

Contents

1	The Theoretical Basis of Moral Capital	1
1.1	Morality Makes a “Real Economy”	1
1.1.1	Property Rights and Morality	2
1.1.2	The Nature of Productive Labor Lies in Moral Sublimation ...	4
1.1.3	Justice and Equality are the Sustainable Basis of Distribution and Exchange	6
1.2	Is the Purpose of Morality Spiritual or Material?	9
1.3	Economic Morals and Their Functions	11
1.3.1	Ideological Origins of Economic Morals	11
1.3.2	The Meaning of Economic Morals	14
1.3.3	Functions of Economic Morals	18
1.4	Pareto Optimality and its Moral Basis	22
1.5	The Economic Value of Morality	23
1.5.1	Morality is a Productive Spiritual Resource That Can Create Economic Value	25
1.5.2	The Unique Role Played by Moral Capital in the Increment of Value and the Restraint of Capital	29
1.5.3	Business Operations: Putting Morality’s Economic Value into Practice	32
1.5.4	Discussion	37
1.6	Morality Creating Profits is Not the Materialization of Morality	39
1.7	Internal Combination of Ethics and the Economy	41
1.7.1	The Birth and Significance of Business Morality	41
1.7.2	The Economy’s Endogenous Morality and its Structure	43
1.7.3	Morality Outside the Economy	46
1.7.4	Economic Significance and Value Realization of Morality ...	48
	References	51
2	The Theory of Moral Capital	55
2.1	The Concept and Value Realization of Moral Capital	55
2.1.1	Capital and Moral Capital	56
2.1.2	Moral Capital Creates Value	59

2.2	Dependence and Independence of Moral Capital	63
2.2.1	The Dependence of Moral Capital	63
2.2.2	The Independence of Moral Capital	67
2.3	The Economic Interpretation of Moral Capital	73
2.3.1	Capital in a Broad Sense and Moral Capital	74
2.3.2	Moral Resource as an Institutional Resource	76
2.3.3	The Economic Logic that Moral Source can Become Moral Capital	80
2.4	The Concept and Functions of Moral Capital in History and the Contemporary World	82
2.4.1	From “Morality as an End” to “Morality as an Instrument”	82
2.4.2	From “Physical Capital” to “Moral Capital”	87
2.4.3	Morality acts as an Instrument in Promoting Economic Development	93
2.5	Moral Capital and its Development—Comments on The Moral Capital of Leaders by Alejo G. Sison	96
2.5.1	What is Moral Capital?	96
2.5.2	The Functions and Management of Moral Capital	102
2.5.3	Development and Enhancement of Moral Capital	104
2.5.4	The Management of Moral Capital	106
2.6	The Basic Forms of Moral Capital	107
2.6.1	The Form of Moral Institutions	108
2.6.2	The Form of Rational Relationships	110
2.6.3	The Form of Subject Consciousness	113
2.6.4	The Form of Moral Products	115
2.7	In What Sense Could Morality Become Capital?	117
2.7.1	Morality is the Soul of Human-centered Product Design	118
2.7.2	Morality is an Important Factor to Shorten Socially Necessary Labor Time per Product Unit	118
2.7.3	Morality is the Source of Corporate Reputation	119
2.7.4	Morality is an Important Factor to Activate Tangible Capital and Increase the Capacities for the Multiplication of Capital	120
2.7.5	Morality Guides or Constrains Rational Consumption	121
2.8	Why Does Moral Capital Exist?—Response to Questions	123
2.8.1	Moral Capital is Fundamentally Different from the “capital” Defined by Marx in Nature	123
2.8.2	Moral Capital and Moral Capitalization are not Logically Connected	125
2.8.3	Will the Concept of Moral Capital Cause Morality to Fall Victim to “Instrumentalization”?	126
2.8.4	Will Capital Make Money Unscrupulously, Causing Moral Leprosy due to the Emergence of the Theory of Moral Capital?	127
2.8.5	Is not Morality as a Normative Value Requirement Objectively Necessary?	128
	References	129

3 The Traditional Theory of Moral Capital in Chinese
Intellectual History	133
3.1 Moralism	133
3.1.1 Ethical Economic Morality before the Emergence of Confucianism	133
3.1.2 Ethical Economic Morality of Confucianism in the Late Spring and Autumn Period	139
3.1.3 Ethical Economic Morality Philosophy in the Western Han Dynasty	156
3.1.4 Ethical Economic Morality Philosophy in the Song and Ming Dynasties	161
3.2 Utilitarianism	167
3.2.1 The Utilitarian Economic Morality Philosophy Came into Being as the Establishment of Mohism, Legalism and Taoism in the Pre-Qin Period	167
3.2.2 The Utilitarian Economic Morality Philosophy in the Song Dynasty	177
3.2.3 The Utilitarian Economic Morality Philosophy with Capitalistic Characteristics Emerging after the Late Ming Dynasty	182
3.3 Idealism	193
3.3.1 The Economic Morality Ideology of Xu Xing	195
3.3.2 The Economic Morality Ideology of Physiocrats Recorded in Lyu's Spring and Autumn Annals	196
3.4 Economic Morality Ideology in Modern China: Transition of Modernity	198
3.4.1 Morality-Interest Consistency	199
3.4.2 Economic Development for Public Interests	201
3.4.3 The Equality of Rights is a Prerequisite of Economic Development	204
3.5 The Combination of Management and Morality	206
References	208
4 The Roles Played by Moral Capital in Business Operations	209
4.1 In What Sense Could Morality Become Spiritual Productivity?	209
4.1.1 Interpretation of Marx's Spiritual Productivity	209
4.1.2 Morality is a Kind of Spiritual Productivity	210
4.1.3 How Does Morality, as a Kind of Spiritual Productivity, Turn into Social Labor Productivity?	212
4.1.4 Morality is the Premise to Discuss the Proposition of Spiritual Productivity	215
4.2 The Basis and Standard to Judge the Level of Productivity	216
4.2.1 Morality Judges and Promotes the Development of Productivity	217
4.2.2 Human Development and the Improvement of Interpersonal Relationships are the Important Indicators for the Level of Productivity	220

4.2.3	Question the Questioning of “Moral Productivity”	223
4.3	Integrity is the Core Competitiveness of Economic Development	225
4.4	Corporate Integrity and its Mechanism for Implementation: Take Haier as an Example	228
4.4.1	Analysis of Corporate Integrity	229
4.4.2	Mechanism for the Implementation of Corporate Integrity	233
4.5	Strategic Analysis on Corporate Morality and Its Development in Contemporary China	236
4.5.1	Achievements in Corporate Moral Development	237
4.5.2	Loss of Corporate Morality and Analysis of Its Fundamental Cause	245
4.5.3	“An Entrepreneur Should Have the Blood of Morality Flowing Inside” and a Company Should Strive to Realize Its Moral Operation	249
	References	255
5	Annex: Corporate Moral Capital and its Evaluation Index System ...	257
	Index	265

On Moral Capital

Wang, X.

2015, XI, 266 p. 8 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-662-45543-2