

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	References	7
2	Methods of Assessing Integrity of Pipeline Systems with Different Types of Defects	9
2.1	Causes of Pipeline Failures	9
2.2	Pipelines Limit States	11
2.3	Analysis of In-Line Inspections (ILI) Results	11
2.4	Analysis of Existing Corrosion Degradation Models of Pipeline Systems	16
2.5	Analysis of Residual Strength of Main Pipelines Segments with Localized Corrosion Defects	17
2.6	Assessment of Pipeline Systems Reliability	25
2.7	Reliability Level Embedded in Pipeline Design Codes	29
2.8	Entropy of Degrading Pipeline Systems	32
2.9	Prediction of Fracture and Assessment of Pipelines State Subjected to SCC	33
2.10	Predictive Maintenance of Pipeline Systems with Defects	35
	References	36
3	Basics of ILI of Pipelines	45
3.1	A Brief History of Creation and the Current State of Art of Smart ILI Technology	45
3.2	ILI Tools	49
3.3	Code Requirements for ILI of Pipelines	61
3.3.1	ILI Stages	63
3.3.2	Periodicity of ILI	69
3.3.3	International ILI Quality Standards	70
	References	71

4	Methods of ILI Results Analysis	73
4.1	Introduction to ILI Result Analysis	74
4.1.1	General Characteristic of the ILI Tool as a Measurement System	74
4.1.2	Why Adjust the Raw MFL ILI Readings?	75
4.1.3	Types of Defect Size Adjustments	78
4.2	Assessment of the Minimal Required Number of Measurements for Consistent Statistical Analysis of ILI Results	80
4.2.1	Approach Based on the Central Limit Theorem	80
4.2.2	Approach Based on the Binomial Distribution	82
4.2.3	Approach Based on the χ^2 Distribution.	82
4.3	ILI Tools Quality Metrics	85
4.3.1	Practical Elements of Stochastic Theory of Measurements as Applied to the ILI.	85
4.3.2	Quality Metrics of ILI Instruments	87
4.3.3	Additional Quality Metrics of ILI Tools	96
4.3.4	Quality Metrics of Pipeline Residual Lifetime Prognosis	97
4.3.5	Efficacy Metrics of ILI Instruments	98
4.4	Method of Increasing Authenticity of ILI Measurements	101
4.4.1	Analysis of Existing Methods of ILI.	101
4.4.2	Possible Ways of Increasing Validity of ILI Tool Measurements	104
4.4.3	Analysis of Obtained Results.	110
4.5	Full Statistical Analysis Method of ILI Results	120
4.5.1	Prerequisites of Using the Method	122
4.5.2	Assessment of the Constant Bias of the ILI Tool Measurements	122
4.5.3	Assessment of the ILI Instrument Accuracy.	127
4.5.4	Method of Increasing the Measurement Accuracy (Calibration) of Defect Parameters	130
4.5.5	Validation of the Implemented Measurement Model.	137
4.5.6	Statistical Analysis Algorithm of the ILI Results	139
4.5.7	Some Results of Application of the FSA Method to Modeled Measurements.	144
4.5.8	Some Results of Real Case Analysis	149
4.6	Criteria for Rejecting ILI Results	156
4.7	Analysis of Reproducibility and Repeatability of Measurements	163
4.7.1	Defect Parameters Measured by One Operator and Different Measurement Tools.	165
4.7.2	Defect Parameters Measured by Several Operators and One and the Same Measurement Tool	168

4.7.3	The Problem of Negative Values of Variances of Sources of Measurement Scatter and Its Possible Solution	170
4.7.4	Cases of Practical Implementation of the Methodology	171
4.8	Methods of Updating the True Number of Defects in a Pipeline Using ILI Results	175
4.8.1	Direct Statistical Method	176
4.8.2	Bayesian Upgrade of the Number of Defects in a Pipeline Using Results of One Inspection	184
4.8.3	Bayesian Update of the Number of Defects in a Pipeline Using Results of Several Inspections	196
4.9	Construction of the ROC Curve Using ILI Results and Approximation of the Standard POD Curve	203
4.9.1	Construction of the ROC Curve Using ILI Results	204
4.9.2	A Consistent Approximation of the POD Curve	207
4.10	Statistical Clusterization of the “Loss-of-Metal” Type Defects	209
4.10.1	Probabilistic Approach to Defect Clustering	213
4.10.2	Probabilistic Clustering of Defects Based on Measurements by a Single Instrument	214
4.10.3	Probabilistic Clustering of Defects Using Results of Measurements of Screen Images of Defects as Provided by the ILI Tool	217
	References	221
5	The Human Dimension of Pipeline Integrity and Safety	225
5.1	Intrinsic Energy–Entropy Source of Risk in Pipelines	226
5.2	Holistic Approach to Assessing the Role of Human Factor	226
5.3	The Homeostasis Concept	227
5.4	Workability (Capacity for Work)	228
5.5	Three Types of Human Factor	229
5.6	Psychological Causes of Mistakes	229
5.7	General Classification of Human Errors	230
5.8	Possible Causes of Errors in the Life Cycle of Pipeline Systems	232
5.9	Classification of Human Errors Associated with In-Line Inspections (Analysis of API 1163)	233
5.10	ILI Error Frequency Reduction	238
5.11	Efficient Human Error Control Strategy	238
5.12	Most Often Used Human Error Quantification Methods (1989, CPQRA)	239

5.13	Human Factor #1 Analysis	241
5.14	Quantitative Assessment of Diagnosticians Errors (Human Factor #2).	242
5.15	Human Factor #3 Reliability as a Pipeline or ILI System Component	244
5.16	Human Factor Risk Minimization in Pipeline Operation	246
5.17	Illustrative Cases	250
	References	255
6	Probability of Failure (Reliability) of Pipelines	257
6.1	Formal Description of the Pipeline Reliability Assessment Method.	258
6.2	Reliability Assessment of a Defective Pipeline Segment Using Monte–Carlo Simulation Method	260
6.3	Reliability Assessment of a Defective Pipeline Segment Using the Gram–Charlier–Edgeworth Series Method	261
6.4	Recommendations for Choosing Probabilistic Characteristics of Pipeline Parameters	264
6.4.1	Adequacy Test of the G-C-E Method	266
6.4.2	Computer Time Needed for Using the MC and the G-C-E Methods	270
6.5	Assessment of the Reliability Level Embedded in Pipeline Design Codes	270
6.5.1	Reliability Level Empirically Embedded in International Codes.	271
6.5.2	Method of Assessing the Reliability Level Embedded in Pipeline Design Codes Based on a Single Safety Coefficient.	278
6.5.3	Numerical Analysis of the Reliability Level Actually Embedded in Pipeline Design Codes	282
6.6	Classical Approach to Reliability Assessment of the Whole Pipeline as a System.	289
	References	291
7	Markov Models of Pipeline Degradation Process	293
7.1	Formal Description of the Pure Birth (Death) Markov Process.	295
7.2	Pure Birth Markov Model of Corrosion Defects Growth	296
7.3	Algorithm for Assessing the Predicting Probabilities of the Defect Depths Being in Given States.	298
7.4	Validation of the Markov Model for Corrosion Defect Growth.	300

7.5	Markov Model for the Pipeline Residual Strength Degradation Process	304
7.5.1	Residual Strength Degradation Model for a Pipeline Cross Section with a Growing Defect	305
7.5.2	Model of Residual Strength Degradation of a Pipeline with Multiple Defects as a Distributed System	309
7.5.3	Assessment of the Gamma-Percentile Pipeline Residual Strength	310
7.5.4	Adequacy Test of Markov Model for the Residual Strength Degradation	312
7.5.5	Algorithm for Assessing the Pipeline GPRL and the Probability of the Defects Failure Pressure Being in One of the Given States	314
7.6	Method of Assessing Pipeline System POF Using Markov Processes	318
7.7	Optimization of the Timing for Performing Maintenance/Repair Work on a Pipeline System	320
7.8	Pipeline System Entropy	322
7.8.1	Pipeline System Entropy Generated by Degradation of the Residual Strength of Corrosion-Type Defects	323
7.8.2	Entropy Analysis of a Pipeline and Its Defective Cross Sections	323
	References	328
8	Method of Assessing the Probabilistic Characteristics of Crack Growth Under the Joint Influence of Random Loads and Different Types of Corrosion Processes	331
8.1	Residual Lifetime Assessment of a Gas Pipeline Segment with Longitudinal SC Type Cracks Under Constant Pressure	332
8.1.1	Algorithm for the Case of a Single Longitudinal Crack	332
8.1.2	Algorithm for Accounting for the Interaction of Multiple Longitudinal Cracks	334
8.1.3	Numerical Cases	336
8.2	Residual Life Time of a Gas Pipeline with a Single Longitudinal SC Crack Under Cyclic Internal Pressure	341
8.3	Implementation of the Most Important Sampling Method for Assessing Pipeline POF with a Single SC Type Crack	345
8.4	Updating Reliability Assessment of Pipeline in SCC Condition Using ILI Results	350

8.5	Updating Reliability Assessment of a Pipeline with SCC Cracks Using the Bayesian Network Approach	352
8.5.1	Sequential Connection of Pipeline Segments	352
8.5.2	Parallel Connection of Pipeline Segments	357
	References	359
9	Methodology of Predictive Maintenance of Pipelines	361
9.1	Method for Assessing the Time of Occurrence of Critical and Limit States of a Pipeline with Corrosion-Type Defects	361
9.2	Different Approaches to Assessing the Rate of Defect Parameter Growth	370
9.3	Assessment of Corrosion Rates for Developing RBIs and IMPs for Production Pipelines	374
9.3.1	CO_2 Type Corrosion Control Strategies	376
9.3.2	Economics of ILI and DA for Production Pipelines	378
9.3.3	State of the Art in RBI and Corrosion Rate Assessment for Production Pipelines.	378
9.3.4	CR Assessments for Production Pipelines	379
9.3.5	Posing the Production Pipeline CR Assessment Problem	380
9.3.6	The Stochastic Solution of Assessing the CR for Production Pipelines	381
9.3.7	Two Illustrative Case Studies of Production Pipelines	384
9.4	Some Results of Real-Life Pipeline Segments Analysis.	392
	References	403
	Conclusion	407

Diagnostics and Reliability of Pipeline Systems

Timashev, S.; Bushinskaya, A.

2016, XXI, 407 p. 186 illus., 79 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-25305-3