

Contents

- 1 A Qualitative Study of Business Ethics: A Sociologist Walks into a Business School 1
 - 1.1 Introduction and Methodology 1
 - 1.2 Brief Summary of General Research Findings and Theoretical Perspectives 3
 - 1.3 Methods 4
 - 1.4 Theoretical Framework: The Banality of Good and Evil Rests on Solidarity 6
 - 1.5 Why Do People Do Good and Bad Things? 7
 - 1.6 Solidarity Is the Constant: Behavior Is the Variable 10
 - 1.7 Milgram’s Experiments, Solidarity, and the Banality of Evil 11
 - 1.8 Critical Examination of Cultural Conventions 15
 - 1.9 Outline of Subsequent Chapters 18
 - Appendix: Survey Questions on Business Ethics Courses 19
- 2 Management Theory and Business Education: Is Business Behavior Anti-social Behavior? 21
 - 2.1 Business Ethics, Business Practice, and the Importance of Solidarity 22
 - 2.2 Business Ethics and Practice: Taken-for-Granted Assumptions . . . 26
 - 2.3 Business Behavior and Anti-social Behavior: The Inverse Relationship between the Valuation of Money and Social Attachment 29
 - 2.4 Group Solidarity as a Motivation for Ethical and Non-ethical Behavior 31
- 3 Putting Ethics in Business 35
 - 3.1 Ethics Versus Business Ethics 36
 - 3.2 Observations in Business Ethics Classes 38
 - 3.3 Narratives of Business Ethics Professors 44
 - 3.4 A Sense of Isolation Among Business Ethics Instructors 44

3.5	Reflections on Teaching Responsibilities	46
3.6	The Connections and Disconnections Between Business Ethics Classes and Business Culture and Practice	47
4	Diversity in Business: Is It Still a White (Heterosexual, Christian, Western-Educated) Man's World?	53
4.1	India: Everything and Its Opposite	53
4.2	In India: A "360 Degree" Learning Model	55
4.3	Demographic Diversity	57
4.4	Synopsis of Business Ethics Program in India	58
4.5	Ghana: "Freedom and Justice" and an Ethical Renaissance	59
4.6	The Honor Code	61
4.7	Demographic Diversity	66
4.8	Employment	66
4.9	Synopsis of Business Ethics Program in Ghana	67
4.10	New Zealand/Aotearoa: Duality and Unity	68
4.11	Demographic Diversity	69
4.12	Diversity in U.S. Business Schools	71
4.13	Diversity in Leadership	73
4.14	Approaches to Diversity in Business Management Education	75
5	Alternative and Critical Perspectives in Business Ethics	77
5.1	Alternative Perspectives: Disciplinary Integration	78
5.2	Critiques on Business Culture and Capitalist Economic Systems	81
6	Is Change Possible or What Changes Are Already Underway?	85
	References	89

Ethics and Diversity in Business Management Education

A Sociological Study with International Scope

Godwyn, M.

2015, X, 94 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-662-46653-7