

Contents

1	Work Wellness in South Africa: A History of Change	1
1.1	Introduction	1
1.2	South Africa's Changing Labour Relations System	3
1.3	The Employee-Organisation Relationship and Wellness	5
	References	6
2	The Psychological Contract	9
2.1	The Psychological Contract as Part of the Employee-Organisation Relationship (EOR)	9
2.2	Breach and Violation of the Psychological Contract	13
2.3	Employee and Employer Obligations	14
2.4	Influence of the Social Context on the Psychological Contract	17
	References	18
3	The Employment Relationship	21
3.1	The Employment Relationship as Part of the Labour Relations System	21
3.2	Employment Regulations	24
3.3	The South African Approach to Labour Relations	26
3.4	Experience of Employment Regulations	32
3.4.1	Availability	32
3.4.2	Ascertainment	32
3.4.3	Understanding	33
3.4.4	Acceptance	33
3.4.5	Trust in Application and Consistency	34
	References	35

4	The Economic Impact of Wellness	37
4.1	The Cost of Wellness	37
4.2	Individual Work Wellness and Its Cost.	37
4.2.1	The Psychological Contract and Wellness	38
4.2.2	Job Satisfaction.	38
4.2.3	Job Insecurity	39
4.3	Relational Work Wellness and Its Cost	39
4.4	Link Between Industrial Actions and Wellness	41
4.4.1	The Marikana Massacre	42
4.4.2	Western Cape Farm workers Strike	44
4.4.3	The Platinum Mine Strike of 2014	46
4.4.4	Proposed Link Between Industrial Action and Wellness	48
	References.	50
5	Conclusion	53
5.1	Conclusions	53
5.2	Implications of the Research	57
5.3	Proposed Integrated Work Wellness Model	57
5.4	Practical Implications.	59
5.5	Theoretical Implications.	59
	References.	60
	Index	61

<http://www.springer.com/978-981-287-401-6>

The Value of Wellness in the Workplace
A Perspective of the Employee-Organisation
Relationship in the South African Labour Market

Linde, B.

2015, VI, 65 p. 6 illus., Softcover

ISBN: 978-981-287-401-6