted Position of Confucius and Confucianism	148
5.2	The Trend Toward a Populist Culture	158
5.3	Changing Customs and Habits in a Modern Secular Culture . . .	166
5.4	Initial Emergence of Globalization and Individuality	178
	References	187
6	Political Disarray and Conflicts Between New and Old Ideology in the First Years of the Republic	189
6.1	Political Disarray in the Early Years of the Nationalist Republic	190
6.1.1	The Stand-off Between North and South	190
6.1.2	Repeated Internal Upheavals and External Coercion . . .	192
6.1.3	The “Second Revolution”	194
6.1.4	A Parliament in Name Only	196
6.1.5	The Restoration Farce	197
6.2	The Conflict Between Old and New Ideology	200
6.2.1	The Controversy Over the Republican and Imperial Systems	202
6.2.2	The Debate Over a Confucian Religion	208
6.2.3	The Controversy About New and Old Morals	221
	Reference	225

7	Rise of the New Culture Movement	227
7.1	The Reflections of Forward-Looking Persons	228
7.2	Rise of the New Culture Movement	234
7.3	Sharp Conflicts Between the New and Old Cultures	245
7.4	The Social Foundations of the New Culture Movement	260
	References	265
8	The Social Foundations of the New Culture Movement	267
8.1	The Immense Impetus Given by the May Fourth Movement to the New Culture Movement	267
8.2	The Concrete Results of the New Culture Movement	272
8.2.1	Concrete Results of the Literary Revolution	272
8.2.2	Initial Successes of the Educational Reform and Increasing Maturity of the New Education	277
8.2.3	The Awakening of a Generation of Young People and Their "Integration into Society"	283
8.3	The Main Concepts of the New Culture	292
8.3.1	Populism	292
8.3.2	Individuality	296
8.3.3	The Scientific Spirit	301
8.3.4	The Open Culture Concept	306
8.3.5	The Program and Objectives of the New Culture Movement	312
	References	314
9	From Cultural Movement to Political Movement	315
9.1	The Debate over Problems and Isms	316
9.1.1	What Were the Problems Raised by Hu Shih?	317
9.1.2	How the Problems Raised by Lan Gongwu and Li Dazhao Differed	319
9.1.3	How Hu Shih Responded to Lan Gongwu and Li Dazhao	320
9.1.4	The Essence and Significance of the Debate	322
9.2	The Divisions Among Colleagues at New Youth	326
9.3	The Birth of the Communist Party of China	332
9.3.1	The Widespread Dissemination of Marxism	333
9.3.2	The Founding of the Communist Party of China	336

9.4	The Restructuring of the Kuomintang	338
9.4.1	Sun Yat-sen's Restructuring of the Kuomintang: Ideological Preparation	339
9.4.2	Impetus Given by Soviet Russia, the Comintern, and Chinese Communists	341
9.4.3	The Restructuring	344
9.5	All-Round Upsurge in the Intellectuals' Concern for Politics . . .	347
9.5.1	Interprovincial Autonomy	347
9.5.2	The "Good Governance" Proposal	348
	References	351
10	Evolutions in the Role of Conservatism in the Transition to a Modern Culture	353
10.1	Conservatism During the Westernization Movement	354
10.2	Conservatism in the Period Between 1989 and 1911	361
10.2.1	Conservatism During the 1989 Reform Movement	361
10.2.2	The "Preservation of National Essence" Doctrine During the High Tide of the Anti-Manchu Revolution	368
10.3	The Critical Review School During the New Culture Movement	375
	References	388
11	Political Change and Cultural Transition	389
11.1	The Definitions of Politics and Culture	389
11.2	Political Awakening Fuels the Trend Toward Cultural Renovation	391
11.2.1	The Political Awakening of the Chinese in Modern Times	392
11.2.2	Cultural Awakening of the Chinese in Modern Times	397
11.3	Major Impacts of Cultural Awakening on Politics	405
	References	411
	Closing Remarks	413
	Postscript	433
	Chinese Bibliography	435

An Introductory Study on China's Cultural Transformation in Recent Times

Geng, Y.

2015, X, 442 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-662-44589-1