

Contents

1 Religion, Spirituality, and Positive Psychology:
History and Definitions	1
1.1 A History of the Relationship Between Religion and Science	5
1.2 A History of the Relationship Between Religion, Spirituality, and Psychology	7
1.2.1 Religion, Spirituality, and the Field of Positive Psychology	10
1.3 Definition and Measurement of Constructs	12
1.3.1 Religiosity and Spirituality	12
1.3.2 Optimal Psychological Functioning	15
1.3.3 Goals and Objectives of This Book	16
References	18
2 Faith and Positive Emotions	23
2.1 Religious Differences in the Experience of Emotions	24
2.2 Faith-Based Emotions	26
2.2.1 Assessing Emotions Defined as Explicitly Spiritual or Religious	27
2.2.2 Assessing Emotions Related to a Higher Power	28
2.2.3 Assessing Emotions Evoked by Religious or Spiritual Practices	30
2.2.4 The Uniqueness of Faith-Based Emotions	33
2.3 Faith Predictors of Positive Emotions and Well-Being	33
2.3.1 The Size and Nature of the Relationship Between Faith and Emotional Well-Being	34
2.3.2 Religious Coping as an Aspect of Faith Linked to Emotional Well-Being	35

2.3.3	Possible Moderators of the Relationship Between Faith and Emotional Well-Being	37
2.3.4	Directionality in the Relationship Between Faith and Emotional Well-Being	38
2.4	Faith Predictors of Positive Emotions and Well-Being Among Diverse Religious Samples	41
2.5	Possible Mechanisms for the Links Between Faith and Well-Being	43
2.6	Implications	45
2.6.1	Clinical Implications	46
2.6.2	A Cautionary Note	47
2.7	Directions for Future Research	48
2.8	Chapter Summary	50
	References	51
3	Faith and Behavior	61
3.1	Faith and Prosocial Behaviors	62
3.1.1	Altruism and Helping	63
3.1.2	Forgiveness	68
3.1.3	Morality and Ethical Behavior	72
3.2	Health-Related Behaviors	78
3.2.1	Faith, Health-Promoting, and Potential Risk Behaviors . . .	79
3.3	Potential Mechanisms of Behavior Outcomes	83
3.3.1	Social Control Theory	84
3.3.2	Self-Control and Self-Regulation	84
3.3.3	Social Learning Theory	86
3.3.4	Positive Emotions	87
3.4	Implications	88
3.4.1	A Cautionary Note	91
3.5	Directions for Future Research	91
3.6	Chapter Summary	94
	References	96
4	Faith and Cognition	107
4.1	Faith and Meaning	109
4.1.1	Faith and Global Meaning	109
4.1.2	Faith and Situational Meaning	113
4.2	Cognitive Faith Practices and Positive Outcomes	123
4.2.1	Prayer	123
4.2.2	Meditation	128
4.3	Implications	130
4.3.1	Clinical Implications	130
4.3.2	A Cautionary Note	132
4.4	Directions for Future Research	134
4.5	Chapter Summary	136
	References	137

5 Faith and Relationships	149
5.1 Faith and Marital Relationships	150
5.1.1 Religious Beliefs	150
5.1.2 Prayer	152
5.1.3 Involvement in a Religious Community	153
5.1.4 Shared Religious Activities	153
5.2 Faith and Parent-Child Relationships	154
5.2.1 Faith Variables Among Parents	155
5.2.2 Faith Variables Among Children	160
5.2.3 Relational Faith Variables	161
5.3 Faith and Family Functioning	163
5.4 Faith and Non-familial Relationships	165
5.4.1 Romantic Relationships	165
5.4.2 Friendships	166
5.4.3 Faith and Orientation to Relationships	167
5.5 Possible Mechanisms for Links Between Faith and Relationships	168
5.5.1 Relationship Values	168
5.5.2 Social Support	169
5.5.3 Spiritual Resources	169
5.6 Implications	170
5.6.1 Clinical Implications	170
5.6.2 A Cautionary Note	171
5.7 Directions for Future Research	173
5.8 Chapter Summary	176
References	177
6 Faith and Community	183
6.1 A Theoretical Model of Faith and Community Well-Being	184
6.1.1 Faith and Social Well-Being	185
6.1.2 Faith and Sense of Community	186
6.1.3 Faith and Social Capital	186
6.1.4 Empirical Support for a Model of Faith and Community Well-Being	187
6.2 Faith in Educational Settings	189
6.2.1 Education Satisfaction	191
6.2.2 Educational Aspirations	191
6.2.3 Educational Achievement	192
6.3 Faith in the Workplace	194
6.3.1 Positive Outcomes of Faith, Calling, and Sanctification	196
6.3.2 Faith and Job Stress	198
6.3.3 Faith and Organizational Ethics and Leadership	198
6.4 Faith-Based Organizations	199
6.4.1 Resources and Outreach Efforts	200

6.5	Implications	203
6.5.1	Educational Settings	203
6.5.2	Workplace Settings	204
6.5.3	A Cautionary Note	205
6.6	Directions for Future Research	206
6.7	Chapter Summary	208
	References	211
7	Final Reflections on Faith and Positive Human Functioning	219
7.1	Robust Findings Relating Faith to Optimal Functioning	220
7.2	Equivocal and Cautionary Findings	224
7.2.1	Equivocal Findings	225
7.2.2	Cautionary Notes About Faith and Human Functioning . . .	228
7.3	Moderators and Mechanisms of Faith Links to Optimal Functioning	230
7.3.1	Faith Moderators	230
7.3.2	Faith Mechanisms	231
7.4	Clinical Implications of Faith	234
7.5	Research Limitations and Future Directions	236
	References	241
	Index	251

Faith from a Positive Psychology Perspective

Miller-Perrin, C.; Krumrei Mancuso, E.

2015, X, 255 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-94-017-9435-0